THE NEST.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

The nest should be constructed in a box with a layer of earth underneath in order to provide moisture. After the second week the eggs should be damped with warm water every other day. When a goose is about to hatch a good-sized nest should be prepared for her in the house, and in the spot where she has been laying. If she has to be removed to a different house, it is very difficult to get her to sit quietly. The feathers which she sheds when about to hatch should always be laid in the nest when putting in the eggs.

GREAT BRITAIN'S UNEMPLOYED

DECREASE OF 790,000 IN FOUR YEARS

The British returns of the unemployed for October—the last to be recorded within the lifetime of the late Parliament—show a reduction on the month of 42,220 in the number of the workless, and an increase of 14,000 in the total employed.

At October 21 the total of the unemployed was 1,916,390 or 203,245 less than that recorded at the corresponding date last year. The figure was made up of 1,595,689 wholly unemployed, 238,866 temporarily stopped, and 81,835 normally in casual employment. The total comprised 1,527,077 men, 62,762 boys, 273,935 women, and 52,616 girls

A comparison of the October returns with the last issued before the previous general election indicates that during the lifetime of the late Parliament the unemployed total was reduced by 794,554, while the number of employed persons had increased by 1,056,000

On October 26, 1931, the totals were:—Unemployed 2,710,944, employed 9,436,000, while on October 21, 1935, they were, respectively, 1,916,390 and 10,492,000.

WOOL

Good Competition in Australia.—All sections of buyers competed for the offerings at yesterday's wool sale at Sydney. Last week's closing prices were maintained. The catalogue, which was a good one, consisted of 13,040 bales, of which 12,069 were sold. Private transactions accounted for 1,863 bales. A full clearance was effected of the 10,916 bales offered at the wool sale held at Melbourne yesterday The level of prices was unchanged compared with that established at Melbourne last week. Yorkshire, Japanese, and Continental representatives were all in the market.

Bradford.—Top market keeps firm, with sixty-fours warp quoted at 31½d, and fifties at 15d. New business is quiet, but there is a healthy consumption, and this contributes to firmness of prices. Spinners are busy, especially on fine weaving yarns, and there is more doing in mohair and alpaca sorts. Yarn prices firm.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS

STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSES FIRM

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Tuesday.

The Chinese monetary developments caused no surprise in Wall Street. The Hong Kong and Shanghai dollars weakened further, but some Silver Mining issues advanced with a feeling that the restricted Chinese exports and buying by the Treasury will sustain silver prices. Sales totalled 1,750,000 shares.

The market opened firm, but later turned easy on realising. Steels and Minings, however, displayed resistance, U.S. Smelting and Youngstown Sheet and Tube both gaining a point towards midday.

In spite of profit-taking in Motors, a few Utilities and some high-grade Investment issues, a quiet demand for scattered Steels, Rails, Oils, Minings and Specialities kept the trend chiefly upward in the afternoon. The close was firm.

Call money remained at ¾ p.c., and the outside rate was unchanged at ¾ p.c. Prime paper was quoted at ¾ to 1 p.c. Open market discount rates were unaltered at 3/16 p.c. bid and ⅛ p.c. asked for 90-day Bank bills, and ¼ p.c. bid and 3/16 p.c. asked for six months' bills.

Sterling exchange opened up at 4.92⅜, but fell to 4.92¼ during the morning. The rate remained at this level in the afternoon, but finally recovered and closed ⅝ higher compared with the previous close at 4.92⅜.

Silver was unchanged at 65⅜c.

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS

Argentine North-Eastern Railway.—Net receipts converted at par rose from £100,993 to £120,765. Total exchange loss, etc., is £47,510, against £40,116. Other revenue amounts to £2,433. After providing for interest, etc., there is a debit balance of £59,304, which increases the debit to be carried forward to £208,474.

Argentine Great Western Railway.—In consequence of continued heavy losses on exchange the company was unable in the year to pay any sums on account of arrears of interest and dividend on Argentine Great Western Debentures and Guaranteed stocks, payment of which was postponed under the scheme of 1932. Interest on the First Debentures received from B.A. and Pacific was paid during the year, and 6 per cent. is to be paid on December 2 on the Second Debenture stock for one and a half years to June 30, 1933, from sums received from B.A. and Pacific on August 2.

Birmingham Small Arms Co.—Profit of £112,182 for the year. This compares with £127,550 for the previous year. After providing for Debenture interest and sinking fund, the debit balance brought in is reduced by £1,841 to £67,873. The turnover of the group has been well maintained, and all the trading subsidiary companies, except two, have earned profits. The reorganisation, which was commenced some years ago under the auspices of the present board, is making substantial progress, but it must necessarily be slow, in view of the varied interest of the company and its several subsidiaries.

Bristol United Breweries.—Advance of £8,160 in trading profits to £101,383. Final dividend of 10 per cent. and a bonus of 2½ per cent., making a total of 17½ per cent. for the year. For the previous twelve months the dividend was 15 per cent., but there was no bonus. Reserve again receives £17,500. £43,220 forward.

Bengal-Nagpur Railway.—In addition to second half of guaranteed interest at £1 15/-, less tax, the directors recommend payment of a further dividend of 5/- per cent. from reserve, making 4 per cent. for the year.

Cordoba Central Railway. — Net receipts converted from Argentine currency at par rose from £171,279 to £263,267. Exchange differences were up to £196,641 from £106,032, leaving a balance of £66,626, against £65,247. To this is added £14,021 transferred from exchange difference, reserve for currency, net floating assets, and fees £306. An amount of £31,339 was expended on renewals, against £25,550, and, after providing for interest, etc., there was a balance of £18,044. After allowing for the £360,000 Debenture interest the debit balance is increased from £212,563 to £554,519. Working expenses continued to decrease, the total reduction effected, as compared with the year to June 30, 1930, being £634,016. It is stated that there is no development to record in regard to the negotiations referred to by the Chairman at the last annual meeting, for the acquisition by the Argentine Government of the company.

Connaught Estates (1934).—Interim dividend of 3½ per cent. (same).

Entre Rios Railways.—Net receipts for the year to June 30 last converted from Argentine currency at par improved from £83,598 to £186,286. Exchange loss on remittances and provision for other exchange differences totalled £85,038, leaving a balance of £101,248, compared with £3,204. After including miscellaneous revenue, and deducting Debenture interest and interest on arrears, etc., there is a debit of £114,691, which makes a total debit to be carried forward of £132,692, including £17,801 brought in. No allocation to renewals reserve has been made. Expenditure on renewals, amounting to £30,303, has been charged to that reserve, leaving a credit balance of £611,095.

Hazell Watson and Viney.—Interim dividend of 3 per cent. (same).

House Property and Investment.—Payment of 5 per cent. on the Ordinary Shares, less tax (same).

International Nickel Co. of Canada.—Quarterly dividend rate raised from 20c to 25c.

New Haycep Rubber Estates.—The accounts for the year ended June 30th last show a profit of £9,309. There was a loss of exchange of £8,551, and after crediting profit on sale of Government securities, £462, the year ended with a credit balance of £1,221. The sum of £306 has been written off capital reduction expenses, and the balance of £914 is carried forward. For the previous year there was a loss of £238; the loss on exchange was £2,792, when a profit on sale of Government securities was made of £1,981, resulting in a debit balance for the year of £1,049.

Richard Thomas and Co.—Maiden interim dividend of 3 per cent. For 1934 dividend was 6 per cent.

Stroud Brewery.—Final dividend of 8 per cent., making 16 per cent., while the cash bonus is increased from 5 to 6½ per cent., making 22½ per cent. (against 21 per cent.). The dividend is increased by 2½ per cent. to 12½ per cent. After allocating £15,000 for Debenture redemption and paying taxes, etc., there remains £105,894 to go forward.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT

£200 FOR DISMISSED WORKER

(BEFORE JUDGE DAVITT.)

In the case of Michael Doyle, ex-railway guard, against the Great Southern Railways Company, the hearing of which took place a fortnight ago, a settlement was announced yesterday.

Doyle, who resides in Marine terrace, Bray, had asked the Court for a declaration that his employment with the company had been terminated by them on March 6th, 1935, without reasonable cause, and that he was entitled to compensation.

The adjournment, a week ago, was allowed to give the company an opportunity of considering its attitude in the case.

The company agreed to pay Doyle £200, with costs of the trial, and the judge made an order accordingly.

DETECTIVE IN MOTOR AFFAIR

Mrs. Rosalie Byrne, North road, Drogheda, sued Detective Officer James Nolan, Lower Castle Yard, Dublin, for compensation for damage done to her motor car in September, 1930.

Guard John Byrne, husband of the plaintiff, stated that his wife was the owner of the car. With her he drove the car to Dun Laoghaire on September 15th, as they were going to England on holidays. He left the car at the Guards' barrack where he met Sergeant Lydon, to whom he gave the keys. When he and his wife returned from England on September 22nd he found that the car had been injured, and that it had a new radiator. He then learned that the car had been driven by Guard Nolan. He had never seen Nolan up to that date, and had not given him any authority to use the car. The cost of repairing the car was £16.

Sergeant Lydon stated that Guard Byrne left the car at the barrack, and that he had left the keys to be given to Guard Nolan.

Guard Nolan, defendant, stated that he believed he had permission to drive the car. While driving on York road on September 22nd, while trying to avoid children on the road, he knocked up against a telegraph pole, the injury to which cost him £6 15s. He paid five guineas for the radiator.

The Judge gave the plaintiff a decree for £8, with costs and witnesses' expenses.

Mr. Murnane (instructed by Messrs. J. Tallon and Co., Drogheda) appeared for the plaintiff

Mr. C. Casey (instructed by Mr. L. Trant McCarthy) appeared for the defendant.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT

JAIL FOR THREATS

Patrick Curtis, a labourer, of Railway street, Dublin, was sentenced to a month's imprisonment, with hard labour, on a charge of intimidating James Scully, a foreman carpenter, engaged by the Dublin Corporation at work in Railway street.

In evidence, Scully said that the defendant had approached him with a mattock and had told him that he would cut off the "gaffer's" head and do the same with the Civic Guards. Floors had been ripped up, staircases taken away, and corrugated iron had been removed at Railway street.

The defendant said that on the day of the incident alleged he was in Collinstown with greyhounds. His evidence was corroborated by James Maguire, Summerhill.

TRANSFER OF A BABY

Mrs. Josephine Dixon, 35 Paul street, Dublin, and Mrs. May Garry, 14 Paul street, received suspensory sentences of seven days' imprisonment on a summons brought by the Dublin Board of Assistance for failing to give notice of receiving a nurse child.

Mrs. Dixon was summoned for failing to give the name and address of the person to whom the child was transferred.

The Dublin Board of Assistance also summoned Mrs. Ellen Brady, of 15 Hardwicke street, for failing to give notice of her intention to take a nurse child aged two months.

Mrs. Clancy, Inspector, in reply to Mr. T. Greene, Law Agent to the Board, said that, on visiting the home of the defendant, she saw the child, which, although the house showed signs of extreme poverty, was in a healthy condition.

Mrs. Brady said that she answered an advertisement and got in touch with a Mrs. Byrne, who arranged with her to meet her at a 'bus stop at Burgh quay. She kept the appointment, and Mrs. Byrne handed her over the child and gave her £9. Mrs. Brady then took a cottage at Loughrea, but when the £9 had been spent she returned to Dublin and lived in a cellar.

Mr. Greene said that it was the people who were unable to support themselves who took nurse children to get the money.

The Probation Act was applied.

TROUBLE ON A TRAMCAR

James Rodden and Thomas Rodden, Ormond square, were charged with having assaulted Sergeant J. Ward, with disorderly behaviour, resisting arrest, and damaging the clothes of the sergeant. Richard McLoughlin, Queen's street; Wm. Donoghue, Hardwicke street; Thomas Sheridan, Benburb street; John Talbot, Benburb street, and Wm. Regan, Little Strand street, were charged with disorderly behaviour and resisting arrest.

Guard M. Sharkey said that he saw a large crowd at Chapelizod looking at the top of a tramcar, and when he and Sergeant Ward boarded the vehicle the Roddens attacked them. The rest of the crowd then attacked them, the melee lasting about ten minutes. Assisted by local people, the witness and the sergeant brought the accused men to the police barracks.

The defendants were remanded until Thursday.

CHARGE OF STEALING

(BEFORE MR. HANNAN.)

The case was resumed in which Leonard Bennett, clerk, Merrion road, Dublin, is charged with stealing from the Gaiety Theatre, where he was employed, £60 17/8 belonging to the theatre, between June 15th and 17th last. He is charged also with having falsified records at the theatre during the past four years by the omission of particulars in the store book; with having, between December, 1934 and June, 1935, omitted particulars in the store book to the amount of £306 16s. 11d., and stealing goods to that value during the four years.

Mr. J. H. Hamilton, manager of the theatre, said that he found invoices from which there were no entries in the stock book. He also discovered shortages in stock.

Mr. Archer, of Messrs. Craig, Gardner and Co., chartered accountants, Dame street, gave evidence in regard to the result of the examination of the books. There were deficiencies to the extent of £306 16s. 0d.

The further hearing was adjourned until Thursday.

PRINCE ALY KHAN AS CO-RESPONDENT

Prince Aly Khan, son of the Aga Khan, was cited as co-respondent in an undefended suit in the Divorce Court, London, yesterday.

Mr. Thomas Loel Guinness, retiring M.P. and Conservative candidate for Bath, was granted a decree nisi on the ground of the misconduct of his wife, formerly the Hon. Joan Barbara Yarde-Buller. It was alleged that misconduct took place with Prince Aly Khan at a Paris Hotel this year.

The marriage, it was stated, took place in St. Margaret's, Westminster, in 1927, and they have one child, a son, born in 1931. They lived at the husband's present address in Carlton House terrace and at Hinton Priory, Bath.

Financial News & Notes

DUBLIN FIRMER

FIRST NATIONAL LOAN STRONG

CARROLL ORD. SUPPORTED

The new account opened on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday with a cheerful appearance, and markets generally were fairly active, but local issues held most of the interest.

There was some spirited bidding for the First National Loan, which finished nearly a point higher. The other Loans were easier inclined, and the Fourth fell 10s. Land Bonds showed a harder trend. British Funds advanced under the lead of War Loan, which gained 6s. 3d.

Banks attracted attention at generally higher levels. Bank of Ireland Stock improved to 303, and Nationals to 49s. 3d.; while Munster and Leinster rose 1s. 3d.

Guinness Units, after active dealings, finished 1s. higher on the day. Distillers Ord. hardened to 93s.

Rails were quietly uncertain. Dublin Tram Ord. recovered to 90s., but the Pref. gave way.

Alliance Gas Ord. advanced to 14¼.

The outstanding feature among local Industrials was the strong buying of Carrolls Ord., which resulted in a sharp rise to 30s. 6d. x.d. Other changes were small, but harder for choice.

Tobaccos and Textiles inclined to harden, and elsewhere Imperial Chemicals and Vickers Ord. moved in favour of holders.

LONDON CHEERFUL

GILT-EDGED CLOSE STRONG

The new account on the London Stock markets commenced yesterday in good style, as satisfactory trade news from important trade centres was sufficient to cause an almost complete disregard of election considerations and a resumption of buying on a wide scale. Other factors which assisted sentiment included the further drop in the number of unemployed and Mr. Chamberlain's speech on the Government's work schemes. Throughout the session prices in most groups moved in favour of holders, and at the finish Gilt-edged stocks showed to particular advantage. Many Industrials were also considerably higher, while "Kaffirs" and Oils were generally better.

BRITISH FUNDS

Active conditions prevailed in the Gilt-edged section, investment buying being encouraged by the municipal election results. Prices quickly responded to any appreciable amount of support, and finally rises were general with Old Consols, War Loan, and Local Loans notably higher. Interest in India stocks was centred mainly in the Threes, which closed 1½ to the good at 84⅜.

FOREIGN BONDS

The Foreign Bond Market provided a number of features, chief among them being support for Chinese descriptions following China's silver decision. Interest in Brazilians was stimulated by the news that the frozen debts plan has been approved by the Executive. The 1914 Funding led a general advance with a gain of ¾ to 59½. Peru Corporations were another firm spot, especially the Debentures, which added 2½ to 53. European issues were quiet, but movements in Germans and Greeks were favourable.

RAILS

There was little doing in British Rails, but, in sympathy with surrounding departments, the tendency was firm, and several issues moved to higher levels. Southern Preferred were outstanding with a point rise to 79½. Foreign Rails presented a firm appearance, Argentines being ½ better all round. Colonials also moved in the right direction, but American Rails were subdued and lower where changed.

INDUSTRIALS

Industrials were widely bought as a result of continued favourable trade reports and the proposed expenditure on railway equipment and on roads. Cement and Electrical Equipment issues were in particularly heavy demand, while Iron and Steels also attracted considerable attention. In the Motor section Commercial Vehicle issues were absorbed in anticipation of larger dividends, and the same reason was responsible for buying of certain Brewery shares. Elsewhere Shipping issues were well supported, and many of the leading Miscellaneous shares were substantially better.

MINES

Among Mines Kaffirs were bought on Continental and local account, and again finished firm. In the West African group Ashantis were a notably good feature, and several others strengthened. Australians were quietly firm, while Indian Gold shares attracted good support, and in some instances finished appreciably higher.

The tone in the Oil Share market was firm, and most of the leading issues again advanced. A feature was a sharp rise in Attock, due to buying on development news.

MOTORS AND TEXTILES

BIRMINGHAM

Although some leaders were quiet, the tone was strong. Guys 2/3, Leylands 72/9, and Dennis 33/6, all supported. Humbers Prefd. hard, 21/6. Standards easier, 81/3. Dunlops neglected, 38/4½.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET

SEVERAL STRONG FEATURES

TATE AND LYLE ADVANCE

The new account in the Industrial Market started in optimistic mood yesterday. Fresh buyers came forward encouraged by the results of the municipal elections, good trade reports and the proposed expansion programmes. Encouraging advices from Wall street were reflected in the trans-Atlantic counters. Although there was not a great deal doing on this side they finished with a firm appearance in the late dealings. "Emmies" full report and accounts stimulated interest in the shares, which improved.

Cable and Wireless stocks showed to advantage, the Preference rising to 102¾ and the Ordinary to 26.

A NEW HIGH RECORD

Active interest continued to centre on Electrical Equipments. Crompton Parkinson were prominent on expectations of a capital bonus, the shares changing hands up to the new high record of 95s., while they finished with a net advance of 3s. 9d. at 93s. 9d. Johnson and Phillips were firm at 42s. 6d. ex div. and rights, and the new shares changed hands up to 3s. prem.

Business in Iron and Steel descriptions further expanded, some appreciable gains being finally recorded. The Richard Thomas issues were in request. Strong buying of Whitehead Iron raised the price 3/16, and Dorman Long were a good market.

MOTORS IN DEMAND.

A good demand again existed for Motor shares, with Commercial Vehicle descriptions prominent. Favourable dividend anticipations were responsible for strong buying of Leylands and Dennis Bros. Standards, Fords and S. Smith Preferred-Ordinary were all higher.

Aviation and kindred descriptions maintained a steady tone with fair business in progress. Rolls-Royce improved, and small gains were shown by Napier, Hawker and Handley Page Participating Preferences.

BREWERIES SUPPORTED.

Dividend expectations brought in fresh supporters to Brewery Shares. Bass, Ratcliff gained 1s. 6d., and Benskins a similar amount to 83s., while advances of 1s. were recorded by Guinness, Friary, Holroyd, Ind Coope and Hodgsons. The Tobacco leaders also came in for further attention. Carreras, Gallahers, "Bats," "Imps" were all better.

In the Newspaper group, Sunday Pictorial continued in request.

There was a general improvement in the Drapery and Departmental Stores section. Marks and Spencers closed 1/16 to the good, while Woolworths rallied.

UNILEVERS IN DEMAND.

Among Provision and Catering Shares, Tate and Lyle were well supported, and the final price of 87s. 6d. left them 2s. 9d. higher on the day. The two Unilevers were also in demand.

Textiles made a satisfactory showing. Fine Spinners advanced, while Calico Printers showed to advantage. Coats rose a few pence, there also being a renewed demand for Bleachers. In the Rayon section, Courtaulds were the turn harder, while Canadian Celanese and British Celanese were again better.

SHIPPING FEATURES.

Some of the Shipping issues were in good demand. Clan Line went ahead to around 5½ in anticipation of a capital bonus. R.M. realisation touched 32s. at one time, closing with a net gain of 1s. 6d. at 31s. 6d. on reports of negotiations for the sale of the company's interest in Macandrews and Co.

E.D. realisation further improved to 28s. 6d., while Furness, Withy hardened to 18s. 1½d. and P. and O. Deferred to 18s. 7½d.

In the Land section, Sudans strengthened.

CEMENT SUPPORTED.

The Miscellaneous section gave a satisfactory display, several good features being apparent. Cement issues encountered renewed support on the proposed road building programme. British Oxygens gained a modest fraction. Dunlops closed a shade easier, but Triplex were bought up to 79s. 6d.

OILS SUPPORTED

Activity and strength characterised the start of the new account in Oil shares, the turnover in the leaders showing further expansion, while interest broadened, several of the more speculative descriptions enjoying good support.

Firmness was displayed by American Oil Stocks on Saturday last, while a further rise occurred in Amsterdam, Royal Dutch being prominent. Yesterday a good local demand was accompanied by buying on Continental account. The arrangements in connection with the carry-over were "givers on." Shell Bearer, Royal Dutch, Anglo-Iranians and Burmahs were "takers in." The general charge for the continuation of bargains was again 3½ to 4½ per cent. The contango position was fairly easily arranged.

One of the most active features was once more provided by Attock Oils. The market in these shares is a comparatively narrow one, and the price of the shares continued to soar, the day's business resulting in an advance of 3s. 9d. to 24s. The rapidity of the rise in these shares is illustrated by the fact that in August last they stood at about 8s.

RUBBERS SUBDUED

Owing to a considerable slackening of interest and scattered selling, an easier tendency developed in the Rubber Share market yesterday. Movements were mostly small, however, and the only declines of any importance occurred in F.M.S., Malacca, Golden Hope and Batu Tiga. In the commodity section trading was of steady proportions, with spot rubber selling up to 6⅛d. per lb. United Kingdom stocks of rubber decreased by 89 tons last week.

LONDON MINING MARKET

GENERAL ADVANCE IN KAFFIRS

The new account in the Mining Market opened in cheerful fashion yesterday, and the carry-over being of comparatively small dimensions was easily completed. Kaffirs were helped by Johannesburg advices, and Paris was also a supporter of several of its specialities, and this lent encouragement to operators here, with the result that prices went ahead virtually throughout the list. In the case of many of the good class shares floating supplies have diminished considerably, much of the recent buying having been on behalf of big institutions for investment purposes. Finance descriptions were well to the fore, substantial gains being scored. Firmness was maintained to the close and only one or two insignificant shrinkages could be recorded against a long list of improvements.

Rhodesians shared to some extent in the better feeling prevailing, and Chartered, which were favoured by Paris, moved up sharply, but Rezende reacted on further profit-taking. The De Beers issues, in the Diamond list, were in some request, and higher, as were also Consolidated African Selection Trust.

In the West African department the feature was provided by Ashanti Goldfields, which were in strong request. While the profit for October of £78,911 is about the same as for September, interest centres on the fact that values are beginning to show on the 29th or lowest level of the Ashanti Mine.

Australians gave quite a good account of themselves, though in this case also public business was by no means brisk.

Several of the barriers enjoyed good support on encouraging advices from the colony.

Tins were inactive and irregular, though Renong were appreciably higher. Closing prices:—

THE MONEY MARKET

RISE IN SILVER

The news from China respecting the Government's new silver policy stimulated speculative activity in the Silver Market yesterday, and prices advanced 1/16d. for spot and 1/16d. for forward delivery to 29⅝d. and 29 9/16d. per ounce respectively. America was not a buyer at the above price.

The price of gold was fixed ½d. lower at 141s. 5d. per ounce. The premium over the franc exchange of 74 11/16 was ½d. higher at 8d., and the premium over the dollar rose from 1d. to 2d. on a rate of 4.92¼. About £184,000 was available in the market.

Short loans were in moderate demand at ½ per cent. in the absence of any Treasury bill maturities yesterday. Discount rates kept steady at 9/16 to ⅝ per cent. for fine three months' bills, and 9/16 per cent. for the "hot" Treasuries.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

The Chinese dollar naturally provided the principal feature of the Foreign Exchange market yesterday, following the decision of the Chinese Government to carry out drastic currency reforms. The dollar weakened sharply at the outset to its lowest point since 1933, but recovered later when it was known that the new exchange value of the dollar against sterling would be 14½. In London virtually no business was transacted in Chinese currency, the market being almost completely nominal throughout. The Hong Kong dollar also slumped heavily, since it is anticipated that similar regulations will be applied there.

Meanwhile the European gold currencies, together with the American dollar, lost ground in relation to sterling. The movement was due to further nervous sales of francs and the other gold currencies on fears of a fresh crisis in France with the return of the French Parliament. Rates moved sharply in favour of London during the early hours, but the trend was reversed shortly before the close after fresh gold shipments from Paris to New York had been arranged. Closing rates were in consequence below the high points for the day.

Rand Gold Developments

The directors of the New Central Witwatersrand Areas and New Witwatersrand Gold Exploration Company (Ltd.) announce that arrangements have been concluded between them, whereby boring operations will be undertaken on the farm Gerhardminnebron No. 4 District Potchefstroom (adjoining the farm Kleinfontein No. 36, recently purchased by West Witwatersrand Areas), with a view to proving the western extension of the main reef series, which, in consequence of the recent highly favourable boring results in that area, is expected to underlie this farm. The New Central Witwatersrand Areas has an option to purchase the mineral rights on this farm over an area of approximately 5,000 morgen (10,582 acres), the New Witwatersrand Gold Exploration holding similar rights in respect of approximately 1,500 morgen (3,174 acres). Should boring operations justify flotation, it is mutually agreed that such flotation will be made under the ægis of New Central Witwatersrand Areas, and as much of the total joint areas as may be determined to be ore-bearing shall be included in the flotation.

Shanghai Exchange Troubles

The Shanghai Exchange Equalisation Committee yesterday fixed the official rate for sterling at 1/2¼, compared with Saturday's rate of 1/3 5/16. This rate is fixed for the purpose of computing the price of silver for export uses. The export duty on bar silver has risen to 65 per cent., compared with 14½ per cent. previously. With the Government banks operating freely in any foreign currency, the exchange market yesterday kept steady and orderly, although very busy. The banks were buyers, while speculators took profits. Sterling throughout the day remained at 1/2⅜. In an interview with Reuter, Sir Frederick Leith Ross, chief economic advisor to the British Government, who is at present on a visit to the Far East, ridiculed the suggestion that the Chinese Government's action was inspired by assurances of a loan from the Powers with which to support her currency.

£6,000,000 Loan for Brazil

The authorisation given by the Legislature for the raising of credits of £6,000,000, to be applied to the liquidation of "frozen" British credits in Brazil, has been endorsed by the Executive. This relates to the Anglo-Brazilian Payments Agreement concluded in March last following the visit of a Brazilian Financial Mission to London. Under the agreement Brazil provides £1,000,000 in cash and creates Four per cent. Sterling Stock to liquidate arrears of commercial debts to the United Kingdom in respect of goods imported into Brazil prior to 12th February, 1935.

Consolidated Gold Fields

As the capital of Consolidated Gold Fields of South Africa (Ltd.) exceeds £6,000,000, a widespread interest is taken in the company's fortunes. The financial year ended on June 30, and already on account of the period Ordinary shareholders have received an interim payment of 6¼ per cent., less tax. The final dividend will be announced this month. For the previous year an interim of similar amount to that declared for the past year was followed by a final of 13¾ per cent., less tax. During the present calendar year the quotation has ranged between 76s. 10½d. and 58s. 1½d., while the current price is 68s. 1½d.

Rubber Shares

The outburst of activity in rubber shares in the early part of last week proved, after all, short-lived. It was thought that on Monday, when the turnover in rubber shares was about the highest of the year, a sustained spell of liveliness was at last in prospect, but with quite heavy profit-taking in progress a much more cautious tone developed. It is evident, none the less, that by degrees the investing public are regaining their confidence in rubber shares. Until the Dutch authorities can evolve—as they hope to do in the next year—a system of individual restriction in the East Indies, there can be no real solution of the native problem, but the drastic measures taken by the Netherlands Government to keep within their schedule has, at least, demonstrated that there is now no danger of curtailment failing to be made universally effective. The stocks problem is now the main concern of investors. From available estimates it appears that at last visible world stocks will begin to decline, and thus afford the market a weekly psychological tonic as the figures are published. As a result of recent European purchases of rubber to-day's return of United Kingdom stocks is expected to show a further appreciable decline of something like 2,500 tons.

"Shaun the Post" : A Buttery Collection : Barrel Organs : Children's Sayings

Mr. Bruce Flegg

Mr. Bruce Flegg, who is playing the name part in the opera of "Shaun the Post" at the Gaiety this week, began his career as an architect, and is an Associate of the Royal Institute of British Architects. While practising that profession he took a deep interest in music, especially singing, and eventually music proved a stronger "pull" than architecture. While still an architect he sang the tenor solo part in Bach's "Mass in B Minor" at Queen's Hall, London, after which he definitely gave up architecture for music. In addition to much singing as principal in oratorio and other standard works, he has sung leading rôles in operas by Mozart and Gluck, and had a marked success in Boughton's "Immortal Hour." Mr. Flegg, one of whose chief recreations is sketching, is a son-in-law of Mr. Dermod O'Brien, P.,R.H.A.

Lord Derby and Ulster

I am afraid Lord Derby's suggestion of an Ulster Derby, made in Belfast on Saturday, is hardly likely to bear fruit. I also fear this great sportsman does not know his Ulster very well or he would know that the Six County area is the least "horsey" in all Ireland. It is true there are some of the finest sportsmen there. Such are the three Dixon brothers, Mr. C. L. Mackean, Mr. W. Barnett and Mr. Willis and one or two others, but the general public of Belfast and its neighbourhood have never supported racing. It is a notorious fact that if you took away the Free State element who give their support to the two or three meetings held in the Six Counties, you would get a deserted racecourse. The Belfast public does not go racing, whether because it dislikes parting with its coin of the realm for admission fees or that it regards racing as a sinful pastime I cannot say. It would certainly be wrong to attribute the shortcoming to the Scottish origin of the Belfast public, for the Scot in Scotland is a most ardent supporter of racing and sport. King James II. even granted a Charter to the Down Royal Horsebreeding Society, but even that has failed to make racing popular. Personally, I think the wrong King gave the Charter, and that had it been granted by William instead of his father-in-law the Orangemen in Ulster would be better racegoers to-day!

However, there's no knowing, but Lord Derby's suggestion to Sir Thomas Dixon might succeed in doing to the general public of Ulster what James II. and others have failed to do up till now.

Abyssinia and the Caliphate

Abyssinia seems always to have been a bone of contention with other lands and peoples, if not as a country to be coquered, then as a race to be converted to one faith or another. Though much of the land was converted to Christianity by St. Frumentius in the early part of the fourth century, who baptised the brother Kings, Ababa and Atshaba, the rise of the Crescent saw Moslem influence having its say, in religious matters, at least. At one time, after the country had been practically isolated by the victorious followers of the Prophet, the Caliph of Alexandria had a deciding voice in the appointment of the bishops. This naturally has caused considerable aberrations in the Abyssinian faith from those doctrines held by the original mother Church at Rome. The great authority on Abyssinia is the Lazarist monk, Pere J. B. Coulbeaux, who died in Paris in 1921. Father Coulbeaux, who had passed 30 years among the people of the country, was also the publisher of many works which the Emperor Menelik was reported to have read with admiration.

What Children Say

I have often wondered how many of the "wisecracks" that amuse us in the cinema are the stored-up sayings of children. Some of the children's sayings which I have seen recently in print suggest that a great many of these witticisms come from that source. For instance, a child in an English elementary school was asked to explain in her homework the difference between income and expenditure. She consulted her father, and then wrote: "I can't answer the question exactly. Father started to tell me what his expenditure on himself was, but mother came in, and dad at once dried up." Another child defined memory as "The thing you forget with"; and one thought a skeleton was "A man without any meat on his bones." One little scholar proudly informed her parents that she knew her teacher loved her "because she always put a big X on her sums." Probably any of these would "get the laugh" if given from stage or screen.

Plaques

Some time ago I referred to the movement set on foot in Dublin to mark appropriately the houses of men famed in literature and the arts, and I hope still that something practical is being done about it, because frequently there are reminders that in this respect other cities are more generous than we are. In London a special committee rules the naming of streets and the marking of houses to keep alive old memories, and I have observed that in Bath public attention almost at every turn is drawn to sites of historical interest. It seems that nobody who has done anything worth while in the West Country could escape the posthumous honour of a plaque. Our only mural memorial to literature—excepting Dean Swift's—is on the house wherein lived Richard Brinsley Sheridan, whose setting for "The Rivals" was Bath.

It is hoped that the Irish Academy of Letters, or whichever authoritative body undertakes the laudable work, will tackle the job wholeheartedly, with the breadth of vision shown by the members of the Saintsbury Club, in Bath, who have unveiled a tablet to the late Professor Saintsbury. Here was no mere, rude affixing, but a ceremonial proceeding, which suggests gouty possibilities if a great number of tablets is set up in Dublin. The participants foregathered in the Pump Room, where, after listening to an epicurean lecture on the qualities of ripe cheese and rare wines, they regaled themselves at pleasure with "cuts"—"plaques" suggests itself—of prime Cheddar, Double Gloucester and Dorset Blue, and libations of old hunting port. Then the party adjourned to the place appointed for the unveiling ceremony.

A Buttery Collection

As well as the spirit of fraternity and hospitality there was in the Bath unveiling ceremony much commonsense and practical application. Professor Saintsbury was a scholarly writer, who, after determining never to court popularity in the ordinary way, gathered a wide circle of admirers by his Notes on a Cellar Book. Thenceforth his general subjects were food and wine.

Many writers have touched upon these absorbing subjects: Dumas, for instance—his name re-awakens memories of Brother Gorenflot's stodgings in Le Carne d'Abondance. Arnold Bennett, too, had the right idea; but he, in his extravagancy, deserted the victuals and plunged into the intricacies of Grand Hotel management. There are others, but who among them deserves a place in what I would call a "Buttery Collection"? One is Isaac Walton, whose "Compleat Angler" should be the standard authority on the preparation and cooking of fresh-water fish: even the most selfish book collector ought gladly to transfer his first edition from the library to the kitchen, in exchange for the out-of-date "Art of Cookery" (Mrs. Glasse, first edition, with the error, "First catch your hare"). Then I would include "Ingoldsby Legends," because once I ate a salad made to Barham's famous recipe.

My collection would not oust the orthodox cookery books; contrariwise, it would through the medium of pure literature—call it insidious propaganda, if you will—urge our housekeepers and their helps to keener study of them. I see many possibilities in the idea, but in selecting the dozen best buttery-books I need the collaboration of a man of literature who is also a practised hotelier.

Barrel Organs

To judge by the number of barrel organs in active use in Dublin, organ grinding is again proving a prosperous profession. A few years ago one rarely saw these jolly musical instruments; but latterly a number of pushing young men have evidently discovered that there is money in the business. They are energetic fellows, too, and they shove the cumbersome hurdy-gurdies along the streets from an early hour until late at night. At Terenure recently I observed a barrel organ twanging "Roll Along, Covered Wagon," at 10.30 p.m. One man uses a pony to pull the organ, and he is able to cover a wide area without any fatigue beyond turning the handle and collecting the coppers

FILM NOTES

The Story of Clive

A Disappointing Version : Loretta Young's Display : A New Star : Television

FROM OUR CINEMA CORRESPONDENT.

I CONFESS to being a little disappointed in "Clive of India," which is being shown at the Savoy this week—it does not succeed in giving us a picture either of the making of the Indian Empire, or of the man who did so much to make it. Where the fault actually lies is harder to say. It is at least as well acted as "The Iron Duke," and at least as accurate, historically, as "The House of Rothschild," but it lacks the vitality which was present in both of those films. Perhaps the reason is that the producer, in order to tell us as much as possible about Clive's career and his family life, has tried to tell us everything—and everything, where art is concerned, is nearly always too much.

Clive's Character

THE general effect is as if somebody were to give the story of Clive as found in the history-books, with illustrations of the more important incidents. Thus we see him as a rather rebellious clerk in the offices of the East India Company, and we watch his progress as a soldier and statesman through Arcot, Plassey, the Black Hole of Calcutta and the negotiations with Mir Jaffeir that finally led to his downfall. Many of these incidents are shown with great skill and imagination. One of the scenes that remain in the memory is that of the young man marching out in the rain with his band of ragamuffins to capture Arcot—almost in defiance of his superiors—and another is the period of indecision and almost of despair before the battle of Plassey. But, on the whole, the man is not explained to us, and it is about the man that we wish to know, not about the record of his work that can be found in the history books. What was there in that turbulent character, so impatient of authority, that made Clive what he must have been? What quality was there in him which made him climb the church steeple when a boy, attempt suicide at Madras, forge a signature in order to gain provinces for England? We are no wiser at the end of the film than at the beginning. We have seen a dashing and rather romantic figure at various points of his career, but nothing more.

Loretta Young

RONALD COLMAN acts this figure well—though, as may be seen from the photograph, he looks a little unfamiliar without his famous moustache. He is especially good in the earlier scenes, where some attempt has been made to show Clive's character, and it is not his fault if he begins to lose his air of reality later on in the story. Loretta Young, however, is very much better, and this is possibly because her part is very much more convincing. Indeed, there is an insight into this sketch of the wife of a famous man which is not in the full-length portrait of the man himself. She is charming and natural throughout the film, which she undoubtedly "steals" from Mr. Colman.

"Clive of India" is well produced, and of its many exciting episodes, the battle of Plassey is the best shown. The film has not been cut very much, though the few cuts seem to have been very clumsily made.

A New "Star"

"A WICKED WOMAN" (at the Grafton) is acted with great power by a new actress, Mady Christians, and the film itself has that curiously emphatic air which was common enough in films before the "talkies" came in, but which has gone out of fashion since then. Nowadays the film stories—whether good or bad—are told with restraint, and the technique of "A Wicked Woman" has become so unfamiliar that one greets it as one would an old friend. It puts no reins on the emotions. If it wants to show us a woman murdering her brutal husband the horror is piled on ruthlessly, and when people weep they do it with a will. On the whole, I am not sorry that the old tradition has passed, and that film producers no longer underline their stories so heavily. At the same time, I found the rather naive method of "A Wicked Woman" genuinely refreshing.

RONALD COLMAN.

THIS must not be taken as implying that the story can be dismissed as a heavy melodrama. It is a study of a mother who is determined that none of her children shall be brought up to be as worthless as their father, and whose own guilty secret becomes so heavy a weight on her mind that at last she resolves to give herself up to justice. There are few subtleties in it, no doubt, but it is told with a vigour that carries a good deal of conviction, and the style of the story is perfectly reproduced in the acting of Mady Christians. Jean Parker and Charles Bickford also appear.

AT the Corinthian, Norman Foster, Esther Ralston and Evalyn Knapp appear in "Ladies Crave Excitement," which deals with the efforts of rival camera-men in their hunt for newsreel material. One thing leads to another, culminating in the capture of the heroine by escaped convicts, and her rescue by the hero. In the supporting film, "Rainbow's End," Hoot Gibson and June Gale have the principal parts.

More Television Experiments

IT is seldom that we have as many as three "first-run" houses retaining their films in the same week, and their good fortune leaves me with very little to write about. There was an interesting article on television in this week's Observer, however, which may be worth comment. Within the next few weeks, it appears, the results of the latest experiments will be shown at one of the London cinemas by the Baird company. When the picture has been "televised" from some distant spot, it will not be transferred straight to the screen, but will be re-photographed with a special kind of camera in the theatre. The film, having been printed and developed, will then be shown in the ordinary way, and it is said that it can be made ready for exhibition within two minutes of its exposure. The film, of course, can then be used in subsequent programmes.

This method is a compromise between the ordinary film and "direct" television. Up to the present it has been found almost impossible to transfer televised pictures on to the screen without the aid of the most elaborate mechanism, and no method has been found which would be simple and cheap enough to be used in an ordinary cinema. The new experiment may solve this problem; for, although it only gives the picture at secondhand, it does so almost immediately. It sounds practicable, but a good deal will depend on its cost.

Still Showing

"Roberta"—A musical film, in which there are some really fascinating dances by Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, as well as some excellent songs by Irene Dunne. At the Capitol (2nd week).

"Brewster's Millions"—Lively and tuneful, with Jack Buchanan supplying most of the comedy. At the Metropole (2nd week).

"The Scarlet Pimpernel"—A very good version of the novel, in which Leslie Howard takes the principal part. At the Grand Central (3rd week).

"Look Up and Laugh"—The latest Gracie Fields film. At the Theatre de Luxe.

"The Painted Veil"—Greta Garbo acts very well in this film, which is being shown at the Pavilion, Dun Laoghaire.

TWO "talks" of particular interest to many listeners in this country will be included in the Dublin, Athlone and Cork programme to-night. The first of these will be a continuation of the farmers' series by Mr. J. J. Bergin, in which he will discuss the "Fruit Industry," and show how the home market is spoiled for fruit by the three sections. The other "talk"—entitled "The Talking Book for the Blind"—will be given by Mr. J. P. Neary, Secretary of the Irish Association for the Blind, and will describe an interesting invention which enables blind persons to listen to a whole story of nearly half-an-hour's length without any change of record or interruption.

At 9 o'clock a novel feature is presented, when listeners will hear in the Irish programme "The Tuneful Tziganes," a specially organised band, in a selection of Tzigane music from Galicia, the Pyrenees, Arizona, Havana and elsewhere. The very characteristic and accentuated rhythm of these airs should be noted.

From the B.B.C. National and other British stations there are very few items of unusual interest in to-night's programmes. Those, however, who are pleased "to remember the Fifth of November" may "tune in" on the Midland programme at 9.15 a dramatic reconstruction of the famous Gunpowder Plot, entitled "Conspiracy in the Midlands." This conspiracy, which popular fancy mainly associates with Guy Fawkes, is linked to the Midlands by the name of his fellow-plotter, Robert Catesby, a Northamptonshire squire; and it was at his residence, Holbeach House, that the details of the abortive plot were mainly discussed.

Several attractive programmes are being transmitted from continental stations to-night. The recent centenary—celebrated on the 9th of last month—of the birth of the famous modern French composer, Charles Camille Saint Saëns, will be further commemorated by a concert of selected items from his compositions, which will be broadcast from Paris (Poste Parisien). The name of Saint Saëns is mainly associated by the general public with his opera, "Samson and Delila," and for that reason to-night's programme will very probably come as a revelation to many, since he composed half-a-dozen at least beside this, the most celebrated of his operas, as well as three symphonies, four symphonic poems, two orchestral suites, several concertos for piano and orchestra and violin and orchestra, as well as a considerable quantity of chamber music. During his lifetime Saint Saëns was one of the greatest living executants at the piano and organ, and in his works shows a consummate mastery, falling, perhaps, just a little short of absolute genius.

From Berlin to-night Richard Strauss will conduct an augmented station orchestra in their rendering of his symphony in F minor, Op. 12. From Vienna also comes an interesting item—a recital of Russian folk songs by the Orloff Don Cossack Choir.

R.D.S. RECITAL

THE ART OF MYRA HESS

The first of the present season's recitals of classical music at the Royal Dublin Society's premises, Ballsbridge, Dublin, was given yesterday by Myra Hess, the distinguished pianiste. Her reappearance in the series after an interval of some three years or so was very welcome, and, no doubt, accounted for the attendance of such a large audience, many of whom had pleasant memories of the player's achievement. The programme provided a searching test of the advance that Myra Hess had made in the intervening years. In no respect was that more evident than in her technique. One remembered her brilliance in that respect in past performances, and thought there was little room for improvement; but the years have brought to her such perfection of instrumental control that one cannot conceive, much less perceive, a flaw. She is superbly confident in her command of the keyboard and can extract from it an apparently unlimited gradation of tone and effect. In her opening group, which comprised the "Fantasia in C minor" and the "Partita No. 1 in B flat," of Bach, she gave a beautifully considered reading of the great master. In the fantasia one was greatly impressed with her fine sense of rhythm and her unhurried development of the theme. Both here and in the movements of the Partita there was admirable restraint, but, withal, no weakening in shading, the nuances being very delicately observed.

MISS MYRA HESS.

The advance that has been made by the player, however, was definitely proclaimed in her treatment of the big Beethoven Sonata, No. 111. There was a wonderful dramatic sense in her pronouncement of the opening of the Maestoso movement, but one realised that there was also real understanding. It was a moving canvas she painted, with almost bewildering tone-colours, until one was completely lost in the great work. The treatment of the Allegro movement, with its beautiful melody, was, one thought, pianoforte playing perfected until there came the finale section, with its singing theme, played with superb delicacy, only possible to one with such finished technique.

The Five Albumblatter, Op. 99, of Schumann, were soothing after the Beethoven; but then the player swept on to a great triumph in the monumental Brahms Variations and Fugue on a Theme of Handel. This was a prodigious piece of work, and it held the audience fascinated by the inexhaustible reserves, alike of composer and player, in the thematic development. One simply gave up any attempt at criticism and sat back enthralled.

At the night recital Miss Hess played the earlier Beethoven "Sonata in D minor (Op. 31, No. 2), four Intermezzos, by Brahms, and Schumann's "Etudes Symphoniques."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

DUBLIN CLUBS, ETC.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The only taverns or coffee houses I can trace in Castle street were the "Rose Tavern" and the "Orange Tree." However, quite close to these were the "Glibb," the "Sun" and the "Parrot." There was also Dalys in Dame street, the Royal Exchange in Cork Hill, "The Dublin" in Crampton Court, the "Four Courts" in Christ Church lane, "The Globe" in Essex street, and many others in the vicinity.—Yours, etc.,

LORD EDWARD'S COTTAGE

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In Campbell's "Life of Edward and Pamela Fitzgerald" there occurs a letter from Lord Edward to his mother describing in much detail his cottage residence in the town of Kildare. (First edition, Edwin Arnold, London, p. 70, dated June 23, 1794.)

It seems to have been a small white house, with gravel court and surrounded by large elms. Lord Edward describes it as situated on a kind of rampart of circular form and surrounded by a wall overlooking the Curragh.

Can any reader identify it now? From the context of another letter, dated January 23rd, it seems to have belonged to Mr. Conolly and to have been valued, furnished, at £300.—Yours, etc.,

"ANTIQUARIAN."

NEW UNIT OF VALUE

THE MOUNT STREET CLUB

DUBLIN ROTARIANS HELP WORKLESS

INCLUDING Major J. H. de W. Waller, who spoke on the subject, there were six Governors of the newly-established Mount Street Club present at the Dublin Rotary Club luncheon, held in the Metropole Restaurant yesterday. The members were: Messrs. P. T. Somerville-Large, chairman; C. H. C. Crampton, Master Builders' Association; D. Kellett, Merchant Drapers' Association; John T. Mohan, J. J. Newcome, and Major Waller.

The Mount Street Club, which will be formally opened to-day at 81 Lower Mount street, is, said Major Waller, a social, occupational and recreational club to cater for the needs of unemployed or casually employed men. The ruling principle of the club is to provide as many means as possible whereby the unemployed man may help himself. A man may obtain a meal, sole his boots, or do anything he likes for himself on the premises, or he may wish to read or play a game. In all directions the Mount Street Club provides a place to which the men may go, and the object is to get them out of a state of depression.

PAY BY WORKING

Every member of the club will pay for membership in the form of two hours' work per week. Meals, games, materials for occupational activities, etc., are paid for in the same way, the standard unit of exchange being one hour's service. Thus the members will pay for everything they get. Gifts for the benefit of the club will, however, be acceptable. But the club is not in any sense a charity. It will be managed by the members, subject to general control by the Governors. When one hour's service is given the worker will be given a Mount Street "tally." These "tallies" can be offered in payment for meals, games, etc. The club could get on splendidly at a cost of approximately £2,000 a year or less.

MAJOR J. H. WALLER.

It was a great privilege to enable men to get going again, and to be fit for a return to industry when industry was ready for them. This club was one of the finest in Dublin. It was no exaggeration to say that there had been spent on the building at least £3,000.

Mr. Walter Beckett, T.D., said that they could not but thank the team that had taken up this work. They were proud to have in Dublin a set of men willing to help those who could not help themselves. On behalf of Rotary, he wished the venture success, and pledged that club to help the Mount Street Club in every way it could.

Mr. Kevin Kenny asked if the trades union leaders had any objection to unemployed men paying for meals and club accommodation by labour.

Major Waller said that when permission to allow a certain group of men to work overtime was asked the trade union refused, but said that the club could employ them at night, provided they got no payment. While workrooms were provided it should be noted that the club did not allow men to make anything for sale, nor was it in the nature of an employment agency. For that reason support from the trade unions was absolutely secure.

The Chairman introduced visiting Rotarian John L. Woods, while among the non-Rotarian visitors present were Mrs. Charles McGloughlin and Mr. Eugene Davy, the Irish international Rugby player.

Mr. R. Keatinge presided in the absence through illness of Mr. Oswald Jamison, Chairman.

NATIONAL ART GALLERY REOPENS

The National Art Gallery, Merrion Square, Dublin, will reopen without any formality to-day. No new pictures have been purchased for some time, as there was no one to buy them between the period of Dr. Bodkin's retirement, and the recent arrival of the newly appointed director, Dr. George Furlong.

Neither has anything been done by way of redecorating the premises. It is understood that the Office of Public Works has the matter of renovation under consideration, and that something of this kind will be done at an early date.

The Pekingese green star and limit dog class was won by Lieutenant-Colonel R. H. St. Clair Robinson and Miss G. F. Betty with Yuan Mi at the Irish Terriers' Association Show in Dublin on Saturday last.

A purity of Tone that is AMAZING!

One hundred and eighty-six more persons were injured than in the previous year—1,254 in 1935, and 1,068 in 1934.

THE REV. M. TOBIAS

The Rev. M. Tobias, M.A., late Chaplain to the Forces, has been presented by the Lord Chancellor to the Vicarage of Shalford, Diocese of Guildford. The Rev. Mr. Tobias, Scholar, T.C.D., 1902, was at one time curate at Drumcondra, and was Chaplain to the Forces in Dublin from 1906 to 1909. He also served as Chaplain abroad and with the British Expeditionary Forces.

GOOD NEWS FOR STOMACH SUFFERERS

There is a letter-box in a model factory on the Great West Road that receives some of the most genuinely grateful letters that were ever penned. "Your powder saved me from an operation," says one. Another says, "I was really worried and anxious but your powder has made me fit and well again." From another: "But for your marvellous remedy I should not be here to-day."

The letters are from men and women of all ages who used to endure dreadful stomach trouble—some even had gastric and duodenal ulcers. The powder they praise so unstintingly is Maclean Brand Stomach Powder, the greatest reliever of stomach pains that has ever been invented.

Do you suffer from stomach trouble? Get rid of it! Take a few doses of Maclean Brand Stomach Powder, the one with the signature "ALEX C. MACLEAN" on the bottle, and soon you will feel you simply must tell your friends how good a standby Maclean Brand Stomach Powder has been to you. 1/6, 2/3 5/3 per bottle, powder or tablets.

"FOOLISH AND IRREGULAR"

ACCUSED MEN EXAMINED

CITY CONSPIRACY CHARGES

(BEFORE JUDGE SHANNON.)

THE hearing was resumed of the case in which the following are charged with conspiracy to defraud Messrs. Edward Lee and Co., Dublin:—Andrew Egan (former manager of the Dun Laoghaire branch of Lee's), Amiens street, Dublin; Ernest Poland, Upper Mount street; William Brereton, Mounttown, Dun Laoghaire; Miss Sheila O'Dowd, Carysfort road, Dalkey; Patrick J. Shiel, Upper Abbey street, and Patrick J. Roddy, North Circular road.

Mr. M. Maguire, K.C., and Mr. P. J. McEnery (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) prosecuted; Mr. J. Hooper (instructed by Mr. L. Trant McCarthy) appeared for Poland and Miss O'Dowd; Mr. D. Corbett (instructed by Mr. Trant McCarthy) for Brereton; Mr. B. McGuckin, K.C., and Mr. G. O'Sullivan (instructed by Messrs. Little O hUadhaigh and Proud) for Egan; Mr. J. Cawley (instructed by Mr. P. J. Smyth) for Shiel; Mr. V. Rice, K.C., and Mr. F. Sherry (instructed by Mr. M. A. Lynch) for Roddy.

Patrick Shiel, in cross-examination by Mr. McGuckin, said that in certain cases furniture was sent to the branches of the firm direct by the manufacturers.

Mr. McGuckin—In this case how were the prices fixed?

Witness—The prices were fixed in Abbey street.

Without anybody in Abbey street actually seeing the furniture?—I would not say that.

Are you aware that for a considerable period the Abbey street management—your management—was being blamed for the deficit in stock at Dun Laoghaire?—I never heard such a thing. How could I be blamed?

But you discussed the matter with Jackson and Poland?—I had chats with Jackson.

And with Poland?—No.

You saw Jackson more frequently than you saw Poland?—Yes.

Who sent Jackson to Poland for furniture?—I don't know.

BLAMED FOR SHORTAGE

Judge Shannon—When did it come to your knowledge that Abbey street was being blamed for the shortage in Dun Laoghaire? Witness—Not until I heard the statement read out in the District Court.

To Mr. Rice, K.C.,—At the meeting in the Moira Hotel Egan did not state the amount of the shortage at Dun Laoghaire. What Egan said was that he wanted £100 worth of furniture to make up a shortage at Dun Laoghaire.

Mr. Rice—At that interview did you hear that Jackson had £700 a year when he was at Messrs. Pim's? Witness—No.

Did it transpire then that Jackson was working for £3 a week in Dun Laoghaire?—I do not remember.

Judge Shannon—Who said at the interview that if Jackson could be got rid of all would be well? Witness—I believe it was Egan.

Patrick J. Roddy described an interview in the Moira Hotel, at which Egan said that his stock at Dun Laoghaire was short, and that as he was manager he was solely responsible. He wanted to put in the furniture at his own expense, and wanted to get it from witness at trade prices.

At this interview Egan said Jackson was causing a bit of trouble; and that he did not want the directors to know from Jackson that through his mis-management the stock had got into a mess. Egan asked witness to help in getting Jackson a better job, and he agreed to do so.

Subsequently £76 worth of furniture were sent out on Egan's order.

Mr. Rice—Had you the slightest idea that there was anything irregular in Mr. Egan's shortage of stock? Witness—I had no idea about his stock at all.

"A GOOD TURN"

Cross-examined by Mr. Maguire, Roddy said that he realised now that some of the transactions were foolish and irregular. He was fooled into sending the furniture.

In this matter of the £100 worth of furniture did you know that it was bought in order to bamboozle the directors of Messrs. Lee?—I was not aware of that.

Did you ask Egan whether this was a bona fide transaction or otherwise?—No; because of his position in Lee's I believed that Egan was above board.

You agreed to help Egan to get Jackson out of the way?—I am afraid so.

Without making any inquiries about Jackson?—Well, yes. I was trying to do a good turn for Egan.

To Mr. Rice—I always understood that Egan was endeavouring to replace goods which had become missing or had gone astray at Dun Laoghaire. I gave the goods on deferred terms, but later I put the matter for collection into the hands of my solicitor. They were paid for this year through my solicitor.

Mr. E. S. Lee, director and secretary of Messrs. Edward Lee and Company, was recalled. He said that he was quite satisfied there was no dishonesty at the head office in 1932, and that £767 was the difference in the profits for the six months January-July, 1932, as compared with the preceding six months.

The prisoner Egan was recalled and questioned about cheques which he said he had paid to Messrs. Lee in connection with hire-purchase monthly instalments collected by him. He agreed with Mr. Maguire that between March 30th and September 6th, 1930, there were no cheques referable to these instalments. He added that he paid by cheque and cash, and for nearly ten months of 1930 was paying in his own monthly salary cheques to his firm.

Mr. Maguire—Then how did you live during those ten months?—I got the money back, of course.

Mr. Maguire—In 1931, with the exception of one cheque dated 2nd September, there is no cheque produced which corresponds with the 1st or 2nd of the month, when you would be making these payments as they fell due?—Some of the payments were made in cash.

SIX CHEQUES

There are only six cheques for the whole year 1932. Why is that?—That is all the cheques I had the opportunity to produce.

Judge Shannon—You had from June to October to go through all your cheques.

Egan—I did not know these payments were disputed.

To another question, Egan said that he was not aware of any forged hire-purchase agreements; he had certainly paid in these moneys already.

For the whole of the year 1933, too, any account you did square was squared from your own salary?—Yes.

There was no cheque drawn in that year on the 1st or 2nd of the month that could be referable to the squaring of these accounts?—Any such cheque would only be supplemental to my own salary.

To further questions, Egan agreed that 23 cheques were missing from one book of 50, and 22 from a book of 25. He said that he would produce these. He had only brought those made out to Messrs. Lee; his brother had taken away the others, and he could not see his brother in court.

Mr. V. Rice, K.C., on behalf of Roddy, and Mr. B. McGuckin, on behalf of Egan, addressed the jury.

The Court adjourned until to-day at 11 a.m.

BALROTHERY WORKHOUSE TO BE ABOLISHED

The old workhouse at Balrothery is to be abolished. That is the effect of a decision which was taken at a meeting of the Balrothery Board of Assistance yesterday. Mr. P. J. Fogarty, Co. C., who moved a resolution providing for the abolition of the workhouse, said that he had suggested to the inter-departmental Committee on Public Works that the material obtained from the demolished building should be used for building or road making purposes.

The Secretary (Mr. P. J. Murphy) said that the County Surveyor had informed him that he would be prepared to proceed with the demolition work in the coming financial year.

It was decided to notify the L.G.D. of the Board's decision.

Mr. H. M. Dardis (chairman) presided.

KILKENNY MAN SENT TO JAIL

TWO OTHER MEN CHARGED

ALLEGED PLAN OF ARBOUR HILL

THOMAS QUINN, Garrygaugh, Co. Kilkenny, was sentenced by the Military Tribunal, sitting at Collins Barracks yesterday, to twelve months' imprisonment for being a member of an unlawful association for promoting and encouraging the commission of offences; membership of an unlawful association for promoting the possession of firearms among its members; and for possession of four cartridges.

He was found not guilty of charges of being in possession of a shot-gun, and of maiming a cow, the property of George Frisby.

He was later sentenced to a further three months' imprisonment for contempt of Court in refusing to answer questions as a witness in a case in which two other men were charged.

It was alleged by the defence at the previous day's hearing that the accused man received a considerable quantity of drink before making a statement in Waterford barracks. The Court held that this point would have to be decided on first.

Mr. J. A. McCarthy, K.C. (instructed by Mr. J. S. O'Connor, Solicitor to the Attorney-General) prosecuted, and Mr. W. L. Duggan, Tullow, defended.

Sergeant Liddane stated that no drink was produced, and it would be untrue to state that the accused was given a considerable quantity of drink. He was perfectly sober. He signed a statement in the presence of the Superintendents.

In reply to Mr. McCarthy, witness said that the accused man, in the first statement, said that he was a member of the Blue Shirt organisation; that Cuddihy asked him for cartridges, and he gave him some No. 4 Eley; that he did not agree with the shooting of the cow, and, had he known, he would not have given the cartridges. In the second statement the accused man said that young Cuddihy told him he wanted a few cartridges to shoot Frisby's cow. He gave him three or four.

Superintendent E. O'Riordan, Thomastown, said that he saw no sign of drink on the prisoner.

Superintendent Kilroy said that the shotgun (produced), which he found in the house of Richard Tovey, smelt of powder. There were no facilities in the barracks for a person to get liquor.

Edward Ryan, Milltown, an employé of Richard Tovey, stated that he saw Thomas Quinn, Michael Grogan and John Cuddihy sitting at the kitchen fire in Tovey's house. Tovey's gun was hanging up. Those men were often in Tovey's house at night.

A COW SHOT

Michael Doyle, Milltown, for the defence, said that on the night Frisby's cow was shot he was at the house of the prisoner at about 6.30 old time. An hour later he and the prisoner left the house on bicycles for the house of Mrs. Mullally. They arrived at 7.50 and remained until 11 p.m.

Mrs. Mary Coughlan, who resides with Mrs. Mullally, said that the prisoner and Michael Doyle arrived at the house on the night of September 27th around 8 p.m. and remained there until about 10.40.

The President said that in regard to the statements, which were admitted without prejudice, no evidence had been produced to support the allegations made by the prisoner. Superintendent Hunt had given evidence that the accused man had previously been convicted by the Tribunal for tree-felling and road obstruction. He had been sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment in default of his giving bail for future good behaviour.

John Cuddihy, Milltown, Piltown, Co. Kilkenny, and Michael Brogan, same place, were charged on seven counts with being members of an unlawful association to promote and encourage the commission of offences, and the possession of firearms; being in possession of three cartridges without holding a firearms certificate; with the possession of a shotgun, and with maiming a cow.

PLAN OF ARBOUR HILL

Mr. J. A. McCarthy, S.C., who prosecuted, said that there was a serious aspect to this case, in that a plan of Arbour Hill, marking a line of escape, was in possession of the accused man, Michael Brogan, and there was also in his possession a plan of a house of a man named Kinane, who was shot and seriously injured in the County Tipperary in the early portion of this year, and in respect of which a person had already been convicted.

Edward Ryan, employed by Tovey, at Miltown, said that Tovey had a single-barrelled shotgun, and the last time he saw cartridges in the house was last summer twelve months. About eighteen months ago he saw Cuddihy with the gun. On the night of September 22 Michael Brogan, John Cuddihy, and Thomas Quinn were in Tovey's house. They stayed two hours, and Cuddihy and Quinn left together, Brogan following. On the following Sunday evening Cuddihy and Brogan were at the house at about 4 o'clock. He was sent at about 6 p.m. with Mary Tovey to milk the cows, and when he came back Brogan was not there. Witness saw them again at the house at 8.30 p.m. He made a statement to the Garda.

Mr. McCarthy asked the Court to treat the witness as hostile, because in that statement he had said that he did not see Brogan from the time Cuddihy and Brogan left on Sunday evening until he was coming from the creamery on Monday evening.

The President of the Court decided to treat the witness as hostile.

"A BIG BLUESHIRT"

The witness said that John Murphy, "a big Blueshirt," from Clounassey, Brogan and Cuddihy asked him to tell the Tribunal that Brogan had been in Tovey's house on the night in question. On the following Tuesday morning he met Cuddihy, who told him that Quinn and Brogan had been arrested, and asked witness to say that he (Cuddihy) was in Tovey's house on the Sunday evening and never left. Witness said to Cuddihy: "All right, I will not let you down."

Mr. McCarthy—Is that a lie invented by you?—Yes.

Superintendent Riordan, Thomastown, described a search of Richard Tovey's house, and the finding in Brogan's room there of a plan of Kinnane's house, a plan of Arbour Hill prison, a letter addressed to a Captain P. Quinn, and referring to Garda officers; a letter which referred to an "advance" on Castlemorris, and a letter, in which the Superintendent of the Garda at Thomastown was mentioned.

Superintendent Kilroy, Waterford, said that he interrogated Cuddihy, and the only questions he answered were those dealing with his name and address.

SENTENCE FOR CONTEMPT

Thomas Quinn was then called as a witness, and, on entering the witness box, said: "I refuse to be sworn."

The President warned him that if he refused to be sworn and refused to give evidence he would be guilty of contempt of court, and it was only fair that he should know it.

When the Book was again proffered to Quinn he refused to accept it, and the Tribunal found him guilty of contempt of court and sentenced him to three months' imprisonment, in addition to the sentence that had been imposed on him during the day.

Quinn was removed shouting "Up Cronin!" and "Long Live the Blueshirts!"

The Tribunal adjourned until this morning.

CARTERS' DISPUTE

It was announced by the Dublin trade unions last night that the deputation in connection with the carters' dispute would be received at the offices of the Department of Industry and Commerce this morning at 11 o'clock.

RELIEF WORK IN DUBLIN

CITY MANAGER TO SPEND £27,900

PLIGHT OF COTTAGE TENANTS

DUBLIN Corporation, at its meeting last night, authorised the City Manager to incur an expenditure up to £27,900 to cover the cost of the materials necessary in connection with works to relieve unemployment, for which a Government grant had been made available.

Mr. Martin O'Sullivan, moving the resolution, said that since 1930 the Corporation, by voting such sums, had carried out very useful work by giving employment. He suggested that the large industrial concerns, such as Messrs. Guinness, should engage a limited number of men for the time being. An example thus would be set for smaller firms and individuals.

Mr. Cahill seconded the resolution.

A deputation of women tenants of Coady's Cottages, East Wall, was received by the Corporation in regard to the state of their dwellings.

Mrs. Birmingham said that on last Friday night all the tenants had remained up all night bailing out water which had flooded the buildings.

Mrs. Tipping said that she had six children living in a flagged apartment in a two-roomed cottage. "I do not know what it is like to sleep all night. I have three children ill, and there are neighbours like me."

The Lord Mayor promised that the question would be considered.

A deputation from the Irish Unemployed Workers' Union, which also was received, urged the members to do all in their power to help the unemployed.

The Lord Mayor promised to look into the matter.

DOCTOR'S PROTEST

In regard to the appointment of a resident medical superintendent at Crooksling Sanatorium, a letter was received from the Minister for Local Government and Public Health. The letter stated that a deputation to the Minister on the matter could not be received, as the questioning of any act of the Local Appointments Commission was not a matter in which the Minister had functions.

Dr. Hannigan said that it seemed that anyone who tried to expose a public scandal in connection with the Appointments Commission was regarded by people in authority as a public enemy number one. He regarded the Minister's refusal to receive a deputation as a gross insult to the Corporation.

The Lord Mayor pointed out that the Minister had stated that it was not a matter in which he could interfere, and it was agreed to insert the letter on the minutes.

FINED FOR POACHING

From Our Correspondent.

GALWAY, Monday.

How two Connemara men hired a car in Galway and fished Cashlea river with a salmon net and lights, catching nine salmon, was told at Spiddal District Court to-day, when John Ridge and Peter Coyne, Derroe, were charged with illegally fishing the river, and the driver of the car, N. Duffy, and his companion, P. Higgins, Galway, were charged with aiding and abetting. Justice Sean Mac Giollarnaith imposed fines of £3 on each of the defendants, with £2 costs.

Sergeant Sullivan, Inverin, stated that after midnight he saw a car on the side of the road, with two men asleep in it. He took the men out and waited in the car. At about 4 o'clock Ridge came over the side of the hill to the car, and Coyne arrived soon afterwards. When dawn came witness went to the river and found two bags, one containing a net and the other containing nine salmon.

FUNERAL OF MRS. M. KENNY

The death took place on 29th October of Mrs. M. Kenny, Portumna. The large cortège which accompanied the remains to the cemetery testified to the esteem in which she was held. The chief mourners were:—Michael Kenny (husband), Bridget, Lena and Patricia (daughters), Edward, Laurence and Patrickk (brothers), May (sister), Thomas and Vincent Kenny (brothers-in-law), Mrs. Madden (sister-in-law). The general public was well represented. Wreaths were sent by her sister May, Mrs. Madden, Mrs. Flannery and family, Mr. and Mrs. Cashel, Mrs. Lumnerly, and several others. The Right Rev. Monsignor Joyce and Father Larkin officiated at the graveside.

EDUCATION OF ENGINEERS

VIEWS AT DUBLIN MEETING

THE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL

INTERESTING suggestions for improvement in engineering education in Ireland were put forward by Mr. J. J. Morrissey, B.E., at an ordinary general meeting of the Institution of Civil Engineers of Ireland, which was held at 35 Dawson street, Dublin, last night, Mr. N. O'Dwyer, B.E., President of the Institution, presiding.

In the course of the paper, Mr. Morrissey said that, in view of the present expansion of industry in Ireland, the problem of obtaining Irish nationals with suitable qualifications to manage and administer industrial enterprises had become acute. This was particularly the case when it was required to fill positions requiring specialised technical knowledge, and they had been compelled to import foreign experts to tide them over the transition stage necessarily occurring between two distinct periods in the industrialisation of the country. That the problem of supplying suitable human material to meet the country's needs raised the question of the education and training of technical workers in Ireland, was inevitable. There could hardly be any doubt that a prospective engineer who had the opportunity of obtaining his technical education at a university was very fortunate. That such an education was a necessity did not at all follow, since there were many eminent members of the engineering profession who had not graduated from engineering schools of university standards, and although their number was diminishing under the present conditions of industrial competition, it was by no means negligible.

After reviewing the nature of the courses of study open in the Irish universities to a student desirous of becoming a mechanical or electrical engineer, Mr. Morrissey said that in one respect such a student was fortunate in Ireland, because the fees in no case exceeded £100 for a complete course. When the various valuable scholarships offered by local councils and city corporations were taken into consideration, together with the prizes and exhibitions to be gained in the engineering schools, it would be seen that a clever student who did not possess much of the world's goods was under no handicap as regards pursuing a university course in engineering science. He was, indeed, more fortunate than the student in many Continental countries.

HAZY IDEAS

Many students entered and passed through our engineering schools with very hazy ideas as to what the life of an engineer really meant. That state of affairs was much less noticeable in foreign countries, due to the greater industrialisation of those countries and the consequent closer contact of students with industrial life. From this point of view there was much to commend the practice of students spending one year in an engineering works before entering a university, and this plan was extensively adopted abroad. While the ambitious scheme of applying a psychological test to students might not be immediately possible in Ireland, much could be done towards the same ends by the more general employment of interviews of candidates for admission to an engineering school.

The main function of a university engineering school should be to teach the student the fundamental bases of engineering science, but how far it should be allowed to overstep this limitation was debatable. Workshop practice and machine drawing were very probably the two subjects most hotly debated by the upholders of the old tradition and the iconoclasts of the new school, but it must be said that their importance in the scheme of university education for mechanical and electrical engineers had diminished during recent years.

He would suggest the addition of several subjects to each programme, and would put forward a plea for more flexibility in these programmes by the provision of some optional subjects. A course in economics would be a great advantage to senior students, as also would be a series of lectures dealing with legal questions of importance to engineers. The question of research was also important both for graduates and undergraduates.

A SUGGESTION

He would suggest that the Electricity Supply Board and the railway companies and other concerns of similar standing could readily absorb a large percentage of their mechanical and electrical engineering students during vacation time. The expense incurred in employing such men would not be very great, and after a short period they would be well worth their wages.

If some of their firms would arrange to take a number of foreigners, it would be a simple matter to place a corresponding number of Irish students with firms abroad, both during vacation time and after graduation. The advantage of continental technical experience would be supplemented by the training acquired in foreign language and the general educative value of spending some time in a foreign country.

The Free State Government, by giving grants to selected graduates to enable them to go abroad and obtain experience in these branches of Irish industry which at the moment were being directed by foreigners, would be doing both the students and the country a great service.

In opening the meeting the President said that it was not their desire to dictate to the University authorities. It was clearly the duty of the Institution, representing as it did the engineering profesison, to inform the University authorities of their views, but further than that he was sure nobody would wish to go.

ELECTIONS

The certificates of the following candidates for admission to the Institution were read and the members elected:—Edgar Craven Bredin, M.I.Mech.E., Mount Vernon, Inchicore, Dublin (member); Michael Hamill, B.E., Ferbane, Offaly (associate member); Anthony Harkin, M.E., A.M.I.E.E., 17 Beaumount road, Dublin (associate member); Joseph Michael Patrick Higgins, B.E., B.Sc., A.R.C.Sc.I., 6 Gilford avenue, Sandymount, Dublin (associate member); Edward J. MacLaughlin, 9 Bedford terrace, Sandycove, County Dublin (associate member); Wilfred Nelson, B.Sc., Derry road, Omagh, County Tyrone (associate member); Thomas J. O'Donovan, A.R.C.Sc.I., 1 Gibraltar terrace, Strand, Youghal (associate member); Michael Joseph O'Sullivan, B.E., Casey's Cross, Pouladuff road, Cork (associate member); David Sheedy, B.E., 28 Grosvenor terrace, John's Hill, Waterford (member); John Fogarty, B.E., County Council offices, Clonmel (associate member).

A lecture was given last night on "Some Early Dublin Newspapers," at the weekly meeting of the Old Dublin Society, by Mr. Frank Kelly, chairman of the Bibliographical Society.

IRISH SALON OF PHOTOGRAPHY

IMPRESSIVE STUDIES

MANY prints of high artistic merit are displayed in the Irish Salon of Photography, at the Mansion House, Dublin, which will remain open to the public until next Saturday.

In some of the Continental prints of shaded subjects, a translucent light of beautiful quality is shown against the backgrounds, a difficult effect to produce, and not often seen in the case of photographs taken in Great Britain or Ireland.

Mr. A. H. Blew has a striking subject in "Wind-etched Sand" (No. 12). The Japanese influence appears in the Czechoslovakian picture, "Der Sommer," which is very pleasing. A modernistic tendency is demonstrated in "Gables" (64), from an English competitor.

BELGIAN PICTURES

Two Belgian pictures of note are 90 and 92. In the former there is a fine mellow quality of light in which the shadows are thrown out. In "Tranquillity" (97) Mr. Will Till, South Africa, proves that in that country there is a special school of photography. This is further shown in (127), "Through Sands and Shallows," in which a beautiful sky is depicted. In (131) a snow-bank picture from Austria, one is made to realise what portions of that country are like.

A December mist among the trees is well portrayed by Victor Guidalevitch, Belgium, in (138) a high key picture of great merit. From Hungary comes a remarkable photo (217) of geese, with wings partly outspread, running down a sloping lane, with a halo of light behind them. This won a silver medal. The crying boy with tears on his cheeks is another clever Hungarian study. A black cat against a black ground forms the subject of (No. 243) "Concentration," by Mr. Oliver J. Berg, U.S.A. This is a work of art, and may be said to fascinate the onlooker.

There are not so many portraits on a large scale as usual, but the quality of the portraits is exceptionally high.

In the nature class, E. Pringault, France, won the silver medal with his unusual portrait of a dragon fly. This is remarkable, not only from a natural history point of view, but as a picture. The Dublin Zoological Gardens are represented by well-taken pictures of a lion and leopards. Radiographs of fuchsia and chestnut leaves result in wonderfully decorative designs, apart from their purely scientific value. These are 594 and 595, by Mr. R. M. Leman, from somewhere in Ireland.

Colour photography, lantern slides and transparencies also make an interesting display.

A section of the salon has been set aside for displaying a collection of rejected prints, chosen simply for the purpose of displaying the national characteristics of each country competing.

HOME EXHIBITORS

The class confined to Irish photographers at home or abroad is notable for the tremendous improvement in the quality of the work entered as compared with previous salons.

Mr. John J. Horgan, Cork, reminds us of "Holidays" (334), showing bathing togs hanging in a window and sand-shoes on the window-sill. In this he was apparently influenced by the American school.

The O'Mahony, T.D., won a bronze medal with his realistic study of "Winter Sunlight" (401), in which light and shade are beautifully blended. Another pleasing study in light and shadow is shown in "Mellifont Abbey" (416), by Mr. A. V. Henry. Sir Basil Goulding, Bart., has three notable pictures suggesting speed and modernity (429 to 431). Mr. J. McCabe's portrait of Miss K. O'Shaughnessy is remarkable for the fact that the original was taken by a modern miniature camera about one inch by one and a half. It won the William Harding Memorial Gold Medal.

"A Bective Farmyard" (463), by Mr. H. M. Dockrell, T.D., is a pleasing photo reminiscent of the Dutch school. Mr. T. H. A. Scanlan's "Summer Sky" (466), is a simple little study which pleases the eye. "Lincoln, City of Old Romance," is depicted in a charming manner by Mr. Alec R. Day, while a striking portrait study of John Keating, R.H.A., is entered by Lafayette.

MAYOR OF SLIGO RESIGNS

HIGH COURT ACTION SEQUEL

From Our Correspondent.

SLIGO, Monday.

Alderman Michael Nevin, at the termination of a meeting of Sligo Corporation to-day, announced his resignation from the position of Mayor.

"It is my duty," he said, "to report to the Council that, since presiding at the monthly meeting, I have been adjudicated a bankrupt on the petition of Mr. Frank Carty, T.D., arising out of my financial inability to discharge to him the costs incurred in a High Court action brought by me in vindication of my public reputation. It was impossible for me to dicharge this legal debt, and this fact was well within the knowledge of Deputy Carty and his advisers, as I extended to them every facility to examine my financial affairs.

"Before the so-termed civil war," the Mayor continued, "I possessed a prosperous business, but on my release from prison I returned a ruined man. Since then I have been struggling to recover that which I lost owing to adherence to principles."

Alderman Fallon said that, speaking on behalf of the Fine Gael members, he deeply regretted the resignation of the Mayor, whom they had always found straightforward and courteous.

Councillor S. Gallagher, speaking as leader of the National Co-operative Blue Shirts in the county, said that all the members of the Council were doomed. They should all resign in sympathy with the Mayor.

Mr. Sean O'Higgins, Town Clerk, having expressed personal regret at the Mayor's resignation, said it was necessary for three members to sign the statutory notice declaring the office vacant.

Councillor Gallagher said no member would sign it.

After some discussion two Fianna Fail members—Councillors William J. Toland and Michael Hughes—appended their names to the declaration, but a third signature was not forthcoming.

The Town Clerk said he would have to get into touch with the Department.

THE RAILWAYS BILL, 1935

G.S. STOCK AS TRUSTEE INVESTMENT

The Railways Bill, which was introduced in the Dail by Mr. Lemass, Minister for Industry and Commerce, on Thursday last, was circulated yesterday. Its chief provisions are to extend the period during which the Stocks of the Great Southern Railways Company may be used for the investment of trust or court moneys. The Act of 1933 authorised the investment of such moneys in the company's Stocks up to the 31st December, 1935, "whether the company does, or does not, pay a dividend at the rate of 3 per cent. on its Ordinary Stock." The new bill extends the period from the same conditions to the 31st December, 1937. For the purposes of the Trustee Act, 1893, the company shall be deemed to have paid a dividend at the rate of 1 per cent. per annum on its Ordinary Stock in respect of each financial year ended after 30th November, 1932, and before 1st January, 1938, and in which the company, in fact, paid on its Ordinary Stock either no dividend or a dividend at a rate of less than 1 per cent. per annum.

While flying at the mouth of Cowes Harbour yesterday, the huge flying boat, Sarafand, belonging to the Royal Air Force based at Calshot, struck the water with such force that she drove a big hole in her bottom and had to be beached off the East Cowes Esplanade. The Sarafand, which was commanded by Flight-Lieutenant Abrahams, and carried a crew of twelve, is stated to be the largest military flying boat in the world.

AFFAIRS OF DUBLIN JEWELLER

EXAMINATION IN BANKRUPTCY

From Our Correspondent.

LONDON, Monday.

In the London Bankruptcy Court to-day, the public examination was held, before Mr. Registrar Mellor, of Joseph Thyman Shribman, who failed on January 3 last, having formerly carried on business as a dealer in watches and jewellery in South Great George's street, Dublin.

According to his statement of affairs his gross liabilities amount to £21,224. Of these £19,330 are expected to rank for dividend, and his assets, apart from an interest of uncertain realisable value in a former partnership, are estimated at £1,895.

Mr. Eustace Fulton, appointed on behalf of the Trustee in Bankruptcy, and Mr. N. Laski, K.C. (with whom was Mr. G. F. Kingham), and Mr. Holland represented the creditors.

Examined by Mr. Bruce Park, Official Receiver, the debtor said that he was born in Poland, but left there in 1910, and for the next nine years travelled in Ireland dealing in watches and jewellery. In 1922 he became a subject of the Irish Free State. Three years before he had begun business in partnership under the title of Ellison and Shribman as wholesale jewellers in Limerick. In 1920, however, his partner retired, and he (debtor) continued the business alone in his own name. After 1924 his premises were in South William street, Dublin.

DUTY ON WATCHES

He incurred losses as the result of the imposition of a duty on imported foreign watches. Afterwards watches became cheaper. He had accumulated a large stock, and in 1926 he failed, paying a composition by instalments out of his takings of 10s. in the pound. His liabilities then amounted to £10,000. the final instalment being paid about the end of 1927. He continued trading, and after 1928 his business premises were in South Great George's street, Dublin. There he continued business until 1932. In March of that year the business was transferred to the Swiss Watch Company (Limited), a company formed with his knowledge, although he did not form it. As consideration he received £2,500, paid in shares of the company. In February last the company went into liquidation, and he accordingly lost the value of his shareholding.

The debtor further stated that he had been also interested in a business carried on in London as the Fountain Watch Company. In 1931 that business was sold to a company which had, however, also liquidated last February. He attributed his insolvency to losses in connection with companies in which he had been interested, and to other causes.

The examination was concluded.

KNOCKBEG COLLEGE UNION ANNUAL DANCE

In addition, there will be novelty dances and spot prizes. The tickets are strictly limited, but some are still available, as will be seen from our advertisement columns, and can be obtained from the hon. secretary, J. V. DALKEY-DUN LAOGHAIRE TRAM SERVICES

A letter from the Dun Laoghaire Branch of the Irish Labour Party was read at last night's meeting of the Dun Laoghaire Corporation protesting against what was feared to be a curtailment of the tramway services between Dalkey and Dun Laoghaire, and an extension of the 'bus services, which, it was contended, meant an increased cost to workers. It was decided that the Borough Manager should discuss the matter with the Dublin United Tramways Company.

The reconstructed Danish Cabinet following the recent general election, which resulted in a Governmental majority, was announced last night. M. Stauning remains Prime Minister, but he relinquishes the post of Minister for National Defence. There are six new members.

Italy's Offensive

In spite of all the rumours concerning "peace moves" at Geneva and elsewhere, the great Italian offensive in Abyssinia is reported to have begun. Reports from all sources are notoriously untrustworthy; but it seems that the Italian General Staff has decided, after all, to concentrate its main efforts on the Southern front, and to make its "big push" along the valley of the Webbe Shibeli River. During the last few weeks General de Bono has been transferring troops in conditions of the utmost secrecy from the Northern front to the South, apparently following the example of the German High Command in 1914, when it sent several valuable divisions from France to East Prussia; but in this case, of course, the situation is vastly different. General Graziani, who is the most highly experienced and most capable leader on the Italian side, is in charge of operations in the South. He is trying to complete an encircling movement which will result in the capture, or annihilation, of a large Abyssinian army, estimated at some 14,000 men, which is concentrated in the hills around Sasa Baneh. To that end he has been obtaining substantial reinforcements through the closed port of Mogadishu, in Italian Somaliland, and his engineers have been working night and day at the task of road-building. Several fairly good roads now have been built from the coast to the front, which at the moment stretches for about sixty miles along the line Wal Wal-Geroglubi-Dolo. Troops are being hurried to the scene of operations by means of motor lorries, and General Graziani is supplied with numerous tanks and armoured cars. He has a large body of native troops who know the country reasonably well, and are experts in guerrilla warfare; but the terrain is unusually difficult, water is scarce, and the problem of supplies is giving General Graziani's commissariat department considerable trouble. In the North there has been a general advance towards Makale. It is reported that no fewer than 126,000 Italian troops are engaged in this sector; but hitherto they have met with little or no resistance from the Abyssinians, who are biding their time with unexpected patience. They evidently are prepared to defend Makale, and the two local Rases, Kassa and Seyoum, have been consolidating their positions in the neighbouring mountains. The Italians, with admirable prudence, are taking few chances; and we learn that the advance is being made in the first instance by native troops, "followed by tanks."

Signor Mussolini obviously cares less than nothing for foreign opinion. He is determined to fulfil his ambitions in Abyssinia, and is prepared to defy the entire world in the process. There is talk now of an extension of sanctions, involving the co-operation of certain countries which are not members of the League, and it is possible that Italy may be cut off almost completely from her sources of supply in respect of coal, iron and oil. Even this prospect does not seem to worry the Duce. The British Ambassador in Rome has informed the home Government that Signor Mussolini is impervious to any form of pressure that may be brought to bear on him, and the astonishing outburst of his son-in-law, Count Ciano, who boasted to the United States of Italy's capacity for hatred, does not encourage the hope that her leader may be brought to a sense of reason. The League Powers must be prepared for a long and embittered struggle against a man who will stop at nothing to gain his ends. If Germany and one or two other countries remain outside the ring of nations that are imposing sanctions, Italy may be able to carry on her campaign for an almost indefinite period; but, of course, in the meanwhile her people will be reduced to serious straits, and the ill-feeling which already has been engendered between her and the League Powers—particularly Great Britain—will be intensified a hundred-fold. The possibilities of trouble in other parts of Africa cannot be overlooked. Signor Mussolini's agents in Somaliland are playing an exceedingly dangerous game. They have managed to suborn the four sons of the "Mad Mullah," of unhappy memory, and are "educating" them privately in order that, when the time comes, they may be able to go into Abyssinia and convince the tribesmen of the blessings of Italian rule. If the plan works out according to Signor Mussolini's ideas, all may be well; but, if the "Mad Mullah's" offspring are anything like their late lamented father, their love for the white man is, to say the least of it, dubious. We fear that Signor Mussolini may be creating a Frankenstein's monster in the African Continent. Whatever happens in Abyssinia, the coloured population in other parts of Africa are bound to become discontented, and very serious consequences may ensue. The position at present is a complete dilemma. If Italy should win in Abyssinia, there almost certainly will be another world war in a few years; if she should fail, the problem of the coloured race in Africa will begin to assume the most alarming proportions.

The Corporation's Protest

Frankly, we are delighted that the Dublin Corporation has lost patience at last. Having made up its mind to persevere with the Poulaphouca scheme of water supply, it is justly indignant that the Electricity Supply Board declines to reach a decision concerning the scheme's electrical aspects. A motion was debated at last night's meeting protesting strongly against the E.S.B.'s irresolution, and hinting that a result of any further delay might be the stoppage of water supplies to the Pigeon House steam plant. Whether the threat could be made good is doubtful; but the spirit which inspires it is admirable. Common-sense and the good of Dublin alike require that the E.S.B. shall play its part. As a source of water for the city's consumption the Poulaphouca scheme has enormous advantages over any other. As a source of electrical current its value has been demonstrated a hundred times over by the most competent engineers in the country. Useful, however, as the scheme may be from either aspect, it gains immeasurably in utility when the two functions are combined. If the Electricity Supply Board refuses to co-operate in the scheme, it commits itself, instead, to the further development of the Shannon; and the opinion of all disinterested experts—not to mention the expert who was chiefly responsible for the Shannon project—is opposed to that course. A flat refusal to join with the Corporation is difficult to conceive; but harder still to understand is the Board's delay of a decision. There has been time enough, in all conscience, to study the problem. The Board promised to have its mind made up in March of last year, and nobody will believe that all the pertinent facts and figures are not at its finger-ends. One of two courses are open to Mr. Browne and his colleagues. They have a right either to accept the Poulaphouca scheme without further hesitation, confident that they will obtain thereby the approval and good-will of every intelligent citizen, or to issue a full and frank statement of the real reasons for their inexplicable delay. Oherwise, the city hardly can be blamed if it puts its own construction on the affair, and if that construction does not redound to the Board's entire credit.

The excuses which have been proferred for this persistent shelving of a decision do not carry conviction. We are told that the Board does not wish to incur such expenditure as the scheme involves. It is a fair answer—but not fair enough. Even if the entire burden of the Poulaphouca scheme should fall on the Board's shoulders, would that burden be so very much heavier than the combined cost of further Shannon development and of reorganisation of the Pigeon House? Moreover, whatever the capital cost may be, it is recognised that further development of the Shannon would be a mistake; and to perpetuate the Pigeon House system of generation, while the Liffey can provide an inexhaustible supply of water-power, would be, at the least, counter to the Free State's economic doctrine. The contrast between the alternatives can be given in a few words. The Liffey scheme, according to all engineers who matter, is an economic project; the Shannon-Pigeon House plan is uneconomic, and Ireland will have to pay dearly for it in the long run. Even less satisfactory is the Board's second excuse. Is it a fact that the Board sees no need to increase its output of electricity until 1943 or 1944? Has it taken cognisance of various facts and probabilities—that the Free State's industrial development is advancing rapidly, that substantial schemes of housing are in process or in contemplation, that a time is approaching when the problem of Dublin's civic lighting must be faced squarely, and that the only solution will be a wholesale remodelling of the whole system? Is it not also a fact that numerous areas of the twenty-six counties are still without electric light or power, and that, until those areas shall have been supplied, the E.S.B. cannot dare to retard production? We urge upon the E.S.B. the same advice which we have urged upon so many public bodies in the Free State. Its business is not merely to satisfy the demands of this year and of next year, but to fix its eyes upon the conditions of ten years ahead.

Ras Eden

The Italians regard Ethiopia's pitch-black hordes in a protective and friendly spirit. They understand that the Ethiopians for the moment are ferociously "anti-civilisation," showing a pronounced aversion from the delights of Italian culture, and carving rapidly into strips any warrior of the Duce's who comes to hand; but this unreasonable attitude, they feel, is the product of an unthinking prejudice that soon will vanish beneath the lash of the Italian foreman's whip. If the Ethiopians, in fact, only would allow themselves to be got at, the crusaders in a few weeks would have the whole nation, black faces above black shirts, chanting Giovinezza in sweet harmony, and the native chorals, with their piercing and undignified squeaks, would be forgotten for ever. Everything, therefore, on the African front is brotherhood and love, with swift, merciful, and not always agonising, oblivion for those who refuse to play. The real war is being waged in Europe, where the people of Italy are preparing to sell their lives dearly in the face of a furious onslaught by the gravely outnumbered, but, nevertheless, dangerous, Mr. Anthony Eden. They have lumped him in with the more retrogressive element in Africa, and refer to him in Press communications as "Ras" Eden. There are, admittedly, a number of thoughtful and good Rases in Ethiopia, notably Ras (Better 'Ole) Gugsa; but we feel that Mr. Eden's honorary title does not grant him relationship with them. "Ras," in the case of Mr. Eden, clearly has the significance of "Enemy of Italy." It is a curious position. The Ethiopians, who creep about in the grass and shoot breakfasting Italians, are looked upon as loyal, but misguided, subjects; while Mr. Eden, doing all that he can to cut short the slaughter, is accounted a serious menace to peace in the Palazzo Chigi. They even object to his hat. In future any citizen who wears a replica of Mr. Eden's rather tricky black Homburg may find his hat removed at the neck, and in a night the hatters of Rome have spirited from their windows all specimens of this head-dress. It is profoundly fortunate that Mr. Eden's shirts seem to be uniformly white; for he need only wear a black one for a day to upset the whole shirting arrangements of Fascism.

A Novel Club

The State can relieve some of the physical misery that follows unemployment, but lack of work means more than the need for food and clothing. It means that a man has nothing to do; that his days are passed in an idleness which, in time, saps his energy and hope, and makes him less fitted to take up work again when the chance comes. Loss of self-respect is one of the worst features of unemployment; for the victims come to feel that society no longer has any need for them. Any successful relief scheme must not only provide money and clothes for workless men, but must also restore their self-respect by releasing them from idleness, and for that reason we commend an admirable scheme which has just been started in Dublin. At the Dublin Rotary Club yesterday the formation of the "Mount Street Club" was announced. It will cater for the needs of unemployed men, and will attempt to provide as many means as possible by which the men may help themselves. Its functions will be twofold. The men will be able to meet there for games, conversation or meals; but the stigma of "charity" will be lacking, for they will virtually manage the club themselves, and will pay for their membership in it. The medium of exchange will be hours of work—two hours' work, for instance, will be the weekly membership fee, while meals, games or materials for occupational tasks will be "bought" in the same manner. Thus, the club will be a kind of embryo community, where every one of the members contributes to the common stock, and can draw from it in proportion to the amount of his contribution. Unemployed men, rightly, do not wish to be patronised or treated as paupers, and we feel that a scheme of this kind should appeal to them as something which avoids "charity" and depends largely on their own efforts for its success. The Mount Street Club, which will be opened to-day, is an experiment in self-help, and we hope that it may lead the way to other schemes of the same kind.

GREECE WANTS MONARCHY

ONLY 32,452 VOTES FOR REPUBLIC

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ATHENS, Monday.

The overwhelming majority for the restoration of King George of Greece is shown in the following figures for yesterday's plebiscite:—

For the restoration of the Monarchy—1,491,992.
For the continuance of the Republic—32,452.

On Thursday a special delegation from the Government will, it is expected, leave for London to inform King George of Greece that his people have voted his restoration after eleven years of exile.

In a proclamation General Condylis, Prime Minister and Regent, said: "From to-day the king is fully established. Henceforth George II. is irremovable and hereditary."

MINISTRY OF HEALING

POWER OF THE MIND OVER THE BODY

The Archbishop of Dublin (Dr. Gregg) presided at a public meeting held by the Church's Ministry of Healing in the Friends' Meeting House, 6 Eustace street, Dublin, yesterday. In a short opening address he said that he gave a most heartfelt God-speed to the work which was being done.

The Rev. E. Howard Cobb, M.A., Warden of the Home of Divine Healing, Crowhurst, Sussex, England, said that practical people living in this material world might ask how they could expect that organic diseases could be cured by divine healing. We realised, he said, the extraordinary sub-conscious power of the mind over the body, and we surely must believe that the Holy Spirit could control the mind and, through it, the body. It was not asking God to do something against the laws of nature—which themselves were only the result of our own observation. They believed that it was God's will and purpose to use the natural machinery of the body. By the power of the Holy Spirit working through the mind to the body anything could be done. It was a perfectly simple natural operation, and people should not think it so impossible; it was only by their own doubts and fears that it was made to appear so. A broken bone naturally healed and joined together, but it was because there was no doubt or anxiety about the process to hinder the work of God.

The Rev. N. H. F. Waring, M.A., said that they were living to-day in a time of extreme difficulty and danger. It seemed to him that there should be instilled into the counsels of the nations something of the spirit of Christ. He spoke of the work being carried on by the Dublin centre of the Ministry of Healing.

At White Bluff, Tennessee, yesterday, because of an alleged insult to a white woman in the street, a negro was riddled with bullets and killed by a crowd.

ROYAL WEDDING TO-MORROW

GUESTS NUMBER 120

The Prime Minister, the Home Secretary, the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Chamberlain and the Master of the Horse will be among the few guests at the wedding of the Duke of Gloucester and Lady Alice Scott in the Private Chapel at Buckingham Palace to-morrow. They will all sign the Royal wedding register.

Altogether there will be about 120 guests, including nearly all the members of the Royal Family at present in London. They will afterwards attend a wedding breakfast given by the King and Queen in the white and gold State dining-room on the first floor of the Palace.

Queen Maud of Norway, the King's sister, and King George of Greece will also be present. The Duchess of Kent, it was authoritatively stated, will not attend the wedding.

After the Service, which will last between thirty and forty minutes, the Duke and his bride will appear on the balcony of the Palace with the King and Queen and other members of the Royal Family. The eight bridesmaids have had a rehearsal of their duties.

THE QUEEN'S GOWN

The official description of the ensemble which the Queen will wear was issued last night. Her Majesty will wear a beautiful gown, specially designed and executed for her by Reville, of Hanover square, London, in jewel-blue chiffon velvet, delicately patterned with pale gold. The "Empire" design of the gown shows to advantage the graceful lines of the softly-draped skirt. A charming cape of velvet and sable will be worn over the gown, and with this Her Majesty will wear a swathed toque in blue and gold. The Queen will wear the Blue Ribbon of the Garter, and the jewels will be diamonds.

PARTY TO ROYAL SERVANTS

The Duke of Gloucester and Lady Alice Scott last night attended a party given at St. James's Palace to more than 1,000 Royal servants and family retainers of the Duke of Buccleuch, who were invited to see the Royal wedding presents.

An ostrich feather cape, presented to Lady Alice as a wedding present by the South African ostrich farmers, was delivered yesterday.

LONDON LETTER

THE ELECTION BEGINS

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
MONDAY NIGHT.

THE general election has commenced, and already there are nearly forty members of the new House of Commons, the National Party leading with twenty-five candidates returned unopposed, to thirteen Labour candidates. No fewer than 582 National Party candidates have been nominated, leaving only 33 seats without candidates. The experience gained during the political campaign throughout the country last week has given experts in electioneering a somewhat clearer idea of how the contest is going. In official circles, the municipal results are not accepted as any criterion of the forthcoming Parliamentary elections, as the Parliamentary voters considerably outnumber those on the municipal lists, though it may be taken that the Labour candidates in many centres will make use of losses in the municipal elections as a spur to drive their supporters to the poll. It seems to be still accepted that the Government will have a good majority, but greater caution is being exercised as to its total. The Government had such a big majority in the last Parliament that it cannot hope to win many seats from Labour, while it must fight to keep as many as possible of the seats captured in 1931, though in some cases this will be a forlorn hope. Most of the electioneering experts still hold the opinion that the Government majority will certainly be over a hundred.

Betting on Majorities

As the London Stock Exchange would have nothing to do with majorities, they have been started for the first time by a firm of turf accountants, who have tentatively fixed majorities at 160 for sellers and 170 for buyers as a starting price. The principle of the thing is quite simple. The starting figure is taken, and if you buy below it you are a bull, while if you buy above it you are a bear. The figures seem high from a political point of view, but the actual dealings, which commenced to-day, will subject them to fluctuations. The stakes are limited to a minimum of 10s. and a maximum of £10, but, even so, losses can be very heavy. If a purchaser buys at 170, and the eventual majority is only 70, he can lose £1,000 for a £10 stake.

Abyssinian Situation

November 18th, the date decided upon by the League of Nations for the operation of sanctions against Italy, is regarded in many quarters as too late to be really effective. Huge quantities of stores are arriving in Eritrea from Aden, and these will be greatly increased during the next fortnight. The Italians appear to be short of nothing required for their military operations, while food supplies are abundant, water being the only difficulty. At present the advance of the Italian armies continues unchecked, and it is difficult to see how the Abyssinians can prevent them from overrunning the country. The Emperor is now securing fresh supplies of arms and ammunition through channels still open, but he has nothing to match the mechanical war machines of his foes. The Italian aeroplanes, almost an army in themselves, are making havoc, and cannot be attacked from the ground. There is an opinion, however, that the Emperor has a surprise for Italy, though nobody seems able to guess what it may be.

Greece

The King of Greece will return to his throne in Athens, now that the plebiscite has decided that he shall do so, but it is not unlikely that he will answer the call of duty with some reluctance, as hitherto he has displayed no great anxiety to ascend the throne again. His memories of the country are far from happy, while the history of his family and its connection with the country have been distinctly unpleasant. King George has always declared that he would return to Greece only if the great majority of the people wanted him, and though the plebiscite has resulted in an overwhelming majority in favour of the restoration of the Monarchy the manner in which it was conducted is somewhat suspicious as a real expression of the popular voice. King George will return with the commission which is being sent to invite him back to Athens, but it is probable that he will go because he feels that a restoration may help to restore peace and order in a country so long subjected to political upheavals.

Wedding Presents

Lady Alice Scott has received a quantity of beautiful jewellery as wedding presents. The King and Queen have sent her a suite in emeralds and pearls, the Queen also giving a suite in diamonds and turquoise, as well as a dressing case, with silver gilt fittings, and a Chippendale mahogany bookcase. The late Duke of Buccleuch gave his daughter a string of beautiful pearls, large and of brilliant orient. The Duke of Gloucester has given his bride two diamond tiaras, emerald and diamond earrings and brooch, a diamond corsage ornament and diamond bracelets. Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret have sent their uncle a cigar lighter in the shape of a grenade. Among the presents is a linen tea cosy from some girls in the West of Ireland, inscribed in Gaelic: "Blessings from Ireland."

Flow of Gold

Financial circles in the City of London are also much interested in the fact that the flow of gold from Europe to the United States has been checked. During the week ending October 28 the gold exports from this country to the States were only £1,308,000, as compared with £6,492,000 in the previous week. This helps in the improvement in the gold situation of the world, and in addition to the Bank of England some of the leading continental banks are increasing their holdings of the metal. It is uncertain how long the present lull in the gold flow to the States will continue, as political and economic disturbances in Europe may cause a resumption in the near future. The present month, in fact, may prove to be a trying one to the gold bloc countries now awaiting with some anxiety the reaction of the French Parliament to M. Laval's financial proposals.

New Aerodromes

The Air Ministry is making preparation for the day when the country will have an adequate supply of aeroplanes by acquiring aerodromes near London. Heston may soon be bought, as the increased activity of the public air services has made a difference in the plans of the owners, who may remove their extraordinarily successful flying school to another centre near Maidenhead. There is another great site near Ilford which may be secured, as it is ideal for a terminal airport. It is the intention of the Air Ministry to acquire all suitable spots for airports before the available open spaces around London are taken over for building schemes.

AUSTRALIAN CABINET CRISIS

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Mr. Lyons, the Prime Minister, to-day had an interview with Mr. Hughes, war time Premier and now Vice-President of the Executive Council, for whose resignation he had asked owing to views expressed by Mr. Hughes on sanctions. Both are withholding their statements as to what took place until to-morrow.

THE GENERAL ELECTION

1,345 CANDIDATES NOMINATED

THIRTY-EIGHT RETURNED UNOPPOSED

HOW PARTY GROUPS ARE REPRESENTED

PRIME MINISTER GETS A WALK-OVER

NOMINATIONS were received yesterday for the parliamentary representation of all borough and county constituencies, and for the Cambridge, London, Welsh and Belfast Universities.

Oxford and the Scottish Combined Universities—which return five members—already had nominated their candidates. The English Combined Universities, which return two members, will nominate their candidates to-day.

Nominations, therefore, have been made for 594 constituencies, which return a total of 613 members to the House of Commons.

1,345 candidates have been chosen to contest the 613 seats. They are distributed as follows among the several parties:—

GOVERNMENT.		OPPOSITION.
Conservatives	511	Labour	552
Liberal National	44	Liberal	154
National Labour	19	I.L.P.	16
National	9	Independents	38
Others	2
Total	585	Total	760

In addition to the candidates above, Sir Reginald Craddock (Conservative) and Miss Eleanor Rathbone (Independent) seek re-election as members for the English Combined Universities, and are, so far, unopposed.

Thirty-eight members, including the Prime Minister, have been returned unopposed, namely—22 Conservatives, three Liberal Nationals, and 13 Labour.

The feature of the Northern Ireland elections is the nomination of two Unionists and two Nationalist Abstentionists for the Fermanagh and Tyrone constituency.

SOME UNOPPOSED RETURNS

The first member of the new Parliament to be elected was Mr. J. J. Tinker (Labour), who has represented Leigh, Lancashire, in the House of Commons since 1923. Three of the unopposed returns were surprises, owing to the withdrawal of opponents at the last moment. These members were:—Captain Bullock (Conservative, Waterloo, Lancs.), Sir Ronald Ross (Conservative, Londonderry), and Mr. C. S. Taylor (Conservative, Eastbourne).

On the other hand, Mr. D. G. Logan (Labour, Scotland Division of Liverpool), Sir Archibald Sinclair (Liberal, Caithness and Sutherland), Viscount Wolmer (Conservative, Aldershot), and Sir Gifford Fox (Conservative, Henley), who appeared to have good prospects of being returned unopposed, found themselves unexpectedly called upon to fight by late arrivals in the field.

THE SPEAKER OPPOSED

A notable omission from the list of unopposed returns is Captain Fitzroy, the Speaker of the House of Commons. This is the first time for forty years that the name of the Speaker has not appeared among the unopposed returns at a general election. Captain Fitzroy is being opposed by a Labour candidate in his constituency of Daventry.

CASE OF GOVERNMENT LEADERS

With the exception of the Prime Minister and Mr. Walter Runciman, all the Government leaders have been called upon to fight for their seats. Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Sir Samuel Hoare, Sir John Simon, Mr. Anthony Eden, Sir Kingsley Wood, Mr. Oliver Stanley, Mr. Ernest Brown, Mr. Ormsby Gore and Mr. Malcolm Macdonald have straight fights against Labour. Mr. Stanley is opposed by a woman candidate. Mr. Walter Elliot and Sir Godfrey Collins—two other members of the Cabinet—are involved in three-cornered fights. Mr. J. H. Thomas and a Conservative are opposed by two Labour candidates in the double-member constituency of Derby.

Mr. Lloyd George has a Conservative opponent, as has also Major Attlee (leader of the Parliamentary Labour Party). Sir Herbert Samuel (leader of the Opposition Liberals) has a three-cornered fight, in which the other candidates are a Conservative and a Labour woman. Mr. Churchill is opposed by Labour and Liberal candidates. Sir Stafford Cripps (Labour), at Bristol East, has as his opponent Major Church, a National Labour candidate.

There will be 386 straight fights, compared with 409 at the previous general election. In 299 constituencies the contest will be a direct one between the Conservative and Labour candidates. The three-cornered fights number 147.

WOMEN CANDIDATES

The women candidates nominated yesterday number 65, so that with the nomination of Miss Eleanor Rathbone to-day there will be 66 women candidates in the field. At the last election 62 women were nominated and 15 were returned. The 66 women candidates consist of 19 Conservatives, 33 Labour, 10 Liberals, one Independent Liberal, one Independent Labour Party, one Independent Conservative and one Independent.

Among the women candidates is Miss Nancy Stewart Parnell, who will contest East Willesden in the Liberal interest. A young Irishwoman, whose grandfather was a cousin of Charles Stewart Parnell, she is President-elect of the National Union of Women Teachers, and is due to be elected President in January next. Until recently she has been Warden of the St. Gabriel Hall of Residence for Women Students in Manchester University. She is leader of the St. Joan Social and Political Alliance, and was one of the chief workers in the campaign to secure votes for women under 30. When in her early twenties she addressed an Albert Hall meeting on behalf of the under 30 voters, she was congratulated on her oratory by Mr. Baldwin. Miss Parnell has spoken on many peace platforms in Liverpool and Lancashire.

Woman opposes woman in two constituencies—at Wallsend, where Miss Irene Ward (Conservative) and Miss Margaret Bondfield (Labour) are rivals, and at Kinross and Western, where the Duchess of Atholl (Conservative) and Mrs. C. A. Macdonald (Liberal) have a straight fight. Mrs. M. Power (Labour) is the youngest woman candidate in the field. She is 23.

CHANGES OF PLACE AND LABEL

Among the 1,345 candidates are 541 who were members of the late House of Commons. Eleven of these are seeking re-election in constituencies other than those which they represented in the late House. On the other hand, some members of the late House now appear under new labels. Admiral Campbell, formerly National, is now a Liberal National at Burnley. Mr. Linton Thorp, formerly Conservative, is standing as an Independent. Mr. J. H. Lockwood, a Conservative in the late House, is fighting as an Independent Conservative at Shipley, where another candidate has been nominated as the official Conservative. Colonel Wedgwood (Newcastle-under-Lyme), who sat in the late House as an Independent, has returned to the Labour Party.

Two members of the late House are contesting the same constituency—namely, Captain Arthur Evans (Conservative), the sitting member, and Major Nathan (Labour), at Cardiff South. Two members of the late House have dropped out unexpectedly at the last moment—Mr. Cahir Healy and Mr. J. F. Stewart, Nationalist members for Fermanagh and Tyrone, who are succeeded in the nomination lists by two Nationalist Abstentionists, pledged not to take their seats at Westminster.

SONS OF PREMIER AND EX-PREMIERS

The Prime Minister's son, Mr. Oliver Baldwin, is the Labour candidate at Paisley. Two ex-Prime Ministers, Mr. Ramsay Macdonald and Mr. Lloyd George, also have sons among the candidates, while Mr. Lloyd George has a daughter as candidate as well.

Two well-known figures in the world of sport are among those nominated. Mr. W. W. Wakefield, a famous English Rugby captain, is Conservative candidate at Swindon, and Sir Malcolm Campbell, who holds the world's motor speed record, is Conservative candidate at Deptford.

Many of the 213 former Labour members who lost their seats in the landslide of 1931 are seeking re-election. These include eleven who were members of the late Labour Cabinet—namely: Mr. Herbert Morrison, South Hackney; Mr. Wedgwood Benn, Dudley; Mr. J. R. Clynes, Platting, Manchester; Mr. A. V. Alexander, Hillsborough, Sheffield; Miss Susan Lawrence, Stockton-on-Tees; Miss Margaret Bondfield, Wallsend; Mr. H. B. Lees Smith, Keighley; Mr. W. Adamson, West Fife; Mr. T. Johnston, West Stirlingshire; Mr. Arthur Greenwood, Wakefield; and Dr. Addison, Swindon. Mr. Greenwood and Dr. Addison gained seats at by-elections, but the other nine have been excluded from the House of Commons for the last four years.

Only two Communists have been nominated, compared with 25 at the previous general election. A new type of candidate, however, is the supporter of social credit—three such are in the field.

"GLAD TO BE OUT OF ITALY"

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

INNSBRUCK, Monday.

"Above all, I am glad to be out of Italy." These were the first words of Mr. Alastair Napier, the English student who was arrested four days ago on the Brenner Pass by the Italian authorities, when Reuter's correspondent saw him after his return to Innsbruck to-day. The release this morning came quite unexpectedly. After three days' detention on the frontier Mr. Napier was yesterday to have been taken to the central prison at Bolzano, but while preparations were being made for his transfer thither, this step was suddenly postponed by special orders from the military headquarters at Bolzano. This morning a special Commissioner arrived and gave instructions for his release.

NOMINATIONS AND RETURNS

SEVEN MEMBERS UNOPPOSED

FERMANAGH-TYRONE CONTEST

Nomination day in Northern Ireland found seven members returned without a contest, Major Sir Ronald Ross's immunity from a contest in Londonderry City and County being due to the misfortune of Mr. Sean McCool (Republican), whose motor car was delayed, and thus kept him until the prescribed time for receiving nominations had elapsed. Contests will take place in four constituencies—West Belfast (one seat), County Down (two seats), County Armagh (one seat), and Fermanagh and Tyrone (two seats). For the last-named constituency four candidates have been nominated—two Unionists and two Nationalists, who are pledged to abstain from sitting at Westminster.

THE UNIONIST CAMPAIGN

MENACE OF A REPUBLIC

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

OMAGH, Monday.

The Unionist election campaign was opened this afternoon with a successful meeting in Omagh Orange Hall. Sir Basil Brooke, M.P. (Minister of Agriculture), presided, and the audience included a large number of prominent Unionists as well as the two candidates.

The Chairman said that the issue of the present election was clear. The opponents of the Unionists—Republicans, Nationalists or whatever they liked to call themselves—had but one objective—to break away from England, and Unionists simply had to challenge them.

Mr. Dwan, who was heartily received, said that, in common with those present, he was proud to be a member of the British Empire, and proud to take up the struggle where the issue was to be in or out of the British Empire. It had been suggested that Captain Blakiston-Houston and himself were fighting a losing battle, but, personally, he never knew the British to be involved in anything that was not successful.

The agricultural industry of the Six Counties depended on the English market, and he could not understand why any farmer should wish to put himself in the present pitiful state of the Free State farmers. The Free State, under Mr. de Valera, would in a short time be under the dictatorship of a man with a policy which had reduced the country to bankruptcy. In a few months Mr. de Valera would abolish the Senate and, by the Statute of Westminster, declare a Republic, and where would Ireland be then? The Argentine, the greatest agricultural country in the world, had lost its British trade and was now in bankruptcy, so what was to be the position of the Irish Free State, which depended entirely on the British market. It was a matter of £ s. d. for the Ulster farmers to get close to Britain.

The farmers were up against foreign competition, and the only way to meet it was by representation in the House of

ROME THINKS OF PEACE

AND PREPARES FOR SANCTIONS

DIET OF RABBITS INDICATED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ROME, Monday.

THE feeling here this evening regarding the prospects of a settlement of the Abyssinian question is more optimistic. While the Italian troops appear to be carrying all before them in Abyssinia, it is thought that possibly the threat of sanctions may yet be averted.

It is denied that Baron Aloisi made any fresh proposals to Sir Samuel Hoare at Geneva on Saturday, but there is reason to believe that their conversation was an important one.

The decision of the League to entrust the task of conciliation to Britain and France is generally approved. Nevertheless, preparations are going ahead to enable Italy to resist the application of sanctions. Economies of every sort are being imposed in Government offices and recommended to the civil population.

To save heating and lighting, shops and offices are to open earlier and to close earlier. Any overtime to be worked must be put in during the luncheon interval. The Fascist Party is to give its official encouragement to rabbit breeding. Scrap iron is to be carefully collected and used.

BRITONS LEAVING

Fears of a boycott and food shortage as the result of sanctions have induced a number of British families to leave Italy. Others who have left Italy for the summer are postponing their return until the outlook seems more settled. Several American families have also left Italy, in view of the possibility of a shortage of food or anti-foreign feeling.

British consulates and tourist and removal agencies have received many inquiries regarding the possibility of a quick removal if things get worse.

According to the Agenzia d'Italia, the Italian Vacuum Oil Company has obtained from the Fascist Government a concession for petroleum researches in Central Sicily. A huge oil refinery is to be built by the company in Naples. Borings for petroleum conducted in Italy in recent years have revealed the presence of oil in the region of Veneto.

COMPLETING THE SANCTIONS

OIL, COAL AND IRON BAN APPROVED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

GENEVA, Monday.

The present stage of the preparations for the application of economic sanctions against Italy will, it is expected, be concluded on Wednesday. Lord Stanhope, Parliamentary Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, is coming out from London to represent Great Britain at the meeting of the Committee of Eighteen.

To-day has been one of intense activity by the Economic Sub-committee in order to have everything ready for approval at Wednesday's meeting. The Committee took a far-reaching decision when it approved in principle the extension of the embargo on key exports to Italy to cover oil and its derivatives and coal, steel and iron.

The ban on these exports, which was first proposed by Canada, will come into force if, and when, the agreement of the non-member States producing them is obtained. The chief States concerned are U.S.A. and Germany.

The position may thus be summed up:—When U.S.A. agrees to stop supplying oil, oil will be banned; when Germany agrees to stop supplying coal, coal will be banned. When U.S.A. and Germany agree to stop supplying iron and steel, those metals will be banned.

A sub-committee has been appointed to consider the question raised by South Africa of the possibility of the evasion of the economic sanctions by the diversion of trade from its normal channels through non-participating States. The States particularly concerned are Switzerland and Austria.

Commons. A policy of abstention was absolutely futile. Those who voted for the Unionist candidates would be voting for the welfare of the two counties

Captain Blakiston-Houston, who was also received with cheers, said that he had been told that they had something like 45,000 friends and 50,000 opponents in these counties, but he did not believe that 50,000 people so close to the border would rush to live in the conditions that prevailed in the Free State. During the last fifteen years they had watched with interest affairs in the Free State, which was supposed to become a loyal Dominion, like Canada or New Zealand; but they could not see anything that they would gain by joining with the Free State. He expressed the hope that in that campaign there would be no bitterness or bigotry.

There was not the slightest doubt, he said, that in a few months Mr. de Valera would declare a Republic, as he could under the Statute of Westminster, and the country would then be under his dictatorship. What had the Republicans or Abstentionists to offer them? Could they benefit the country in any way?

A vote of confidence in the candidates was passed.

THE ADVANCE ON MAKALE

ABYSSINIANS AVOID ENGAGEMENT

ITALIAN AIR ACTIVITY IN THE SOUTH

WOMEN AND CHILDREN BOMBED AT GORAHAI

THE Italian advance in the North is continuing against a shy and shifting enemy. A hundred and eighty thousand troops, in blistering heat, are taking part in the "big push," which began at dawn on Sunday, along a fifty miles front.

The Italians, who entered Hausien yesterday, are now proceeding down "English Street," the road taken by Napier in his famous march to Magdala, and claim to have pushed forward their line from 15 to 18 miles.

The situation in the South is somewhat obscure. According to reports received in Addis Ababa, there has been no large-scale fighting yet. It is alleged in the Abyssinian capital that many women and children were injured at Gorahai in one of the worst air raids of the war. About a thousand bombs are stated to have been dropped.

HARD WORK BY NATIVES

FROM MAJOR J. S. BARNES, PRESS ASSOCIATION SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

ASMARA, Monday.

It is confirmed here that Hausien was captured in the early hours of this morning. General Biroli's Askaris have since occupied the heights to the south-west of the town, and General Santini's Blackshirts the heights to the south-east.

The main column of General Santini's Blackshirts is pushing on down the "English Street," and have already reached the heights commanding Negash Maimesti. No resistance has been met with. General Biroli's Blackshirts are flanked by more Askaris for the forward drive.

The only enemy troops so far sighted by the Italians were a small body seen by Askari scouts retiring from Hausien towards Makale, and a large force, estimated at several thousands, spotted by aeroplanes near Ama Alagi, about thirty miles south of Makale.

RAPID ADVANCE

Thanks to this coyness of the enemy, the advance of Mussolini's Blackshirt divisions and their native allies has been rapid, considering the difficult country traversed. The Italians are making their advance methodically, taking all precautions to avoid surprise, and the risk of "regrettable incidents."

The hardest work to date has been done by the native Askari patrols, who have pushed forward with amazing rapidity considering the country, some of them having covered twenty-five miles over rough ground, covered with thorn scrub which will tear the clothes from a man's body.

Meanwhile the "mystery column" of wild Danakil tribesmen in Italian pay, moving down from the Eritrean frontier on the extreme left of the advance, negotiated in the early morning a stiff climb to the plateau of Dera.

It is officially announced that a small band of Abyssinians crossed the River Setit at Elegin, near Omager, close to the Sudan frontier, but they were repulsed. There were no Italian losses, but it is believed that a few of the enemy were killed.

A THOUSAND BOMBS DROPPED

SOUTHERN AIR OFFENSIVE

FROM WALTER COLLINS, PRESS ASSOCIATION SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

ADDIS ABABA, Monday.

"The worst air raid of the war" is how the Italian bombardment of the wells in the neighbourhood of Gorahai, on Saturday, is described by the Abyssinian authorities. Unofficial reports state that twenty-five Italian 'planes took part in the bombardment, dropping about a thousand bombs, and wounding many women and children. Hundreds of heads of cattle also were killed and maimed, it is declared.

Although rain has been falling in the South it is surmised in the capital that this bombardment was a prelude to the determined Italian offensive expected on that front, as well as on the North.

So far, it is believed that there has been no large-scale fighting in the South. The Italians have advanced slowly, concentrating more on aeroplane attacks and bombardments. Their machines have several times bombed Gorahai and neighbouring villages.

FEW LIVES LOST

Loss of life on the Ethiopian side has been small, firstly because the garrisons on the frontier have been reduced to skeleton point, and secondly because many of the bombs have been "duds" and have not exploded. It was estimated recently by the Abyssinians that not more than 150 Ethiopian soldiers have been killed and wounded, but no figures are available for the civilian population.

Reconnaissance fights have been carried out almost daily and Italian 'planes have flown nearly as far as Diredawa, the important railway dépôt on the Djibuti-Addis Ababa railway.

Neither Ras Weyoum, the Abyssinian Commander-in-Chief in the north, nor Ras Kassa, the Governor of Amhan Province, reports the Italian advance from the north in spite of Italian reports that four army corps are engaged.

TO DEFEND MAKALE

I understand from a very authoritative source that the Ethiopians will defend Makale to the last. The Italian advance guards are now reported to be well south of Hausien, and it is declared here by the Abyssinians that they are meeting with very stubborn resistance from Ras Seyoum's rear guards.

At least three Italian columns are advancing from the line Adigrat-Adowa-Aksum. Makale is the objective of the Adigrat column. The Adowa and Aksum columns are advancing south-west by south and are believed to be near Tokule, at which, it is reported, Ras Kassa's forces are giving battle.

Ethiopian reinforcements are being told that hostilities are now on the point of breaking out, and it would seem that Ethiopian commanders will very shortly be given the opportunity they have so long dreamed of—namely, of coming to blows with the invaders.

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

NOMINATIONS AND NOMINEES

In an editorial article The Times observes to-day:—Nomination day has resulted in the return of thirty-eight candidates unopposed, and the prospect of contests for the remaining 577 seats. There is no trace of that alliance of progressives which sometimes recurs as a faint echo of 1910 in Opposition Liberal minds. These divisions among the Opposition are chiefly responsible for the higher estimates current of the size of the Government's majority, but it would be the greatest possible mistake to be too confident of the result. For example, no generalisations are trustworthy on the question whether on balance Liberal candidates will take more votes from Labour candidates than from Government candidates. In some urban districts this will probably be the case, but in others both urban and rural Liberal candidates will attract votes for the Opposition which were given to the Government last time. Moreover, the main dividing line is between supporters and opponents of the Government, and hostile voters will poll for the Opposition candidate whom they think has the best chance of success. And, lastly, it must be realised that the character of many constituencies has completely changed during the past four years owing to the enormous volume of house-building and the number of consequent removals. The Government are defending so wide a front, the circumstances of 1931 were so exceptional, and the very successes of the Government have given the forgetful and the factious such a chance to pretend that opposition is now safe that the next Parliament cannot possibly be so one-sided as the last. That in itself will be no bad thing, provided that it is realised that the loss of a number of seats will be due to reasons quite unconnected with foreign policy, and that these losses do not presage even a more distant triumph for a policy which would destroy prestige abroad and solvency at home.

There is also one other proviso necessary if the next Parliament is to show the stability required to carry on the work of the last—namely, that some insidious movements which have appeared during this election should not make Parliament the servant of forces outside it. For example, the Council of Action for Peace and Reconstruction, which is Mr. Lloyd George's latest title, has issued to all candidates a questionnaire which is a flagrant example of the vicious practice of trying to make members of Parliament the nominees of some special organisation instead of the representatives of their constituencies.

THE LIFFEY SCHEME

DISSATISFACTION WITH E.S.B.

CITY COUNCILLORS' PROTEST

JOINT CONFERENCE WITH DEPARTMENT

THE result of the interview which took place between representatives of the Dublin Corporation and the Electricity Supply Board in regard to the carrying out, conjointly, of the Liffey hydro-electric and waterworks scheme was disclosed at a meeting of the Dublin Corporation last night, the Lord Mayor presiding.

Mr. J. J. Byrne moved that the City Council wished to register their emphatic protest against the delay of the E.S.B. in giving their decision as to whether they would co-operate with the Dublin Corporation in the joint hydro-electric and waterworks scheme—a decision that had been promised by March, 1934—"that we consider the delay of the E.S.B. inexcusable, and that we ask for a decision forthwith, or otherwise we may be reluctantly compelled to conserve for household purposes the water now being supplied to the E.S.B. at Pigeon House."

Mr. Byrne said that the Corporation's interview with the E.S.B. had been most unsatisfactory, and had been inconclusive. It had required the most persistent effort on the part of the deputation to pin down the Board to a definite acceptance of the scheme, and to recommend to the Government its acceptance. That had been the only thing achieved by the deputation.

The Corporation had been negotiating with the E.S.B. since 1933; yet, when the deputation had waited on the E.S.B., they were met with the old cry that the scheme was not economic. It was protested that it would involve the E.S.B. in serious loss. When they had been pressed for details of the amount and the nature of the loss, the E.S.B. members had no information to give, and stated that they were waiting for a report from their experts. That report, they had said, must be furnished to the Government, and without the leave of the Government they could not supply the Corporation with a copy; but they did not agree to supply immediately the details of the financial loss.

MOST RETICENT

The Board also had stated that they would not require to increase their generation of electric current until 1943 or 1944. Throughout the entire interview the E.S.B. was most reticent. There was a tendency to disclose nothing, and to ask the Corporation to lay all their cards on the table. The E.S.B. wanted to know what contribution the Corporation was prepared to make to bridge the financial deficit, and they endeavoured to magnify the value of the scheme to the Corporation and minimise its value to the E.S.B.

Although they had said that they were not going to increase their generation of current until 1943 or 1944, the E.S.B. actually were installing an additional steam unit at the Pigeon House.

"It is clear," said Mr. Byrne, "that the E.S.B. has made up its mind to delay the scheme as long as possible. Or, perhaps, they feel that they can squeeze from the Corporation an extra large contribution by tactics like this. The citizens of Dublin made a great sacrifice when they handed over their undertaking to the E.S.B., and while they are anxious for the success of the Liffey scheme they will take care that the citizens will pay no more than is equitable."

A JOINT MEETING

Mr. P. Belton, T.D., who said that he was the seconder of the notice of motion, suggested that they should consider how far they were prepared to go if the E.S.B. did not go on with the scheme. Before the next meeting of the Council they would have, probably, a joint meeting of the E.S.B., the Corporation and the Department of Industry and Commerce. He was sure that if the E.S.B. did not come up to scratch and co-operate whole-heartedly, the Corporation would have no hesitation in passing the motion unanimously. It would be well in the meanwhile to defer it until the conference was held.

Mr. Benson said that the E.S.B. stated that they would not require electricity for ten years, and they had spoken of an economic deficiency. He would point out to the members of the Conicil that the full water supply that the Corporation was intended to get would not be needed for 100 years. He moved that the motion be postponed.

Mr. T. Kelly, T.D., thought that they should provide extra water by the Liffey scheme. All they had heard that evening showed that that thing was not going through, and the Council ought to make up their minds to go on with the job. It had been stated that the citizens had made great sacrifices in handing over the whole of the Corporation's undertaking. The citizens had done nothing of the sort. The undertaking had been taken from them.

Senator Healy—Confiscated! Robbed!

Mr. Kelly said that £2,000,000 or £2,500,000 worth of their property had been confiscated. Were it not for that the Shannon Scheme would not have been worth a £5 note to-day. The Corporation needed a further water supply.

Mrs. Cosgrave said that for the sake of one month's delay they should avoid doing anything that might imperil the scheme.

Ultimately it was decided to postpone the further consideration of the resolution in view of the conference.

THREATENED BY HURRICANE

MIAMI, Monday.

Hurricane warnings are once more flying along the east coast of Florida, from Miami to Stuart, and the famous pleasure resort of Palm Beach is threatened. Fearing a repetition of the recent disaster in September, when 400 persons were killed on the exposed Florida Keys Islands, 200 residents were evacuated from these islands by relief workers this morning.

A portion of a wireless message intercepted by the coastguard at Jacksonville states that the steamer Florida is lying disabled in the path of the hurricane about five miles south of Jupiter. The giant China Clipper, America's largest seaplane, has been despatched from Miami to Kingston, Jamaica, as a precautionary measure, since there are no hangars in Florida large enough to accommodate her.

RIGHT TO ASK QUESTIONS

D.J. ON POLICE POWERS

"FASHIONABLE, BUT NOT LEGAL"

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CARLOW, Monday.

AT Carlow District Court to-day, District Justice T. O'Shea, dealing with a charge of larceny of £6 against a domestic servant, Mary Hopkins, Ballyloo, said that a Guard had no legal right to question a person who had been arrested for an alleged offence and cautioned.

Evidence was given by Kate Kelly, Ballyloo, who stated defendant was in her employment, and had recourse to the bedroom where witness kept a sum of money in a bag in her coat. Of this sum of £41, £6 was missing.

Defendant denied that she took any of the money.

Sergeant Carney stated that he questioned defendant for the greater part of an hour concerning the missing money, and she denied any knowledge of it. She subsequently admitted having taken one pound off the dressing table. Later she contradicted that, and said she took one pound from the bag in the pocket of Mrs. Kelly's coat. He took a written statement from her, under caution, embodying all she said in reply to questions.

STATE OF FEAR

The Justice said that defendant was in a state of abject fear when questioned by the sergeant at the barracks, and was not a free agent.

Superintendent Connolly said a Guard could legally ask certain questions to elucidate a point.

Justice—If a person is in custody, a police officer has no right to ask the accused person any question. There are words in the written statement by defendant which must have come from questions put to her by the sergeant.

Superintendent Connolly—It has been held and people have been convicted on statements by answers to questions from a police officer, even in murder cases.

Justice—I don't suggest the sergeant did anything which he considered improper. This girl is not competent to defend her rights once she was in the custody of the Guards.

"I think the time has come," said the Justice later, "when that should be stopped. It may be fashionable, but it is not legal. A person should not be held responsible for a statement when in a state of abject fear. The very fact of her being in the Guards' station without any relative or solicitor to appear for her was sufficient to make her afraid. Suppose the sergeant spoke to her on the street or in her own house or that of her employer, I would say that the replies to questions then would be evidence."

The Justice reserved his decision, and defendant was allowed out under continuing bail.

THE DRAMA IN IRELAND

TRINITY COLLEGE GAELIC SOCIETY

At the inaugural meeting of the session 1935-36 of the Trinity College Gaelic Society, which was held last night in the Regent House, Mr. Sean McDonogh, Sch., Auditor, read a paper in Irish on "The Drama in Ireland."

Professor E. O'Toole, President of the Society, presided.

Mr. MacDonogh, in the course of his paper, dealt with the position of the Anglo-Irish and the Gaelic drama in this country. It had to be admitted that the drama in Ireland was under a great obligation to the independent theatres in Paris, in Berlin and in London. From these sources Mr. W. B. Yeats and Lady Gregory were inspired to do something similar in Ireland. An important development was the establishment of the National Drama Company. Time had proved that the action taken by the late Edward Martyn and George Moore was right and good. The new society produced plays by Lady Gregory, J. M. Synge and Padraic Colum. Synge, he said, was the greatest dramatist who ever wrote for an Irish theatre.

There were four theatres in Dublin for the production of plays by Irish or Gaelic authors, but the authors were altogether too rare. While in other countries the cinemas were adversely affecting the drama, he thought that there was no such danger in Ireland. The Gaelic drama was steadily gaining increased appreciation, not only in Dublin, but throughout the entire country.

Senator Ernest Blythe said that the work of the Abbey Theatre and the Gate Theatre was very valuable in promoting and popularising the Irish drama. Visitors to Ireland from other countries were much interested in two things—Killarney and the Abbey. The production of Gaelic plays would greatly help the spread of the Irish language, and so would the exhibition of films in Gaelic.

Leon O Broin and William Marnock also spoke.

OBITUARY

MR. A. F. SMYLY

Mr. Alexander Ferguson Smyly, who died at Windlesham, Surrey, on November 1, at the age of 49, was the second son of the late Judge Smyly, K.C., of Camus and Castlederg, County Tyrone. This is an ancient family, descended from John Smyly, who went from Scotland and settled in Ireland in 1628. He was educated at Malvern, where he was in the shooting eight, and at Pembroke College, Cambridge. He was called to the Bar by the Inner Temple in 1910, and served in France with the 8th Battalion the South Staffordshire Regiment, during the War, retiring with the rank of captain. From 1920 to 1927 he was in the office of the Parliamentary Counsel to the Treasury, and from the latter date was Assistant Editor in the Office of the Statute Law Revision Committee.

His charming and modest personality endeared him to a wide circle of friends, says The Times, and his early death will be deeply deplored. He was a keen horticulturist, and was justly proud of the gardens which he laid out round his home at Windlesham. He was for many years churchwarden of his parish, and he was a man of deep religious conviction. In 1926 he married Faith, eldest daughter of Mr. F. Sims Williams, K.C., of Windlesham. She survives him, with the four children of the marriage.

MR. W. J. H. ROSS

The death of Mr. William J. H. Ross, Chairman of the Durham Street Weaving Co., Ltd., Belfast, took place last Saturday night at his residence, Seaview, Helen's Bay. Fourth son of the late Mr. David Ross, Dundela House, Mr. Ross belonged to a family that has been prominently identified with the linen trade for many years. His father founded the Durham Street Weaving Company, and subsequently established the firm of Ross Brothers, Ltd., Linenhall street, and Bloomfield Factory. Four of his sons were in one or other of these firms.

Outside his business Mr. Ross took a great interest in Freemasonry.

PIONEER OF THE SWEEPSTAKES

MR. RICHARD DUGGAN DEAD

MAN WHO BROUGHT MILLIONS TO DUBLIN

WE regret to announce the death of Mr. Richard J. Duggan, one of the founders and organisers of the Irish Hospitals Sweepstakes, which occurred at his residence, Wilton, Merrion road, Dublin, last night. Mr. Duggan was one of three men who, in a room in Earlsfort terrace, Dublin, conceived the idea of running sweepstakes in Ireland on an international scale. They put their irea into practice, and the result is the Irish Hospitals' Trust sweepstakes, which have brought millions of pounds to the Free State for the alleviation of the sufferings of the sick and the improvement of hospitals all over the country.

Mr. Duggan played a large part in the organisation of the trust, planning finance and enrolling staffs, which he left to continue with the good work. This was not Mr. Duggan's only experience with sweepstakes; for some years before he purchased a small sweepstake from the Lord Mayor of Dublin. He interested himself in a project to run a sweepstake to raise funds for the establishment of a Press club in Dublin, but the proposal fell through because it did not meet with the approval of the then Minister for Justice. He organised sweepstakes on the Continent in aid of various charities, and in 1922 he was the promoter of another in aid of the Mater Misericordiæ Hospital, Dublin.

MR. R. J. DUGGAN.

Mr. Duggan, while active as a bookmaker and racehorse owner, maintained an active interest in the progress of the "Irish Sweep," which grew to prosperity far beyond anything that its promoters conceived.

Mr. Duggan, who had been ill for about six months, came to Dublin from Waterford at an early age. He started work in the printing trade, and after several years he left this to take up bookmaking, in which he became one of the best known men in Ireland, and as a racehorse owner he acquired an honourable reputation. Apart from the sweepstakes, he was financially interested in some commercial ventures in the Free State. These included the Lucan Spa Hotel, the White Swan Laundry, the Irish Glass Bottle Company and Messrs. Polikoff's.

AS RACEHORSE OWNER

Mr. Duggan may be said to have been the leading bookmaker in Ireland since the war. He was highly popular with his fellow-bookmakers and with all classes of racegoers.

As racehorse owner, too, he was fairly successful. The best horse to carry his colours was Smokeless, a daughter of Prince Galahad and Smoke Lass, which was bred by Mr. R. S. Croker, and was sold at the Ballsbridge Sales to Mr. R. More O'Ferrall in 1933 for 500 guineas. Bought subsequently by Mr. J. T. Rogers, she became the property of Mr. Duggan, and won for him, as a two-year-old, three races, two of them being the most important juvenile events in this country—the Phœnix Plate at the Phœnix Park and the Anglesea Stakes at the Curragh. This year Smokeless was successful in the Irish One Thousand Guineas and in the Irish Oaks, and was third to her stable companion, Museum, and Listoi in the Irish Derby, a race in which she did not have the best of luck in the running.

Mr. Duggan also owned those smart hurdle-racers, Proud Phil and Kyrat. The former is the winner of seven hurdle races, and his last success in such an event was gained at Navan last June. He also owned Capitulate, a good steeplechaser, and the two-year-old Solus, which, after winning a race at the Curragh, was sold to a person in England.

While Mr. Duggan was lying ill on September 27th last five lots of his fine racehorses were sold at Goff's bloodstock sale at Ballsbridge, and for the contents of his racing stable the sum of 6,135 guineas was received. Of this sum 4,000 guineas was paid for Smokeless, a bay filly by Prince Galahad and Smokeless Lass, the latter the winner of the Irish Oaks. The figure paid by Mr. Joseph McGrath was the highest ever paid in Ireland.

Mr. Duggan's wife died in 1921, leaving him seven children—three sons and four daughters. The eldest, Patrick, is an auditor and accountant; the second, Richard, is in the office of the Hospitals' Sweepstakes, and the third, Kevin, is a student of medicine. The eldest girl is the wife of Mr. J. V. Hanlon, and the other three are still at school.

The funeral will take place to-morrow after 10 o'clock Mass at the Star of the Sea Church, Sandymount, to Glasnevin Cemetery.

A TRIBUTE

(BY A FRIEND AND ADMIRER.)

Ireland has lost one of her best citizens. Richard Duggan had that practical sagacity which comes from a large human kindliness. He succeeded in everything to which he turned his hand; for he had industry, courage, a marvellous memory, and a wonderfully clear head.

He was also the kindest of men. His most valuable benefactions were not made public, and his generous gifts were quiet and unostentatious. The one condition for the exercise of his public generosity was that his own country—Ireland—would benefit as a result. He was not a politician, but he favoured anyone who worked for the material benefit of his native country, which he loved.

His own pleasure and enjoyment he found in the intimate surroundings of his family and children, by whom he was adored, and whose prayers and interests he fondly shared.

GALWAY WOMAN KILLED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

ATHENRY, Monday.

When Mrs. Isdall, Cloughgurteen, Athenry, was going to Mass on Sunday morning in a jaunting car, accompanied by her brother and his wife, the horse took flight and bolted. The car overturned, and Mrs. Isdall was thrown to the ground and killed almost instantly. The other two occupants of the car escaped with minor injuries.

At an inquest a verdict in accordance with the medical evidence—that death was due to fracture of the base of the skull—was returned.

CARLOW HUNT BALL

AN OCCASIONAL LICENCE

REFUSED THIS YEAR AGAIN

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CARLOW, Monday.

AT Carlow District Court to-day, District Justice T. O'Shea refused an application made by Mr. S. Roche, solicitor, on behalf of Mr. R. McDonnell, Tullow street, Carlow, for an occasional licence for the Carlow Hunt annual ball.

The Justice granted the application made by Mr. Roche on behalf of the Carlow Hunt for the holding of the ball at Kilnock House on the 17th January, 1936.

Mr. Roche said that last year a similar application was made by him on behalf of Mr. McDonnell for an occasional licence, which his worship refused. He (Mr. Roche) brought the application on appeal before Judge Sealy, K.C. at Tipperary Circuit Court, when he reversed his worship's decision and granted the application. "I sympathise with your worship in this matter, and you have been consistent all the time, but, after all, you are bound by the decision of the higher court."

Justice—I would be bound by the case you refer to, but this is a fresh application for an occasional licence at a dance to be held in 1936. It does not follow that because a licence was granted last year that I should give it on the present occasion.

A NEW APPLICATION

"I am not bound by the decision of the Circuit Court Judge in a matter which has never come before this court," continued the Justice. "This is a new application, and I cannot be bound by anything that happened last year, and, as a matter of fact, assuming there had been some trouble or complaint about the last ball, would I be bound to grant this application? There is no suggestion there was anything wrong or that this dance was not properly conducted. I have been given discretion to give occasional licences for special purposes and for special reasons. My view of the law is that I should exercise that discretion in a certain way. Where the law entitles a person to certain facilities with regard to having intoxicating liquor I don't interfere. I never interfered in such cases, and I don't intend to interfere. Where the law places responsibility on me I must exercise that responsibility according to the way I think is right and proper. I have never refused an occasional licence, except for all-night dances. It is the only way I can exercise the discretion that the law allows me. Moreover, I think it is wrong from the point of view of parents, and I have a duty to discharge to them and I should not do anything to which a parent might object, such as allowing intoxicating drink at such a function."

APPEAL AGAIN

Mr. Roche—The ball will be held at Kilnock House, my own residence, where there is proper supervision. If you say three o'clock in the morning I am perfectly satisfied. If not I must go again before Judge Sealy.

Justice—I don't think that last remark should be addressed to me. I have the greatest respect for the decision of the Circuit Court. I am sorry I cannot grant this application for the reasons stated. I won't be a bit offended, Mr. Roche, if you try to keep yourself right in any way you think proper.

IRISH OPERA REVIVAL

"SHAUN THE POST" AT THE GAIETY

A VERY ENJOYABLE PERFORMANCE

Characters in the order of appearance:

IT was gratifying to find such a large and representative audience at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, last night for the revival of Mr. Harold R. White's delightful Irish opera, "Shaun the Post." The presence of so many figures prominent in the musical life of the city was in itself a marked tribute to the esteem in which the composer is held, and was some little recognition also of the part he has played in musical development here. No more fitting tribute could have been offered than the revival of this opera, which was so well received when it was produced for the Tailteann Games in 1924. Often since there has been wonder why it was not revived. On its merits as a musical work it is worthy of inclusion in the repertoire of any opera company.

MR. HAROLD R. WHITE.

Founded on the popular Boucicault's old Irish romantic play, "Arrah-na-Pogue," its story is appealing from a national as well as from a human view-point. What could be more moving than this tale of Shaun, the post-carrier, who is prepared to go to death rather than betray the secret of his Rebel leader, who had taken shelter 'neath the roof of his love, Arrah of the Kisses; or more stirring than the circumvention of the infamous Feeney, spy and traitor.

With a well-designed book, Mr. White found splendid opportunity for his wide talents as a composer, and there are throughout the work some beautiful solos, duets, and part-songs. Indeed, beauty of melody is a strong features of the work—there is nothing unpleasant, and nothing to jar. In his orchestration Mr. White has followed the best examples; his scoring is always sound, and his objective attained. That he has a thorough knowledge of the resources of the orchestra is shown to demonstration, particularly in the intermezzo, which was played before the third act last night, with Colonel Fritz Brase conducting. How glad the audience was to see the Colonel again on the rostrum and to listen to the skill with which he directed his players through a score that was full of the liveliest interest. It was a joy to follow the skilful manner in which the lovely, appealing theme was treated. There were some exquisite moments, both in wood wind, brass and strings, and the piece richly deserved the storm of applause at its close.

COMPOSER CONDUCTS

Mr. H. R. White was himself the conductor for the night, and it was a splendid achievement to have carried the work through without serious hitch. Indeed, the only fault that can be found with the presentation was that it suffered from first night hesitation. Now that that always trying ordeal is over, the piece should move much more smoothly. As it stands at the moment, it takes over three hours to sing, and, having that in mind, the composer might do a little judicious cutting, and also cause a quickening up of the action.

He has at his disposal a thoroughly competent group of principals and chorus. Bruce Flegg, who is familiar here, through his parts as singer of oratorio and ballads, fitted capitally into the character of Shaun the Post. He has a fine, fresh voice, which is under splendid control, and he sings with an admirable sense of interpretation. His song of "The Leprechaun" was one of his best contributions, and he had fine moments in his duets with Arrah. This part was well sung and acted by Eileen Gunning. She made quite an appealing heroine, and generally her voice was very clear and pleasant, though a bit pinched on top occasionally.

Robert McCullagh found a very grateful part as Beamish McCoul, the rebel leader. He had one or two arias which might well have been written for him, so well did they lie on the voice. Hilda White played and sang the rôle of Fanny Power with all that charm and appeal one associates with her work. A very impressive figure was Robert Irwin in the character of Colonel The O'Grady. One has rarely heard that lovely warm voice of his used to such advantage. To another fine baritone, Michael O'Higgins, fell the part of Feeney, and he played the character with excellent appreciation. He looked like the villain of the piece, and carried the study very effectively into his singing, and what a beautiful quality of voice he has!

The supporting parts were capably filled, and the work of the chorus was very effective, especially in those tricky choruses off-stage.

Mr. H. Bailey was responsible for the production, and is to be congratulated on his efforts. Now that he has got over his opening night, he will know how to cover up little shortcomings.

Altogether it was a most successful revival, and it should prove a great attraction during the week.

UNITED IRELAND PARTY'S AIMS

COMMANDANT CRONIN IN BIRR

Referring to the coal-cattle pact between the Free State and Britain, Commandant Cronin, Director-General of the League of Youth, speaking at a meeting which was held in Birr yesterday, said that the British had looked for their pound of flesh, and they had secured it in full.

Referring to the criticism to which the Blue Shirts had been subjected, the speaker said that there had been no falling away of members, who were animated with a real desire to serve their country. It was scarcely necessary to refer to the hardships to which the people had been subjected by the present Government, and even the supporters of that Government were beginning to realise that the country could not long survive a continuation of the present policy.

The Fine Gael policy had been framed to meet the situation created by Fianna Fail maladministration, and to eradicate existing evils and to stem the growth of new ones.

President de Valera's "self-styled" achievements in advancing from the treaty position were concerned with mere matters of form, wherever they were not merely imaginary. National unity should be the first aim, and this should be worked for by creating the most ideal conditions in the country, and not, as Fianna Fail was doing, creating confusion and poverty.

Fine Gael intended to de-rate agricultural land, guarantee 5d. a gallon for milk and guarantee prices for beet and wheat, to be paid from the Central Fund direct, so as to reduce the price of bread to the consumer.

A RECONCILING INFLUENCE

THE PLACE OF PRESBYTERIANISM

FRIENDSHIP WITH ONE'S NEIGHBOURS

"IT would be a very great help if public men of all shades of opinion would try to speak the absolute truth, and not have their eye on propaganda; if all would frankly condemn the outrages perpetrated by professed members of their communities, and not pretend what is an untruth—that all are lambs on one side and all are wolves on the other."

This view on the Irish situation was expressed last night by the Right Rev. Dr. A. F. Moody, M.A., Moderator of the General Assembly, who spoke on "The Future of Presbyterianism in Ireland," at a reception given to the members of the Presbyterian Association, at the Church House, St. Stephen's Green, Dublin.

It was Dr. Moody's first visit to Dublin as Moderator, and the reception, which was given by the President of the Association, Alderman Hubbard Clark, and Mrs. Clark, was largely attended.

Dr. Moody paid tribute to Dublin's hospitality, the warmth and courtesy of its people, and to the Dublin ministers, who, he said, had given them some of the best Moderators the Church ever had. He believed that at present there were among their ranks people who would become Moderators some day.

The Moderator referred to reports which had been spread recently suggesting a policy of Roman Catholic penetration in Ulster. "I want to say," he said, "that, judging by the school attendance returns, there is no evidence of a policy of that nature."

Presbyterianism, he continued, was in a position to exercise a reconciling influence in regard to the whole of Ireland at the present time. To begin with, there was a certain liberalism in Presbyterianism that enabled them to live on terms of personal friendship with their neighbours of all denominations and to work loyally under whatever constitutional government there might be. Historically, Presbyterians and Roman Catholics suffered equally in connection with what was, perhaps, the worst land system in the world.

THE IRISH PROBLEM

Dr. Moody referred to the Council of Christian Churches, the establishment of which, incidentally, was largely due to his efforts. He stated that the Council had been organised in the conviction that they were specially fitted for conciliation and for the promotion of peace and goodwill among all law-abiding citizens. "This Council will frankly oppose unscrupulous people who are disposed sometimes to take advantage of honest, if ignorant, fanaticism, and stand for a healthier public opinion, for complete civil and religious liberty, the impartial administration of justice, and the protection of the rights of all law-abiding citizens.

"There are only two possible solutions of the Irish problem other than the status quo," he declared. "One of them is the use of force by one side or the other, naked and unashamed, unscrupulous enough and powerful enough to beat down the opposition. The policy of the mailed fist is intelligible: what is not intelligible is a feckless and ineffective threat of force. That is the most futile, most mischievous and most unreasonable of all policies. I wish suggestions of force could be finally and frankly dropped by all parties. The second solution is the Christian way of convincing and converting opponents by good government, toleration, fair play, patience and conciliation."

Dr. Moody said that the principle of the Presbyterian Church was to be faithful to the principles and the spirit of the Gospel, which made for peace and goodwill and never for bigotry or hatred.

On the proposal of the Very Rev. Dr. J. L. Morrow, Clontarf, seconded by the Very Rev. Dr. Hanna, Adelaide road, a vote of thanks was unanimously extended to the Moderator.

THE THEATRE ROYAL

In a well mixed variety programme at the Theatre Royal this week clearly the most popular item is Alfredo and his Gypsy Band. Not only has he brought together a band of clever instrumentalists, but four members of the company provide features which give unstinted pleasure. These are Eddie Gaye, a pleasing tenor, who was heard in several songs; Claude Cavvalotti, saxaphonist; Jack Mitchell, who plays the piano accordion, and Taree, perhaps the tallest member of the band, who provides delightful music from a mouth organ and a string instrument. Each of these had to respond to an encore, and the band itself was heartily applauded.

Beryl Beresford makes her first appearance among the audience, and with an assistant on the stage gets across some infectious humour. Glen Pope and Ann are amusing in "A Magic Flirtation," the man being a smart sleight-of-hand artist. The Westwoods effectively demonstrate what can be done in the way of trick cycling with bicycles and unicycles. Ford and Seagrave show remarkable agility in their dancing.

The Eight Black Streaks of Dance are a good turn. Falls, Reading and Boyce are clever dancers and acrobats.

During the interval Mr. Alban Chambers played an operatic selection on the organ.

OLYMPIA THEATRE

Vaudeville and revue make up an entertaining programme at the Olympia this week, and, taking both together, one of the best items last night was the exhibition given by Charles Dudley and his midgets. This combination was not only amusing but clever, and the nice judgment and neat balancing displayed were greatly admired. Holm and Turlow introduced a musical and comedy speciality, and Tom Drew and Carr and Finch also contributed comedy items.

The revue, presented by John D. Robertson, was entitled "A Wonderful Night." It was nine scenes, and the principal artiste in it is the British Broadcasting comedian, Bunny Doyle, who joked with facility and made everyone laugh. He was ably supported by the Avril Twins, Tommy Hood, Frank Richards, Dorothy Regan, Eve Ryan, Don Melville, Eddie Morrell and the Ten Rhythm Girls.

THE TORCH THEATRE

"The Boys of Wexford," Ira Allen's dramatisation of Miles Byrne's part in the Wexford movement of the '98 Rebellion, was produced last night before a full house at the Torch Theatre, Capel street, Dublin. The stage management is remarkably successful in dealing with scenic presentations of no less than ten different episodes, into which the play is divided.

Robert Willis, as "Miles Byrne," keeps the heroic character of the part on a well-sustained level. As "Captain Hunter Gowan," the arch-villain of the piece, Desmond Allen was convincing. Frank Lee, as "Garrett Byrne," Miles's father, and Eric Henry, as "Lieutenant Armstrong," the lover of Miles's sister, gave good characterisations. J. P. Harty, "Andy Maguire," a rebel, and Gerald Rock, "Jacob Daly," traitor and spy, had a large part in making the play go both in its humorous and tragic aspects. "Nora Byrne," Gwendeline Amery, was an affecting and pleasing heroine, well seconded by Andy's lover, "Molly Cavanagh," Pauline Kaye.

FASHION DISPLAYS

An unusual window display opens the fashion week at Messrs. Newell's frock and blouse house, Grafton street, Dublin. The national costumes of Continental countries are shown among model frocks and blouses produced in each. Models which are more exclusive are on show on the premises, and many of them, hand-made, introduce unique Continental modes. The firm also are showing many of the models which are manufactured in their own workshops, and the stock, which will be shown to visitors, contains thousands of garments.

A BELFAST MURDER

REMARKABLE EVIDENCE

NAMELESS WITNESS'S STORY

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Monday.

DRAMATIC evidence was given in the Belfast Custody Court to-day by a young Downpatrick man, whose name was not disclosed and who left the court with police officers. The case was that in which two men are charged with the murder of John M'Kiernan, of "The Glen Bar," Great George's street, Belfast, on the 21st September.

The accused men: James Hull (33), Isabella street, a motor driver, and Robert Charles M'Clure (30), Henry street, a labourer, were again remanded in custody for a week on the application of Mr. Mills, Crown Solicitor.

The unnamed witness said that he was in the haulage business between Belfast and Downpatrick. He occasionally went to Dixon's yard in York street, where he knew Hull as an employé. He first saw M'Clure in M'Kiernan's publichouse in July, where M'Clure was employed as a waiter. On Saturday, September 21, witness reached Belfast about midday, and made a number of calls. In the afternoon he called into "The White Lion" in York street. The driver of the lorry stayed outside. Hull came in some time later, and they drank together. Hull then produced a revolver, and said something about going to Greencastle. Witness offered him £1 for the revolver, and he said that he wanted 30s. for it. The witness added that Hull said that he would give him the revolver only he had a "wee job" to do and said he would give it to him on Monday. He put the revolver back in his pocket, and talked again about going to Greencastle. Other people in the bar heard the conversation and also talked of going to Greencastle. Hull and he then had tea in Hull's house in Isabella street, and the driver of the lorry went home. An hour later they went back to York street, where witness had a shave and a haircut in a barber's shop.

"A MARKED MAN"

He left Hull outside. No arrangement had been made to meet him again, but when he came out Hull was on the street, and went with him while he telephoned Downpatrick. Witness then invited Hull into a public house in Great George's street for a drink. Hull told him not to go in to it as it was a "marked pub." Witness replied: "I don't care what it is. I will go in anyway." Hull said: "We might as well," and they went in. The public house was the Glen Bar.

There were six or seven people in the bar, none of whom he knew. M'Kiernan was behind the bar. Hull and witness went to the top of the bar and ordered two bottles of stout. M'Clure came into the bar later and stopped with the other men who were near the door. He then went out at the back. Witness had called for another drink, and Hull followed M'Clure out to the back. Three police in uniform then entered the bar and talked to M'Kiernan. Witness then went out to the back and saw Hull and M'Clure talking. He did not hear what they said.

Looking over M'Clure's shoulder, he saw he had a revolver, which was broken open in his hand, and was loading it. Witness said: "There is the police," and M'Clure said: "What the hell do we care about the police," closed the revolver, and put it by his side or in his pocket. At this time Hull was standing on M'Clure's other side, and was looking at him. The revolver was of nickel, and was like the one he had seen Hull produce in the public house.

Witness then went back to the bar, leaving the others behind him. The police left as he entered the bar, and then Hull and M'Clure came in and walked down towards the door.

FOUR OR FIVE SHOTS

"In a minute or two," said witness, "there were four or five shots fired, and I saw M'Kiernan fall. The shots came from towards the door. I looked at the door, and saw M'Clure going out. Hull then came up and tapped me on the toe with his foot, and said: 'Hold your tongue, or you'll be next.'"

Witness said the police then rushed in and detained everyone in the bar. Hull again tapped witness on the toe, and said: "Say nothing." Witness and the others were detained overnight. On the following Tuesday he was again in Belfast, and called at "The White Lion," where he saw M'Clure alone, stood him a drink, and told him: "He done that well," referring to the shooting. M'Clure replied that they could always do it well. Witness asked him how he got out so quick. M'Clure said Jimmy (referring to Hull) wanted to see him.

M'Clure wanted him to stop talking, and told him not to talk anything about it. M'Clure went out, telling them to wait until he came back. He said he was going to tell Jimmy that witness was in the bar. When he came back he told witness to go to Dixon's, where Jimmy wanted to see him. At the yard Hull put up his hand for witness to stay back. Hull then came out, and told him not to be talking too much, and to leave him a pint at "The White Lion." McClure was still there, and when Hull came in witness stood them a drink.

A REVOLVER

M'Clure told him if he was on an identification parade to just look past them all the same. Witness asked Hull about the revolver, but he would not give it to him.

On a Monday some time later in Victoria street, witness saw Hull, who was on a bicycle. Hull came over to him and asked if he had made a statement. Witness said he had not, and took Hull into a bar in Church lane for a drink. Witness first proposed a bar in Ann street, but Hull said the police frequented it sometimes, and would not go. On October 25 witness called at Hull's house in Isabella street about 11.30 p.m. Hull was in bed, but got up and made witness tea. Witness again asked him about the revolver, and Hull said that he would go down to Downpatrick on Saturday and give it to him in his own town if he would not let it out. He was to go down in witness's lorry. That same evening Hull took the revolver from under a chest of drawers and put it in his pocket. Hull left witness in York street, and arranged to meet him in Verner street at 2.30 next day. Witness went there, but Hull did not turn up. The revolver was like the one he had seen in Hull's possession before.

On October 28 witness attended an identification parade and picked out McClure.

Mr. Topping reserved his cross-examination.

THREE MEN LOSE THEIR LIVES

Two men died from injuries, one youth was trapped and burned to death, and three other men were injured in a fire at a bakehouse at St. Ninian's, Stirling, yesterday.

The youth was Edward Simpson, and his body was recovered last night. The dead men are David Turnbull, foreman, and Alexander Lawson, both so seriously injured that they succumbed a few hours after being rescued. The other injured men are James Turnbull and Archibald Marshall, employés at the bakery, and George Mitchell, who had accompanied the driver of the petrol lorry.

The fire started when the contents of a burst petrol drum reached an oven. A lorry load of petrol caught fire and a gas explosion followed.

NEW INCUMBENT OF DELGANY

The Board of Nomination for the Parish of Delgany met yesterday at the Diocesan Offices, 43 Kildare street, Dublin, when the Rev. Joseph Thomas Cummins, M.A., incumbent of the united Parishes of Drumcondra and North Strand, Diocese of Dublin, was unanimously nominated to the vacant incumbency.

The Rev. J. T. Cummins, who graduated in Trinity College in 1906, has been incumbent at Drumcondra since 1926. He was appointed curate at Macroom in 1910, and held appointments at Marylebone, Tuffnell Park, St. Luke's, Cork, and St. George's, Dublin.

THE ABBEY THEATRE

A BRILLIANT PRODUCTION

"Noah," by André Obey.

Noah	Michael J. Dolan.
Mrs. Noah	Maureen Delany.
Ham	Arthur Shields.

It is a pleasure—unfortunately, rather a rare pleasure—to praise a play with as little reserve as is needed in the case of "Noah." Last night at the Abbey not only introduced us to a strikingly original play, but gave Mr. Hugh Hunt the opportunity to show his skill as a producer and Mr. Michael Dolan to give one of his very best performances.

The keynote is struck as the first curtain goes up, when Noah, in the intervals of measuring his Ark with a very modern foot-rule, is discovered appealing to the Lord for further instructions. "I'm sorry to trouble you, Lord, but ——" should there be a rudder, what is to happen about the animals, and how about accommodation for the family? This familiar, twentieth-century style is carried on throughout the whole play, and is its principal charm, though at first some people may be inclined to be a little shocked by its audacity. Mr. James Bridie has used much the same method in his "Tobias and the Angel," but not nearly so effectively as has M. Obey.

Nor is this style used because the author wishes to be "smart" or irreverent. On the contrary, its effect is to give the Bible story a peculiar vividness and strength by bringing it nearer to the ground. Noah and his family become human, and their experiences in the Ark are no longer a mere legend, but a strange, though not impossible, adventure.

Witty and light as the style may be—and there are some delightful touches, mainly concerned with Mrs. Noah—the purpose of the play is quite serious. There is nothing comic in Noah's description of the last survivors of the world, gradually cut off by the flood, and there is nothing comic in the study of Noah himself. He is conceived as a man of faith, whose hope that the sinking of the waters will mean the creation of a new and better world is first disturbed and then destroyed. Shem, Ham and Japeth, with their wives, appear to him to be the perfect "crew," but not for long. The mockery of Ham turns them against him, and he sees that they, like the inhabitants who were not spared, trust in themselves rather than in God. The impression of his final loneliness is conveyed with extraordinary force in the last scene on Mount Ararat. The animals have streamed out of the ark and down the mountain, Shem, Ham and Japhet have followed them, and he is left there in a new and empty world, with his faith still unshaken. Dignity and rhetoric could not have given us anything half so alive as M. Obey's "Noah," and his daring was fully justified.

The play was a personal triumph for Michael J. Dolan. Its success depended almost altogether on the interpretation of Noah, who occupies the stage for most of the time, and sets the tone for the whole production. Mr. Dolan played the part with the greatest skill, and he kept his course unerringly where a slight deviation to one side or the other might have plunged the play either into farce or pretentiousness. It is seldom that one sees a difficult part played with such understanding of the author's intention. The other characters were not very important, but Maureen Delany gave a very pleasant study of Mrs. Noah, and Arthur Shields, Barry Fitzgerald and Ria Mooney were also good.

Mr. Hugh Hunt maintained a brisk tempo in his production, which was well above the average standard, and his grouping of the characters was excellent. The fantastic animal masks by Mr. George Atkinson also deserve mention.

SENATOR CONNOLLY

DIFFICULTIES OF AN EXTERN MINISTER

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

The position of Senator Connolly as Minister for Lands, in the event of the abolition of the Senate, will be a peculiar one. The Constitution requires that every Minister shall be a member of the Oireachtas. If he ceases to be a member of the Senate, and if he is without a seat in the Dail, he is precluded from being a member of the Executive Council. There is, however, a provision in the Constitution by which he can be made an Extern Minister. At one time during the late Administration there were two Extern Ministers—namely, Mr. P. Hogan, Minister for Agriculture, and Mr. J. J. Walsh, Minister for Posts and Telegraphs. That arrangement was, however, so unsatisfactory that it is unlikely that any Government will repeat it. Moreover, when the Senate Bill passes, the Article in the Constitution which gives the right of audience in the Senate and Dail to all Ministers will disappear. That, of course, could be got over by a simple expedient. The more serious thing is his exclusion from the Executive Council. A Minister in such a position would be gravely embarrassed, especially as in Senator Connolly's case, where he is responsible for one of the most important departments in the State.

These difficulties, which occur to the minds of doctrinaire constitutionalists, may, it is true, prove to be less serious than they seem; for under the new dispensation, with the Senate out of the way, the powers of the Government to make whatever arrangements they please will be less hampered than heretofore.

Opinion in political circles yesterday was disposed to the belief that Senator Connolly will be found a post in a non-ministerial capacity. This would appear to be the easier solution. As to what the post might be there is as yet no information.

CO. FERMANAGH FIRE

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BROOKEBOROUGH, Monday.

Millview House, a beautiful twenty-five room building, the property of Mr. John J. Rea, solicitor, standing on an eminence outside Aughnacloy, was totally destroyed by fire to-day, the damage being estimated at over £2,000.

Police and civilians made strenuous, but unavailing, efforts to cope with the outbreak. They were, however, handicapped by the water shortage and the rapidity with which the flames spread. Efforts to save the fine range of out-houses adjoining succeeded.

The premises were used for housing the Special Constabulary during troublesome times, and prior to two years ago were the headquarters of the Royal Ulster Constabulary in the district. The cause of the outbreak is unknown. The house has been unoccupied for some time.

A fire which broke out in the rear of Mr. W. Sammon's premises at the Small Crane, Galway, was extinguished before any considerable damage was done.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel — and you'll jump out of bed in the morning full of vim and vigour

The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives help a little, but a mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good old Carters Brand Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carters Brand Little Liver Pills. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 1/3d. and 3/-.

WATERFERRY FAILS

Coffee Cooler's Surprise Win in Juvenile Plate

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

LEICESTER, Monday Night.

GORDON RICHARDS rode his 200th winner of the season at Leicester to-day. It was an easy victory. His mount, Galvani, was made a 20 to 1 on chance to beat his solitary opponent, Royal Ermine, a three-year-old who had never run before.

Lord Howard de Walden, who does not run many horses, owns a genuine and consistent performer in Quillon, who won the Atherstone Handicap. Dawson Waugh, the trainer of Quillon, remarked after the race that he was delighted by the way J. Simpson rode the horse. He said the jockey had obeyed his instructions to the letter.

Spade set out to make all the running. Quillon, who was prominent from the start, came with his run from the distance to overhaul the leader and win by a neck. Kans was fast catching both Quillon and Spade in the last furlong. With a few more strides to go he would probably have won.

An Unexpected Turn-up

There was a surprise in the Juvenile Maiden Plate, for Coffee Cooler, who won with Carslake up, was almost ignored by backers, starting at 100 to 6. Coffee Cooler had run in six races without winning.

Recent form did not work out here or Waterferry would have won. On her second to the smart King's Gap at Sandown Park last month Waterferry was entitled to her position as a short-priced favourite.

Below the distance, too, Waterferry looked like winning, but she faded out as Coffee Cooler drew away to hold off Sally Green and Kerosene. Richards's mount, Wild Huntress, was well beaten a furlong from home after running prominently.

Pegomas Wins Easily

Mr. W. Carr had an easy ride to win the Melton Plate on Pegomas. He would have had more to do had not Norman Knight lost some half-dozen lengths at the start. Tailed off as he was, Norman Knight made up a lot of ground in the straight, and finished two lengths behind Pegomas.

After failing in eight races, Wild Flower gained her first success of the season in the Town Selling Handicap. She was well ridden by J. Crouch, one of Wootton's best apprentices. Another of the Wootton boys, T. Hawcroft, was on Rowanberry, who started favourite.

The filly, however, never looked like winning. From half-way Wild Flower had command, to hold off a late run by the unconsidered Layman. Jack Colling retained Wild Flower for 310 guineas.

Favourite Successful

Bandana, who won the November Selling Nursery for Sir Charles Hyde, was a strong market order. Some early backers were able to trade at 6 to 1, but so persistent was the demand for the gelding that he wound up favourite at 13 to 8.

Had Gordon Richards been able to do the weight—7st. 7lb.—he would have ridden Bandana. Scobie would not agree to putting up the extra weight, so Humphrey Foster had the ride. The winner was bought in for 155 guineas.

Selections

The principal event at Leicester to-morrow is the Leicestershire Handicap, for which a good-sized field will go to the post, and it may be won by YORKSHIREMAN, whose form reads pretty useful.

I would give SEA LEGEND a chance in the Apethorpe Nursery and BLUE CAR in the Harborough Handicap.

GALTEE MORE.

MAN'S PAL SHOULD WIN

Sea Legend Best Choice for Apethorpe Nursery

WITH four open handicaps on the card at Leicester to-day, there should be some good exchanges between backers and layers. The Leicestershire Handicap over the straight mile is the chief attraction. The entry includes three Cambridgeshire failures, the outstanding candidate of these being Man's Pal, who finished second in the Newmarket race at 100 to 1.

He carried bottom weight on that occasion, and was excellently ridden by little Walter Wing. In to-day's race he will have strong handling, as Harry Wragg has been engaged to ride. He is an automatic choice, although it has to be remembered that these "handicap good things" are frequently beaten. His presence has not frightened away many of the opposition, as from stable advices and arrivals I calculate that there will be at least sixteen runners.

Apparently Gay Venture is unlikely to compete. He could have been fancied considerably. In his absence the most serious opposition to Man's Pal should be provided by Yorkshireman, Akela and Domum. Yorkshireman won the Little Go Handicap at York last month with a lot in hand. He has been re-handicapped on that form, but, even so, he is not harshly treated.

Akela was less than half a length behind the winner when third to Pepino and Inflation at Nottingham last time out. Domum showed an improvement on previous form when second to Revelation at Newcastle.

Taking a line on collateral form through Liscloon, there is little to choose between Domum and Yorkshireman. To-day's race should be fought out by Man's Pal and Akela. I prefer

MAN'S PAL.

The Harborough Handicap over five furlongs will provide an excellent betting medium. March Tor, the top weight, is sure to run well, although he would probably appreciate a less severe sprint course than this. Gordon Richards rides the well-fancied Blue Car, who won a similar handicap at Alexandra Park a few weeks ago.

Duncan's Delight, second on that occasion, now has a pull of 2lb. for the half-length beating. There are possibilities also about Brown Kate and Broadcaster, but I select BLUE CAR.

The pick of the probables in the Apethorpe Nursery should be Sea Legend, Vervelle filly, Birthday Star, Trevalga and Come May filly. The best of these should be who failed only by a head to win two similar races at Stockton and Newcastle.

who gave Free Fare a race at Wolverhampton last time out. That was his first appearance of the season, and should have brought him on a pound or two.

The opening selling race, the Humberstone Plate, may be won by the well-galloped who may have most to fear from Nightmare.

RED HACKLE

is expected to give Gordon Richards a winning ride in the Clock Tower Selling Handicap.

NEWMARKET NOTES

French Kiss Colt in a Good Spin: Leicester Selections

NEWMARKET, Monday.

THERE was a good deal of rain during the night and at exercise hours.

The scratching of Jesmond Dene and Lucky Patch from the Derby Cup came as no surprise, as both appeared to have too much weight. Although Lord G. Dundas only gave Jesmond Dene cantering exercise, the horse is thoroughly fit. As far as I can gather he will be seen out for the Lancashire Handicap at Liverpool on Wednesday.

Frank Butters gave Lucky Patch a good five furlongs spin with Tramaway. He, too, is fit and well.

Beedle subjected French Kiss colt, with Dun Gray, to a good five furlongs spin. Apart from winning two races Mrs. C. Smith's colt has been consistent in his other races. At our first October fixture he got badly away when fifth to Miss Jinks for the First October Nursery. Although he is well up in the weights for the Eton Handicap at Windsor on Friday, I regard him as holding a good winning chance.

T. Waugh stripped Achtung and Miss Robin and sent them five furlongs at a good pace. Miss Robin should go close for the Humberstone Selling Plate at Leicester to-morrow, while Achtung, who was beaten by Valkyrie here last Friday, should prove difficult to beat for the Croxeth Plate at Liverpool on Thursday.

The Hon. George Lambton gave Apple Peel, with Shrewton, a good five furlong spin. It is obvious that Apple Peel is going to be very difficult to beat for the Lancashire Handicap at Liverpool on Wednesday.

It is likely that Lady Compton Vyner may run Jesmond Dene for this event, and the distance and track will suit him. Lord G. Dundas gave him a couple of five furlong canters this morning and he is in the pink of condition.

When discussing Lucky Patch I omitted to mention that Frank Butters also gave Conversion a good five furlong spin with Alishah. Those who supported him when he ran unplaced to The Bore here last Friday should not take that race as a guide to his chance at Leicester to-morrow, as the winner scored so easily that several of his opponents were not ridden out.

Major Beatty gave Manacle a good five furlong spin, and he should give a very forward display in the Aintree Selling Plate on Wednesday, as his trainer has now got him perfectly sound.

We have about a score of horses under orders to run at Leicester to-morrow. After sizing up our runners for the Humberstone Selling Plate, I take Miss Robin, Gold Tassie and as our best, and give Dodder filly, who has pleased in recent gallops, my vote.

GRANVILLE

has not won a race since the Doncaster May fixture. He is well up in the weights for the Clock Tower Selling Handicap, but I expect him to prove hard to beat.

It will be a near thing between The Huzzy and for the Harborough Handicap, and as Orama will be well suited by this track I take her to represent me.

In the Leicestershire Handicap I shall take a chance with who ran very well here last Friday. The Leicester track should suit him well.

Niloufer could be fancied with a run for the Apethorpe Nursery. I look to who has finished second in her last two races, to score on this occasion.

DELETE

has my vote for the Stoughton Maiden Plate.

SPORTING GOSSIP

November Handicap Scratching

The scratching of Tewkesbury out of all engagements this year at 9 a.m. yesterday includes the Manchester November Handicap.

Injured Jockeys

Fred Herbert, one of the two jockeys injured at Thirsk Races on Saturday, was well enough to leave hospital for his home yesterday. The other injured jockey, W. Benson, is improving. He has no bones broken, and is expected to leave hospital within the next few days.

Sold to Go Abroad

Heath Tax, a two-year-old, and Chance-a-Bit, a five-yearold, have been sold. The two horses have left Briscoe's stables at Royston for shipment abroad.

Gordon Richards' 200th

By his victory on the 20 to 1 on chance, Galvani, in the Quorndon Plate at Leicester yesterday, Gordon Richards registered his two hundredth success this season. This followed a sequence of seventeen consecutive losers since he won the Cowlinge Selling Plate on Art Paper at Newmarket last Thursday. He has a lead of more than 100 over H. Wragg, his nearest rival for the jockey championship, which is assured to him now for the ninth season.

Horses Change Stables

The two-year-olds, Point-to-Point and Miss Otis, have left Bob Adams's stable at Newmarket for Sir Humphrey de Trafford's place near Royston.

Cogitator for Hurdling

The three-year-old, Cogitator, is to be trained for hurdle racing, and has left Ted Leader's stable for Payne's racing establishment at Epsom. Zibtoy, hitherto trained by Beedle, has been sent to Gilbert's East Ilsley quarters.

Gay Gossoon for India

Mr. W. W. Ashe has sold his three-year-old, Gay Gossoon, and the gelding has left the Narraghmore stables, County Kildare, for India. It is understood that the purchase has been made on behalf of one of the wealthiest patrons of the Turf in the East. Gay Gossoon, by Milesius out of Fairy Ford, a Blandford mare, has won three of his seven races in Ireland this season, and was placed second in two others. He is a half-brother to Dopatta, who was exported to India a couple of years ago, and has since proved himself one of the fastest horses out there.

GREYHOUND RACING

The benefit meeting for the Ballysax Coursing Club attracted a large gathering to Shelbourne Park last night, and the programme provided very interesting racing. HUNTING

YESTERDAY'S OPENING MEETS

MEATH HOUNDS

Brilliant sunshine favoured the opening meet of the Meath Hunt, which took place yesterday on the Market square, Navan. The Joint Masters, Mrs. Connell and Major Shirley, with the veteran huntsman, Will Fitzsimons, with 18½ couples of hounds, arrived at the tryst punctually at 11 o'clock. There was a large attendance of spectators and a remarkably big gathering of followers of the hounds.

Churchtown was the first draw, and, finding at once, hounds went away past Curraghtown House, and crossing over the Rataine road the fox ran back to the covert, which he quickly left again and got to ground after going a few fields. This was a good, if somewhat twisting, hunt of one hour. A Philpotstown fox got to ground near the Dunderry-Trim road. There were several foxes in Carrollstown, and hounds got away on the third one to leave. He ran to the Yellow Walls and then turned left-handed through Eskeroon and Tullyard back to the covert, which finished quite a satisfactory opening day.

OLD BOYS WIN AT ROSCREA

At Mount St. Joseph's College grounds, Roscrea, yesterday, a big number of enthusiasts witnessed the annual game between the Past and Present pupils of the institution, which resulted in a victory for the Past team by 1 goal 3 tries to 3 tries.

The first half provided brilliant play, and S. Deering, the Irish international, who led the forwards, was supported by T. Tobin (Young Munster) and J. Laycock (U.C.C.). The Past team, who were very strong, were well held by the home boys, and, although much heavier, were closely marked. At the interval both teams were six points.

The second half opened with the Present pressing hard, when a movement by the Past backs, who got the ball almost on their own line, ran the whole length of the field, and scored a try which was converted by B. McGowan (Balbriggan). The closing stages of the game were evenly contested, the Past scoring twice and the Present once. Professor Walshe, Roscrea, refereed the game.

WESLEY COLLEGE DEFEAT PORTORA R.S.

WESLEY COLLEGE.... 5 PORTORA R.S....... 0

Portora were without one of their regular forwards for this match at Enniskillen. Wesley won the toss, and Portora kicked off against the sun. Play was mostly in the Portora half for the first half. Wesley's forwards, although not as heavy as Portora's, were superior at giving the ball to their backs. After about twenty minutes Wesley, as a result of a good bout of passing, crossed the line for a try, which was converted. In the second half Portora improved, and Wesley were kept on the defensive most of the time. Even then Portora's forwards failed to heel the ball to their backs, among whom Speirs was outstanding. His cross-kicking with the wind was ever a source of danger to Wesley. However, Portora, try as they could, were not able to cross Wesley's line.

MAIDS STILL THE BEST

A Convincing Victory Over Muckross on Saturday

By Our Special Correspondent.

Generally speaking, Saturday's matches turned out very much as expected, although probably most people expected a closer result from the Maids-Muckross encounter. Maids were fielding three substitutes—two forward and one at half back—but even then they were good enough to win by 4 goals to 1. The deciding factor in the game lay between the two forward lines. The Maids forwards, ably led by Miss McKay, were very quick on the ball and never lost an opportunity for a speedy follow-in. Muckross, on the other hand, were noticeably slow to rush in the circle; in fact, had they been any way smart at all in the early stages of the game they should have been about four goals to the good in the first twenty minutes.

Miss Moore, on the Maids right-wing, played a very fine game, and, with Miss McKay, was outstanding in the front line. Miss Huet was up to her best form at half, while Miss Dillon, a substitute at right-half, created a very favourable impression. Miss Byrne, in goal, stopped well and was allowed plenty of time to get the ball away. The Muckross wings, Misses Lennon and O'Connor, put in some splendid work which was often wasted. Miss Burke (centre-forward) was the only one of the inners who did any tackling back—a fact which resulted in a great deal of extra work for the halves. All three halves, as usual, played well, while Miss Byrne was decidedly the better back. Her marking was good, while her clearances were always well placed.

WANDERERS' DISCOVERY

Pembroke Wanderers scored a good win over Loreto Past by 5 goals to 2 at Serpentine avenue. Wanderers have a good and speedy forward line this year. Miss Cosgrave showed up well on Saturday, while Miss Healy, a newcomer to the team, is one of the best players they have got for a few seasons. Miss Byrne was in her usual scoring form, but her midfield play was not so impressive. She is practically unbeatable in the circle, and would greatly enhance her chances of her place on the Irish team if she developed the rest of her game. Miss U. Whiteside was outstanding in the half-line, and both backs were good. Miss Gibson was not severely tested.

The Loreto defence, with the exception of the goalkeeper, who was very steady, was not too sound, and was no match at all for the Wanderers' forwards. I was glad to see Miss Delahunt do so well in the forward line. She is certainly a great asset to the side, and, with Miss O'Neill, was most prominent in the attack.

MISS QUINN WASTED

Newcomes were much too strong for Wanderers 2nd, and won by a clear 5 goals. The inner forwards on the winning side were in good form, but I still think that Miss Quinn is rather wasted on the left wing. Last season, at left inner, she must have been responsible for a goodly percentage of the Newcomes' goals through her quickness at following in all shots, while in her position now she has little or no chance of utilising this accomplishment. On the right wing, Miss Orr was rather weak. The halves and backs were sound, with the result that Miss Allcock was only called upon once.

The Dublin University and Optimists' match at Trinity Hall was changed to a club match at the last minute, as Optimists were weakly represented. Nevertheless, they managed to win by 4-0. Trinity were without Miss Simpson (goal) and Miss Menany (half). Miss Moffat-Wilson deputised for Miss Simpson, but did not do herself justice at all. After playing brilliantly on Alexandra College team for the past few seasons, most people thought that she was a certainty for Trinity 1st, but Saturday's play would certainly not justify the University selectors in displacing Miss Simpson. Miss Campbell and Miss Cairnes were the only Optimists' forwards who showed up well. Miss Hartigan was good at half, and Miss Sowman at full-back.

Maids 2nd were rather weakly represented against Old Wesley, but, even allowing for that, I did not expect them to be beaten by 9-1. Miss Gill was in great scoring form for the winners, and accounted for two of the goals. Old College had an easy win over Optimists 2nd by 7-2, but their second string went down 4-3 to Bray. Glenageary, in a close match, beat Monkstown 3-2, while Sheilmartin had a 4-3 win over Monkstown 2nd.

BADMINTON

THE MIDLAND BRANCH

Over 100 Teams in the Dublin District : England v. the Rest

By Our Special Correspondent.

An indication of the rising status of the Midland League is found in the strength of the teams sent in by the leading Dublin clubs. These may be taken to be Sandford, who for more than thirty years were supreme in Irish badminton, and Pembroke, who last season reached the final of the Irish Senior Cup, being beaten by the Northern team, Dunmurry. The Sandford team includes four Internationals—namely, N. Good, Mrs. MacNaughton, Miss N. Stoker and Mrs. Good; and C. H Maidment, another member of the team, is a noted interprovincial and well in the running for higher honours. The side is completed by such well-known players as E. Warren, J. K. Maconchy and Miss M. Hutton.

As mentioned last week, Pembroke have entered two teams for Section A. They have, therefore, had to divide forces, and that has been done in a manner that leaves the balance of strength between the "A" and "B" teams in considerable doubt. The "A" team is, for the most part, made up of players of great experience, and is: S. Cooper, H. P. Macdougald, A. M. Peate, Dr. H. B. Goulding, Mrs. Goulding, Mrs. Macdougald, Mrs. G. Kelly and Miss C. Smith. The "B" team is a most interesting one, because big things are expected from several members of it. A. G. Trapnell, the former Dublin Friends' player, whose rise to eminence as an interprovincial player has been rapid, will be the No. 1, and the other men are J. H. McCarroll, J. McB. Stephen and J. A. Brown, who are quickly making names for themselves.

Two pairs of sisters make up the side, these being the Misses E. and G. Carty and the Misses N. and P. Conway. The Misses Carty are the Carlow girls who have played for the Midlands in the senior interprovincial against the North, and who, as a combination, are very dangerous. The Misses Conway came to Pembroke from the Dalkey club, and had a big say in helping Dalkey to win the Irish Junior Cup a couple of seasons ago. They are extremely promising, and with the advantage of playing regularly at Elm Park, may be expected to advance rapidly. They are also well known at lawn tennis, and Miss N. Conway is the holder of the championship of Dublin University.

Mr. Jones, the President of the Leinster Branch, is acting as Hon. Secretary of the branch pending the appointment of a successor to Mr. W. Crawford Mooney. Since Mr. Jones has been President his activity has been notable, and the branch has flourished in proportion. The number of teams taking part in the Dublin District Sections is, for the first time, over a hundred, and in spite of having to take over the secretarial duties temporarily, he has managed to get all ready for the campaign a few days earlier than last season.

TEAMS FOR FRIDAY'S MATCH

Everything this week will be overshadowed by the great meeting in Belfast at the Sans Souci Hall, on next Friday and Saturday. It surpasses in importance anything ever attempted in Badminton, and, with the exception of a couple of Canadian players, who have a claim to high world ranking, all the great exponents of the game will be in action.

The early rounds, in which all competitors will be international players, will be played on Friday, and on that evening at 7 o'clock the great match between England and the pick of the other three home countries will be played.

The teams for this match are:—

England: Men—D. C. Hulme, R. C. F. Nichols, R. M. White, L. Nichols, A. Titherley and C. H. Whittaker. Women—Mrs. Uber, Miss T. Kingsbury, Mrs. Henderson. Substitutes—T. P. Dick, S. Jackson, H. E. Baldwin, Miss Doveton, Mrs. Horsley.

The Rest: Men—J. L. Rankin, T. H. Boyle, I. C. Maconachie (Ireland), K. R. Davidson, E. W. Wilson, M. Maclean (Scotland). Women—Miss Stewart (Scotland), Mrs. Myers (Wales), Mrs. MacNaughton (Ireland).

It is expected that the Rest team will turn out as selected, but should any member have to declare off the deficiencies can be made good from among those who will be in Belfast for the tournament. With regard to the English team no one has declared off definitely, but the brothers Nichols are doubtful.

The absence of W. Hamilton from the Rest is, of course, a severe handicap; all the same, the side should put up a fine fight against the English team, which has never been beaten.

It is of interest to record that K. R. Davidson is the Yorkshire cricketer, and during the summer he played for Scotland at cricket. In September he played a couple of matches for Hornsey, the London club, for which Ian Maconachie, the Irish badminton captain, plays. Davidson had the distinction of making 103 against Oxford City, and 168 against the Wanderers.

The finals of the Invitation Tournament will be played on Saturday afternoon, so as to leave players free for the Northern Branch jubilee dinner, which will be held that night, and at which representatives from all the home countries and nearly all the continental countries in which badminton is played will be present. The list of those invited to play in the tournament has been published in the Irish Times, and nearly all have accepted.

CYCLING

THE DUBLIN AND BELFAST RECORD

An attempt on the record between Dublin and Belfast was made on Sunday by A. Donegan, of Portarlington, but he failed to equal the time made by T. P. Quinn a week ago by 1 min. 8 secs. Donegan rode very well in the earlier stages of the ride, and at one point was considerably in advance of Quinn's figures. The change in the direction of the wind at the latter part of the journey and the effects of a cramp caused him to lose ground, but nevertheless he was 4 mins. inside the record when at Lisburn.

SWIMMING

THE HALF-MOON CLUB

The annual re-union and distribution of prizes will take place at the Shelbourne Hall, Merrion row, at 7.45 p.m. on next Thursday. The season was one of the most successful in the history of the club. All Irish and Leinster diving championships were won, and in the Leinster contests the club supplied the great majority of the players. The Irish half-mile and Leinster junior squadron championships were also won. The club took second place in the Irish ladies' 100 and 220 yards championships, and third place in the 440 yards, second place in the Liffey race, and gained many successes in open handicaps. Arrangements for the continuance of training during the winter have been completed, and with a large number of promising young swimmers the club should be even more successful in 1936.

CIVIL SERVICE CLUB

The club have secured Tara Street Baths for two hours weekly during November, commencing to-morrow, and each Wednesday evening during the winter season the ladies' branch will meet from 8 to 9 o'clock, and the men's branch from 9 to 10 o'clock. The club instructor (Mr. P. Burke) will be in attendance. The coach will also give instructions to the ladies' branch on Tuesdays up to 8 o'clock, and the men's branch on Thursdays and Fridays up to the same hour.

Trophies have been presented by the Executive of the Civil Service Clerical Association for the ladies' and men's inter-departmental squadron race. Entries should be sent to the Hon. Secretary without delay.

Tara Street Baths is renewed daily with fresh water, and is kept at a temperature congenial to winter conditions.

LARCENY CHARGES

STORY OF A "PARTY"

At Shankill District Court yesterday, when Thomas Fogarty, Monkstown; Thomas Randle, Alma road, Monkstown, and Christopher Ramsbottom, Dean's Grange, were charged with the larceny of binoculars, value £7, and a woman's costume, value £6, from Corrigmore House, Ballybrack, the owner, Mr. Reeves, said that before he went on holidays he left a key with Ramsbottom, so as to keep the house in order, and Randle had permission to use his typewriter.

Sergeant Ryan submitted a statement made by Fogarty, in which he referred to a visit to the house when under the influence of drink. He put the woman's dress on him as a joke and placed the binoculars over his shoulder. When the Guards made inquiries he returned the articles.

District Justice Reddin sentenced Randle to three months' imprisonment, not to take effect if within one month he paid a fine of £5 and the entire costs; Fogarty to two months' imprisonment, not to take effect if he paid a fine of £3 within a month, and Ramsbottom to one month's imprisonment, not to take effect if he paid a fine of £2 within a month.

A £60,000 CLAIM

SOUTH AFRICAN'S ALLEGATIONS

HOSPITALS' TRUST DEFENDANTS

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE HANNA AND A JURY.)

The hearing of the action of James Robb Stanhope, formerly of 209 Berea road, Durban, Natal, South Africa, and now of 111 Marlborough street, Dublin, against the Hospitals' Trust, Ltd., was begun. The plaintiff claimed £30,000 damages for alleged breach of contract, and £30,000 for alleged negligence in connection with the Irish Hospitals' Sweepstake on the Grand National of 1932; and he asked for declarations that it was the duty of the defendants to include in the draw for the Grand National Sweepstakes, 1932, specified counterfoils of sweep tickets which, he said, had been sent and paid for by him; that it was their duty to send him receipts known as "Sellers' Receipts" for the counterfoils.

It was stated by the plaintiff that he sent to the Hospitals' Trust fifty-four counterfoils, to be entered in the draw for the Grand National, 1932, and, with them, a draft for £22 10s., the proper payment; that the receipt of the counterfoils and money was not acknowledged, and that the counterfoils were not entered for the draw.

The defendants, in a traverse, stated that two of the counterfoils referred to by the plaintiff had been received, and both seller's and subscribers' receipts had been issued for them, and the counterfoils took part in the drawing. The other counterfoils were not received. Before the action was brought they had offered to pay the plaintiff the £22 10s., and to write such letter of explanation as the plaintiff might reasonably require to the persons to whom, he had stated, he had sold the tickets.

Mr. Martin Maguire, K.C.; Mr. Geoghegan, K.C.; Mr. J. A. McCarthy, K.C., and Mr. Alex. Lynn (instructed by Mr. C. B. W. Boyle), appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. J. M. FitzGerald, K.C.; Mr. Lavery, K.C., and Mr. P. McGilligan (instructed by Mr. P. H. O'Reilly), for the defendants.

PROTECTING BUYERS

Opening the case, Mr. Geoghegan said that the plaintiff, who was about 64 or 65 years old, had resided all his life in South Africa, and for twenty years up to 1930, when he became ill, he was employed as a refrigerator engineer by Messrs. D. A. McDonald and Co., of Durban. He had established a wide circle of friends and a high reputation in South Africa, and in 1931 he became a seller of tickets in the Irish Hospitals' Sweepstakes. It was in connection with a parcel of counterfoils of tickets in the sweepstake on the Grand National in 1932 that the present action arose. He sent a batch of fifty-two counterfoils with a draft for £22 10s., the proper amount, to a person in Ireland for delivery to the Hospitals' Trust. That draft was sent on 19th January, 1932, and the Grand National was run in the following March. The Hospitals' Sweepstakes authorities gave to a person lodging money a receipt which identified on its face the counterfoils and the money sent in, and they also sent to each subscriber a purchaser's receipt, and went to the utmost pains to warn the ticket-buying public of the whole world of the danger of being preyed upon by bogus ticket sellers and fraudulent people, and that the chief instrument for the protection of the buyer was the issue in Dublin of that official receipt sent to him direct by them. The people in Durban and the other districts where the plaintiff operated did not receive the purchaser's receipt for these tickets, and that fact brought about a great change in the life of the plaintiff in Durban, where he had been greatly respected. He had such confidence in the machinery of the Hospitals' Trust that he told his friends that they need not worry, and even when the Grand National was past he tried to mollify them by telling them that it would be made all right, and that they would get tickets in the Derby Sweep, which would come later; but the Grand National came and went, and the Derby came and went, but no purchaser's receipts were sent.

THE DRAFT

Not only that, but the Hospitals' Trust stoutly denied having got the £22 10s. Mr. Stanhope then went to great pains to trace the draft, and eventually it was tracked down through its various stages until the actual paid draft itself was got, with the rubber stamp imprint of the Hospitals' Trust, and over an Irish Free State stamp the signature "P. J. Fleming," manager or controller of the very extensive foreign department. That draft appeared to have percolated through the Bank of Ireland in Dublin, Coutt's Bank in London, and Thomas Cook and Sons' Banking Department. Of course, the tracing of this draft into the coffers of the Hospitals' Trust took a very long time; and, further, when the draft turned up, there was found written on the back the words, "Driscoll, U.S.A."

"I think when you hear the evidence," said Mr. Geoghegan, "you will find it is abundantly clear—and it will be proved up to the hilt—that they got our £22 10s. That is the fool-proof organisation that is guaranteeing the world and guaranteeing everybody who subscribes that their counterfoils go into the drum."

That draft for £22 10s., coming from South Africa, he proceeded, appeared to have been allocated to somebody called Driscoll in the United States of America, and the counterfoils did not go into the drum—at least, only two of them did, and those out of a different consignment sent by the plaintiff.

£500 PROFITS

Mr. Stanhope would tell them that his position in Durban became absolutely desperate and hopeless. His profits from the sale of sweepstake tickets had exceeded £500 a year, and that business was now wrecked. He became the scorn of his former friends and acquaintances and was regarded as a welsher—a person who took from his friends for sweepstake tickets money that never reached its proper destination. He was called a name that meant dirt in the streets of Durban, and he had to leave Durban, and had come here to seek the vindication of his character by an Irish jury.

James Robb Stanhope, the plaintiff, was then called and gave evidence of the matters stated by Mr. Geoghegan. The transactions in connection with the sweepstakes had, he said, to be carried on in secret to a great extent. In June or July, 1931, he bought tickets from different people and was victimised, and then he became a seller himself. He got a young lady in Durban to send counterfoils to her uncle in Dublin for transmission to the Hospitals' Trust.

Mr. Justice Hanna—Did you keep any books?

Plaintiff—No, because if I was raided by the police there was sure to be a conviction and I would have had to pay a fine.

Giving evidence about his method of despatching counterfoils and money, the plaintiff said that the draft in dispute was sent in the ordinary way. He received no acknowledgment, and the people to whom he sold tickets complained that they received no purchaser's receipt.

Mr. Geoghegan—Were they abusive?—Some of them went past the limit of abuse.

Do you know the meaning of the word "voet-sak"?—Yes; it means "Get out of it, you mangy dog"; it is the lowest epithet one white person can give to another in South Africa, and it was used to me in Durban.

"BETTER UNDER ARREST"

Mr. Justice Hanna—Is there not a law of slander in Durban and could you not get your remedy in the Court?—I would be better if I was under arrest, because I would be able to clear my character before a magistrate.

In reply to Mr. Justice Hanna, who asked if it was admitted that the counterfoils in dispute did not go into the drum, Mr. Geoghegan said that it was admitted that 52 of them did not.

Mr. FitzGerald—We say that the draft never came with the counterfoils of Stanhope, and that no counterfoils of his went into the drum.

The plaintiff, answering the judge, said that the counterfoils and the draft were in the one envelope.

He admitted having written a letter to the Hospitals' Trust complaining of the non-inclusion of the counterfoils, and stating that, failing an early settlement with them, he would hand all the correspondence to the Associated Press, "and that this would be a good advertisement for the Sweep, as well as the 1,000 counterfoils that were found in a mail bag in Dublin Harbour."

Mr. Geoghegan read a letter, which, he said, was received by the plaintiff from Hospitals' Trust, in which it was stated that receipts would be issued, and that the sum of £22 10s. would be placed to his credit.

Mr. FitzGerald said that the letter was a blunder.

The further hearing was adjourned until to-day.

CLAIM BY BANK

DEFENDANT'S PLEA

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE MEREDITH.)

In a case of the Bank of Ireland v. Joseph John Heffernan, merchant, Percival street, Kanturk, Mr. W. O'B. FitzGerald (instructed by Mr. J. J. Lenahan) applied on behalf of the plaintiffs for a declaration that a sum of £1,089 2s. 3d., of which £1,000 was for principal and the balance for interest, was well charged on the defendant's interest in the lands of Greenane and Gurteenard, containing in all about eight acres; also for an order for sale of the lands, or the appointment of a receiver.

Counsel moved on an affidavit of Edward A. Tucker, plaintiffs agent at Kanturk, who stated that the defendant was in occupation of the lands in question, with the exception of a dwellinghouse known as "The Gate Lodge," on the lands of Gurteenard, and a small parcel of land attached. On 21st September last the plaintiffs' bank porter, Wm. Kennedy, went into occupation of the dwellinghouse. The defendant was not disposed to give vacant possession of the lands to the plaintiffs for the purpose of letting, and deponent alleged that defendant had stated that he would frustrate them in every way he could in the recovery of the amount due to them. He had, deponent alleged, resorted to intimidation by attacking the bank porter, and was sentenced to one month's imprisonment for assault.

Mr. FitzGerald said that the two parcels of land in question were only covered by a deed of charge, but other lands and premises of the defendant were covered by mortgage, including the land with the dwellinghouse, of which possession had been taken.

"NO ANSWER IN LAW"

The defendant, in an affidavit, stated that he had no answer in law to the plaintiffs' claim, but submitted that he had many merits in the suit. He had built up a substantial business as printer, stationer and general merchant, and acquired land. A bungalow, of which he had been obliged to yield up possession, had been built with money entrusted to him and his wife by his brother-in-law and sister-in-law, both now dead, and it had been intended that the children of the latter should eventually have the benefit of the residence. Defendant and his wife had maintained their business until a few years ago, when he was the victim of a series of embezzlements, his losses amounting to about £1,500. He claimed that he had acted frankly and honourably towards the bank, and he detailed certain offers which he had made to the bank. He was willing to facilitate the bank in any way indicated if he was restored to the bungalow and adjoining land. He denied that he had threatened to frustrate the plaintiffs in any way or had assaulted the bank porter. He had remonstrated with the porter for overstepping his duties, and the District Justice had sympathised with him in open Court.

Mr. W. G. Fallon, who (instructed by Messrs. McCarthy, Hanrahan and Moloney) appeared for the defendant, said they were really throwing themselves on the mercy of the Court. His client had had a very big business, and then met with the misfortune referred to. The first property the bank took was the bungalow occupied by the defendant, but they could have left him that and taken the rest of the property.

Mr. Justice Meredith said that the Court was being asked in effect to go back on a previous decision in regard to the bungalow.

Mr. Fallon said that all they were asking the plaintiffs to do was to give them back their dwelling place. There was machinery and plant which was not in the plaintiffs' claim, and which was being offered.

Mr. Justice Meredith said that the defendant had met with unforeseen liabilities, and had been put in a difficult position. He would order an account of the sum due to the bank, and declare it well charged on the premises, but would not, for the present, make an order for sale or the appointment of a receiver.

WESTPORT DEALER'S INJURIES

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE SULLIVAN.)

A settlement was announced in an action by Patrick King, farmer and cattle dealer, Ayle, Westport, against the Ballina Motor Services, Ltd., for personal injuries and loss sustained as a result of alleged negligence of the defendants' agents at Carrownagowna, Bohola, County Mayo, on 16th July, 1934.

Lord Hemphill, with whom was Mr. Lavery, K.C. (instructed by Messrs. Routledge and Corr), for the plaintiff, stated that the defendants had agreed to pay the plaintiff £400 and costs.

Mr. Justice Sullivan received the consent and made it a rule of Court.

Mr. B. McGuckin, K.C., and Mr. Micks (instructed by Mr. W. Stanley Maguire) appeared for the defendants.

CITY COMPANY'S CAPITAL

PROPOSED REDUCTION

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

In the matter of the Companies Acts and Messrs. Crowe, Wilson and Co., Ltd., 26 Lower Bridge street, Dublin,

Mr. Newett (instructed by Messrs. Bennett Thompson and Edwards), in connection with the proposed reduction of the capital of the company, applied for liberty to hold meetings of the Preference and Ordinary shareholders of the firm to consider a compromise or arrangement under the Act. He said that the dividends of the Preference shareholders had been in arrears for some time. The scheme for the reduction of the capital, which would come before the court at a later stage, provided for the payment to the Preference shareholders of the arrears by the issue of a proportion of the new Ordinary shares. The present capital was £135,000, consisting of 50,000 Preference shares of £1 each, of which 35,000 had been issued, and 85,000 Ordinary shares of £1 each, of which 70,000 had been issued. It was proposed to reduce the capital by reducing the Ordinary shares by 6s. 8d. each and to pay off the arrears of Preference dividends by giving in exchange so many as necessary of the unissued reduced Ordinary shares of 13s. 4d. each. The scheme had been approved by a majority of both classes of shareholders, but as there was not unanimity this could only be done by applying to the court.

Mr. Justice Johnston made the order sought, and appointed Mr. Thompson, solicitor, as chairman of the meeting, and directed that he should report the result of the meeting to the court.

DISMISSAL OF RAILWAYMEN

TEST CASE TO BE HEARD

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

A motion was heard in an action in which the plaintiffs are William Fegan, Clonliffe road, Dublin; John Lamb, Malahide; John Lynch, Falls road, Belfast, and Thomas Coleman, Dundalk, ex-employés of the Great Northern (Ireland) Railway Company, who were named as the defendants. The action seeks a declaration that the plaintiffs and all the men in the system in their grades were parties to an agreement entered into with the company by their unions on their behalf on the 6th April, 1933, and that their dismissal which followed the railway strike of that year was in violation of their agreements.

Mr. J. R. Coghlan, with whom were Mr. Martin Maguire, K.C., and Mr. Joseph McCarthy, K.C. (instructed by Mr. John S. Murtagh), for the plaintiffs, said that the action would be coming before the Court in the course of a week or so, and was in the nature of a test case, relating to the alleged dismissal of railway workers. The motion before the Court was for liberty to alter the statement of claim by adding the terms of an agreement between the company and the unions regarding redundant workers.

Mr. Maurice Walker (instructed by Mr. Bailie Gage) appeared for the defendants, and raised no objection.

Mr. Justice Johnston made the order sought.

STARTING OF A 'BUS

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE SULLIVAN AND A JURY.)

The hearing of an action by Miss Margaret McElroy, 28 Wellington quay, Dublin, against the Dublin United Tramways Co., Ltd., was begun.

The plaintiff claimed damages for personal injuries owing to the alleged negligence of an agent of the defendant company in starting, without warning, an omnibus which she was entering.

The defendants denied liability, and pleaded contributory negligence.

Mr. J. Geoghegan, K.C.; Mr. Kingsmill Moore, K.C., and Miss Deverell (instructed by Mr. C. B. W. Boyle), appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Lavery, K.C., and Mr. Murnane (instructed by Messrs. Casey, Clay and Collins) for the defendants.

Mr. Kingsmill Moore, for the plaintiff, stated that the back wheels of the omnibus passed over the plaintiff's legs. She had had two operations as a result of her injuries and her feet were still in irons. She was able to get about only with the aid of a stick.

The plaintiff, having given evidence in support of Counsel's statement, denied, in cross-examination by Mr. Lavery, that she attempted to get on board the omnibus when it was in motion. She stated that she was walking before entering the 'bus, not running. At the time the conductor was not looking at the door, but at the front of the 'bus, and he bumped into her when the vehicle started. He did not look round until then.

Other evidence having been given, the further hearing was adjourned until to-day.

ACTION AGAINST RAILWAY CO.

£1,500 DAMAGES

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE.)

A settlement was also announced in an action under Lord Campbell's Act in which Mary Luby, Urlingford, sought damages against the Great Southern Railways Company and William Neary, Urlingford, for damages for herself and her three minor children for the death of her husband, Michael Luby, a carpenter, whose death she alleged was caused by the negligence of the servants of the defendants. Her husband was being driven by the defendant Neary in his motor car on the 20th April, 1934, at Cullow Hill, Co. Leix, when a 'bus the property of the Great Southern Railways Company collided with it, and Luby received injuries from which he died.

Mr. J. M. FitzGerald, K.C., Mr. Dockrell, K.C., and Mr. C. Casey (instructed by Mr. Henry Shannon) appeared for the Great Southern Railways Company; and Mr. Budd (instructed by Messrs. Fetherstonhaugh and Carter) for the defendant Neary.

The settlement provided for the payment by the Railways Company of £1,500 for damages and £175 for costs to the plaintiff, and that the action against Neary be dismissed, without costs.

Mr. Justice O'Byrne received the consent and made it a rule of Court. He deferred the allocation of damages.

Mr. M. J. Connolly, K.C., and Mr. P. J. McEnery (instructed by Mr. W. T. White) appeared for the plaintiff.

STRUCK BY POLE

£200 COMPENSATION

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE SULLIVAN.)

A settlement was announced in an action brought by James McKeon, carpenter, 25 Upper Rathmines road, Dublin, against the Dartry Dye Works, Ltd., Dublin, for compensation for personal injuries sustained by the plaintiff by being struck by a pole in a van driven by a servant of the defendant company in Charleston avenue on 17th August last.

Under the settlement the defendants agreed to pay £200 to the plaintiff, with High Court costs.

Mr. Justice Sullivan received the consent and made it a rule of Court.

Mr. Carson, K.C., and Mr. Fallon (instructed by Messrs. Webb, Scott and Seymour) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Dockrell, K.C., Mr. Kingsmill Moore, K.C., and Mr. J. P. Murnane (instructed by Messrs. Good and Murray) for the defendants.

EIGHT MURDER CHARGES

TO BE HEARD IN DUBLIN

Eight murder trials are listed for the Central Criminal Court at Green street, beginning on Tuesday next, the 12th inst. The prisoners involved on the capital charges are from Co. Cork, Cork City, Co. Galway, Co. Kerry, Co. Louth, Co. Longford, Co. Westmeath, and the City of Dublin. They include James Cahill, John Sheridan, Michael Cloherty, Stephen Galvin, Patrick Ward, Patrick Lynch and William Joseph Fletcher.

There are in all thirteen indictments on the calendar. Apart from those of murder, the five remaining indictments are two infanticide cases from Co. Cavan and Co. Offaly; a malicious damage case from Co. Galway, a fraudulent conversion charge from Leix, and the retrial of a serious charge against a Roscommon man.

Seven men are accused together on the Co. Longford charge—viz., William Mulligan, John Shanley, John Reynolds, Michael Ferguson, Hugh Devine, James Joseph Reynolds and Michael Kelly.

The murder charge from the City of Dublin is associated with a charge of attempted suicide, and relates to a tragedy in Mark street, off Pearse street, some months ago.

LUCAN BOY'S DEATH

INQUEST ADJOURNED

The inquest on Reuben Woolfson, aged eight years, son of Mr. Bernard Woolfson, Back Weston, Lucan, Co. Dublin, who lost his life in a shooting accident on Saturday last, was opened yesterday, and adjourned after formal evidence of identification had been given.

Mr. B. Woolfson, father of the deceased boy, who identified the body, stated, in reply to Mr. H. Good, solicitor, who appeared for the brother, Louis, that the deceased boy and Louis were always on the best of terms. They had no quarrel of any sort on the day of the tragedy.

Evidence that death was due to hæmorrhage, shock and perforation of the pulmonary artery was given by Dr. ffrench O'Carroll, Lucan.

In view of the fact that the brother had been formally charged and remanded in connection with the accident, and will appear at Kilmainham Court on November 21st, Dr. Waters, Coroner, who sat with a jury, adjourned the inquest on the application of Sergeant Healy, Lucan, who represented Superintendent Greaney, Howth.

GARDEN, FARM, BEES, ETC.

FRUIT.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—

In the fruit garden, trees making rank wood growth should be lifted, root pruned, and replanted just before the leaves fall. This will be found more satisfactory in promoting fruit production, than if left until winter or early spring. While leaves are on the trees, all dead wood can be easily seen. It is, therefore, a good practice to go through the trees and remove all dead wood, taking care to cut well below the dead portion. We have already drawn attention to grease-banding, and would remind those interested to lose no time in applying the bands to the trees. Continue to gather any fruit still remaining on the trees, and look over the fruit room frequently to remove any tainted or bruised fruits. All fruit trees and bushes can be pruned when the leaves have fallen, with the exception of gooseberries, which are best left until spring; then one can see where the bullfinch has started pruning on his own account.
